Integration Ruling Delayed

Reds Say Quemoy Invasion Imminent

Surrender Of Garrison Is Demanded

Warning Stirs New Speculation As To Peiping Intentions

Peiping claimed the Quemoy garrison was cut off from reinforcements or withdrawal to Formosa and called on the Nationalist defenders to surrender without a fight.

"Surrender. . . The island is doomed. . . A landing is imminent," said Radio Peiping.

Sporadic artillery fire has rumbled between the offshore island and the Communist mainland for one week.

Peiping said the warning to the Nationalists on Quemoy came Wednesday from Fukien Province, Red army headquarters.

"The seaway between Quemoy and Formosa is now entirely sealed by our armed forces," the warning was quoted as saying.

The Red warning set off a new round of guessing over Peiping's real intentions, but the reference to Formosa itself was regarded as mere repetition of long-time Communist propaganda on ultimate aims.

Nationalist troops appeared on the streets of Taipei, challenging persons to produce identification cards. Homes also were entered for the same purpose.

The Red invasion warning brought some speculation that the Communists would not broadcast it in advance if they really intended to invade the Quemoy area.

The Quemoys, just off Red China and 120 miles west of Formosa, reportedly are defended by more than 50,000 Nationalist soldiers.

Peiping's unusual tactic of apparently telegraphing an invasion punch obviously was intended to weaken the morale of the dug-in garrison.

But it meshed with Nationalist intelligence reports of Red Chinese troops and sea movements that were interpreted as the prelude to attack somewhere in Formosa Strait.

U.S. Denounces, Warns Peiping

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Thursday denounced Red Chinese "aggressive expansionism." It warned Peiping again not to try to conquer the islands of Quemoy and Matsu, off the Chinese Nationalist base of Formosa.

The State Department took the unusual step of issuing a statement in reaction to a Peiping radio broadcast.

The broadcast quoted the Red Chinese commander in the Quemoy area as saying his forces were determined to liberate Formosa and that a landing on Quemoy was imminent.

Probe Told Union Circus Flyer Costly

Project Followed Failure To Organize "Big Top" In 1956

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate probers heard Thursday how two unions took an expensive flyer in the circus business after failing to organize Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey in 1956.

"We were beset by labor problems," Jackie Bright, executive secretary of the American Guild of Variety Artists, said plaintively in telling about the experiment.

"You got a dose of your own medicine, did you?" asked Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the Senate Rackets Committee.

"Yes, sir, we did that," Bright acknowledged. Everywhere he turned, he added, he found he needed more stagehands, more carpenters, more electricians, more money than he expected.

The project was undertaken in Boston with the Teamsters Union, and the idea, the committee was told, was to follow Ringling Brothers from town to town across the nation and split the crowd. Bright, a New Yorker, said the unions gave up after losing $8,000 apiece.

The rackets committee is making an extensive investigation of methods used by the Teamsters Union leaders to build up their power in the big cities.

Tell Of Vote-Buying

Two witnesses testified Thursday that Harold J. Gibbons got himself elected president of all Teamsters locals in St. Louis by bringing in seven officers of a Tampa, Fla., local chartered out of St. Louis.

Vernon F. Korhn and Harold L. Brocies said they and five fellow officers from local 447 in Tampa received $150 apiece and their expenses for going to St. Louis and voting for Gibbons. The election is now being investigated by court-appointed monitors of the Teamsters Union.

Harry Karsh, Gibbons' right-hand man, was accused earlier in Thursday's hearing of using extortion, hijacking and other strongarm tactics in organizing Midwestern Carnival workers.

Called as a witness, Karsh invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer questions.

Animals Suffered

Hines told the committee that Cetlin & Wilson workers didn't want to join Karsh's union.

On the night of Sunday, July 6, 1952, he testified, Karsh showed up with some imported pickets at Fort Wayne and blocked unloading of Cetlin & Wilson equipment for a week's run at a county fair.

Police refused to let the carnival unload unless trucks were available to move the equipment promptly. Hines said Teamsters Union truck drivers refused to handle the equipment unless a contract with Karsh was signed.

The show's animals needed to be watered and fed, he continued, and a humane officer was threatening to charge the owners with cruelty unless something was done at once.

Hines said John W. Wilson, in charge of the show, finally "surrendered" and signed up.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Gov. Orval Faubus held poised Thursday night the personal power to close Little Rock's Central High school if the U.S. Supreme Court rules it must admit Negroes.

The governor did not sign the bills into law immediately and when news of the Supreme Court delay of its ruling until Sept. 11 reached the Capitol, Faubus hedged on just when he would sign them.

"No Comment" From Faubus

A hasty press conference was held in his office after the high court announcement. Faubus had "no comment" on the delay.

The governor has said previously that he hopes he never has to use his school closing power, but there was little question he would do so if the federal government brings out troops again to force entry of seven Negro students back into Central.

The legislature was making plans to stay technically in special session until January. If it does, Faubus can delay signing the school closing bill indefinitely.

Negro Leader Disappointed

Another measure passed Thursday set back the scheduled opening of Central until Sept. 15, but it also was yet to be made law. Faubus said that until it was, Central's opening was in the hands of the school board which had set it for Sept. 8.

Little Rock received word of the Supreme Court delay with a general feeling of renewed hope mixed with deflation. Tension had built up during the day and the townsfolk were set for a forthright ruling.

L. C. Bates, spokesman for the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, would say only, "I'm disappointed."

Court Calls For Further Arguments

Historic Hearing Will Be Resumed On September 11

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court held a tense, drama-packed emergency session on the Little Rock school integration crisis Thursday and then put off a ruling for at least two weeks.

The justices listened closely, and fired volleys of questions, as opposing lawyers argued that, depending on what the court decides, either the Little Rock school system or democratic government and the rights of Negro children will be destroyed.

After hearing arguments the court called for an hour's recess, ran it on an extra half hour, then returned to the bench to announce a call for more arguments Sept. 11.

In making the announcement, Chief Justice Earl Warren said the court had been advised that Little Rock's Central High School —the one involved in the present test case—will not open until Sept. 15.

The Arkansas Legislature passed a bill postponing the opening of Central High to Sept. 15 but Gov. Orval Faubus has not signed the measure and he had no immediate comment on Thursday's court session.

Overflow Crowd

As the situation stands now, unless Faubus signs the bill or unless the Little Rock School Board sets a new date, the school is scheduled to open Sept. 8. Faubus is not expected to sign the bill but the school board may postpone the opening until after the Supreme Court hands down its ruling.

The big question is whether Central High will start the new term on a segregated or integrated basis. A year ago, a few Negroes were admitted with resulting riots and violence and the calling out of troops.

An overflow crowd, including many Negroes, was on hand for Thursday's extraordinary session.

On the one side, lawyers for the government and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People contended the court's antisegregation ruling must be upheld to preserve the rule of law and to sustain human rights.

On the other side, fighting for a 2½-year delay in integration, the Little Rock School Board said an immediate start would destroy Arkansas' public schools as certainly "as if you planted bombs under each school building and lighted the fuses one by one."

The NAACP contended that to deny immediate integration would destroy the constitutional rights of Negro children and be even "more destructive of democratic government."

Justice Dept. Backs NAACP

The Justice Department, siding with the NAACP, called for the Supreme Court to hand down a definitive decision and allow no delay in integration. There was a question how this squared with President Eisenhower's suggestion Wednesday that integration should be a gradual matter. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said later Eisenhower okayed the Justice Department argument in advance.

All nine members of the Supreme Court hurried back to Washington for their emergency session—the fifth in nearly 40 years. Only matters of surpassing importance or urgency bring the justices back for special terms. Elements of both are present in the integration crisis.

Little Rock schools are scheduled to reopen Sept. 8, with the state embarked on a course of action to shut them down rather than submit to forced mingling of the races.

The Little Rock case has ramifications extending far beyond the city's borders. Virginia, too, for example, has laws which would permit closing schools. The scheduled opening date of the fall term in Virginia varies in different sections from Sept. 2 to Sept. 8.

Walkouts Force Closing Of GM Assembly Plant

DETROIT (UPI)—Strikes idling 15,950 workers at Big Three auto plants in the U.S. have forced a shutdown at the first non-striking plant producing 1959 model cars.

The Buick assembly line at the Buick - Oldsmobile-Pontiac assembly plant in Kansas City, Kan., was closed down during the day shift and 600 were thrown out of work because of material shortages caused by walkouts at parts plants in Michigan and Ohio.

A spokesman for Buick in Kansas City said enough parts arrived late Thursday to permit the night shift to work and the day shift is expected to go back tomorrow.

Besides the 15,950 now idle—and the 600 who were off in Kansas City Thursday, a strike at Buick in Flint, Mich., was scheduled to lay off some 3,400 more Friday.

"Somebody pressed the button at Solidarity House (UAW headquarters in Detroit) to start the strikes," said GM Vice President Louis G. Seaton.

The international union denied any general strike order and said the walkouts were local outbreaks.

The latest strike hit GM's Buick Division Dynaflow transmission plant in Flint, where 1,050 left their jobs Thursday afternoon. A GM spokesman said UAW Local 599 President Otis Bishop ordered picket lines thrown around Buick's axle and foundry plants Friday and a total of "some 4,500" would be jobless.

Other strikes idled 2,300 workers at the Fisher Body division plant in Hamilton, Ohio; 2,200 at another Fisher Body plant in Grand Rapids, Mich.; 400 at the Brown-Lipe-Chapin division in Elyria, Ohio, and 5,000 at the Pontiac division in Pontiac, Mich.

Hurricane Menaces New England Area

Eisenhower Advised To Delay Vacation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hurricane Daisy, packing winds up to 125 miles an hour, churned northward off the North Carolina coast Thursday night, and hurricane alerts were hoisted in southern New England and eastern Long Island.

The weather bureau advised President Eisenhower to delay his Rhode Island vacation, and the Navy cancelled homecoming celebrations for the atomic submarine U.S.S. Nautilus in Connecticut.

The weather bureau warned in a 9 p.m. (e.d.t.) bulletin that all persons in the affected areas should keep in touch with latest advisories and bulletins and be reading for quick action in case the hurricane becomes more threatening.

The latest bulletin placed the center of the storm 150 miles east of Norfolk, Va. and still moving slightly east of north at 22 miles per hour. Winds in the Norfolk area were reported up to 37 miles per hour but were not expected to get higher, the weather bureau said.

It said that Daisy was expected to continue moving between north and north northeast 20 to 25 miles per hour during the next 8 hours but that indications still favored its veering more toward the northeast late Thursday night.

The hurricane missed the North Carolina Outer Banks Thursday, but picked up speed.

The weather bureau said that hurricane winds extended 50 miles from the center of the storm with gale winds 150 miles away to the east and 100 miles to the west of the center.

Hurricane warnings were ordered from Provincetown, Mass., to Block Island, R.I. Winds in the area were expected to hit 60 to 75 miles by Friday. A hurricane watch was ordered for Connecticut and eastern Long Island.

62 Escape Death When Airliner Crashes, Burns

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—A Northwest Airlines DC6B crashed and burned in a farm field Thursday moments after its takeoff in a misty pre-dawn gloom, but all 62 persons aboard, including two infants, escaped death.

The airline said 49 persons, including Rep. Donald Magnuson (D-Wash.) were taken to hospitals here and in St. Paul, but many were released after treatment. At least 14 persons, however, were hospitalized, three of them in serious condition.

The crash occurred just as the big plane, carrying 58 passengers and four crewmen, rose from the runways of Wold-Chamberlain Airport.

The four-engine plane caught fire as it crashed in a cornfield on the southwest edge of the airport and ploughed through a fence. Passengers quickly fled to safety through gaps broken or torn in the twisted fuselage or through emergency exits. Flames from burning gas tanks engulfed the plane and also destroyed a garage and a station wagon on the farm.

Magnuson, who suffered minor injuries, said that flames shot 100 feet into the air minutes after those aboard got clear of the plane.

"We sure didn't have much time to spare," he said. "We can all be thankful to God that we survived. It was really miraculous."

Authorities began an investigation to determine the cause of the crash. The airliner was en route from Washington, D. C., to Seattle Wash., and Portland, Ore. Those aboard included four servicemen and a number of children.

Dewey Assails International Law Violators

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey said Thursday that "some of the major nations of the world prefer to rely on force," rather than international law, to settle disputes.

The nations have established the International Court of Justice and the United Nations General Assembly brings the force of world opinion to bear to induce peaceful settlement, he said, "yet violations of international law still occur, as in the invasion of Hungary in 1956."

The former New York governor and onetime Republican presidential candidate reported to the American Bar Assn. House of Delegates, as chairman of its Committee on International Law Planning.

"The major nations have not been willing to accept wholeheartedly the jurisdiction of the international courts which they themselves created," he said.

None of 19 nations which have accepted jurisdiction of the international court without reservations can be considered a major power, Dewey said.

Navy Successfully Launches Regulus II

POINT MUGU, Calif. (UPI) — The Navy announced Thursday a successful launching had been made of a Regulus II guided missile into the inland portion of the Pacific missile range.

Navy spokesmen said the missile was fired from the naval air missile test center here and recovered at Antelope Dry Lake near Tonapah, Nev.

Fire Spreads Gas Through Polish Mine, Killing 56

BERLIN (AP)—Fire broke out in a Polish coal mine Thursday night and spread gas that killed at least 56 miners, the official East German news agency ADN reported from Warsaw.

The pit is in the Makoszowy mine in Upper Silesia, Poland's industrial area near Germany. Rescue operations from neighboring mines began at once.

ADN said 52 miners were hospitalized for treatment of gas poisoning.

Cyclotron Inventor Dies After Operation

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI)—Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, who won the Nobel Prize for inventing the atom-smashing cyclotron at the age of 29, died Wednesday night after an intestinal operation. He was 57.

An honorary member of the Soviet Union's Academy of Science, Lawrence had returned from the East-West nuclear testing talks at Geneva a few weeks ago because of a bronchial condition. When he was examined in this country, he was found to be suffering from ulcerative colitis.

He entered Palo Alto Hospital Aug. 12 and his condition was not believed serious when he underwent surgery Wednesday night. He died shortly afterward.

Whitney Gains Control Of N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Herald Tribune announced Thursday night that John Hay Whitney, U.S. ambassador to the Court of St. James, had acquired control of the 117-year-old independent Republican newspaper and its European edition published in Paris.

Ogden R. Reid, president and editor of the newspaper, said the Reid family would retain "a substantial interest." Reid said he would continue, at Whitney's request, as chief executive officer of the newspaper during the "transition" period.

Whitney will remain in London as ambassador to Great Britain until January, 1961.

Other officers of the newspaper also will continue in their present posts, Reid said. However, the board of directors was reorganized. Whitney will hold no title on the newspaper.

Reid said the newspaper would continue its present policy as an "independent Republican newspaper." He said plans for the future included placing the newspaper in a "more competitive position" and improving and expanding its editorial coverage.

Anglo-Israeli Defense Chiefs End Secret Talks

LONDON (AP)—British and Israeli defense chiefs ended secret talks here on reported plans for Britain to sell arms to Israel.

A Foreign Office announcement said the talks with Simon Peres, director general of the Israeli Ministry of Defense, were friendly and satisfactory.

Diplomatic sources in London said earlier this week that Britain was ready to help Israel's navy, worried by the buildup of the submarine power of President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

Ammonia Tank Blast Injures At Least 30

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—An ammonia tank exploded at a sea food processing plant Thursday and injured about 30 persons.

A spokesman at Mercy Hospital said none was injured critically and most suffered effects from ammonia fumes.

Officials at the Sea Side Refrigerated Warehouse Co. said the cause of the explosion was not learned immediately.

The tank was in the machine room of the one-story building. The building itself was not damaged.

No exact count had been made of the injured, the hospital said.

Answers Furnished Him, Big Winner On "21" Says

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said Thursday that his office was investigating the complaint of a contestant who had appeared on the television quiz show "Twenty-One", but the National Broadcasting Co. said it had looked into the same charges a year ago and found them "baseless."

The complaint was made by Herbert Stempel, who won more than $50,000 on the show in 1956 before he was defeated by big money winner Charles Van Doren, who went on to win $129,000 on the program.

Jack Barry and Dan Enright, co-producers of "Twenty - One", also denied Stempel's allegations.

Stempel was questioned for about three hours by Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph Stone, who later said, "a lot of important people are involved here."

He refused to identify any of the people, but said all would be given a chance to tell their story to the district attorney.

Stempel told the New York World-Telegram and Sun that he had been given the answers in advance by the show's management until it was decided that a new champion should be crowned. He said he deliberately fluffed a question in a match with Van Doren to lose.

NBC said in a statement that Stempel's charges first came to the attention of the network more than a year ago.

"At that time, we made an investigation and found them to be utterly baseless and untrue," NBC said. "We are completely convinced of the integrity of 'Twenty-One' as a program."

Country's Top Tax Collector Resigns

President Eisenhower accepted the resignation of Russell C. Harrington as Internal Revenue Service commissioner, effective Sept. 30.

Harrington said personal reasons, which he did not specify, caused him to leave the post he has held for three years.

In a letter to Harrington, Eisenhower voiced "warm thanks for the devoted and distinguished service you have rendered."

Probe Told Union Circus Flyer Costly

Project Followed Failure To Organize "Big Top" In 1956

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate probers heard Thursday how two unions took an expensive flyer in the circus business after failing to organize Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey in 1956.

"We were beset by labor problems," Jackie Bright, executive secretary of the American Guild of Variety Artists, said plaintively in telling about the experiment.

"You got a dose of your own medicine, did you?" asked Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the Senate Rackets Committee.

"Yes, sir, we did that," Bright acknowledged. Everywhere he turned, he added, he found he needed more stagehands, more carpenters, more electricians, more money than he expected.

The project was undertaken in Boston with the Teamsters Union, and the idea, the committee was told, was to follow Ringling Brothers from town to town across the nation and split the crowd. Bright, a New Yorker, said the unions gave up after losing $8,000 apiece.

The rackets committee is making an extensive investigation of methods used by the Teamsters Union leaders to build up their power in the big cities.

Tell Of Vote-Buying

Two witnesses testified Thursday that Harold J. Gibbons got himself elected president of all Teamsters locals in St. Louis by bringing in seven officers of a Tampa, Fla., local chartered out of St. Louis.

Vernon F. Korhn and Harold L. Brocies said they and five fellow officers from local 447 in Tampa received $150 apiece and their expenses for going to St. Louis and voting for Gibbons. The election is now being investigated by court-appointed monitors of the Teamsters Union.

Harry Karsh, Gibbons' right-hand man, was accused earlier in Thursday's hearing of using extortion, hijacking and other strongarm tactics in organizing Midwestern Carnival workers.

Called as a witness, Karsh invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer questions.

Animals Suffered

Hines told the committee that Cetlin & Wilson workers didn't want to join Karsh's union.

On the night of Sunday, July 6, 1952, he testified, Karsh showed up with some imported pickets at Fort Wayne and blocked unloading of Cetlin & Wilson equipment for a week's run at a county fair.

Police refused to let the carnival unload unless trucks were available to move the equipment promptly. Hines said Teamsters Union truck drivers refused to handle the equipment unless a contract with Karsh was signed.

The show's animals needed to be watered and fed, he continued, and a humane officer was threatening to charge the owners with cruelty unless something was done at once.

Hines said John W. Wilson, in charge of the show, finally "surrendered" and signed up.

Ammonia Tank Blast Injures At Least 30

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—An ammonia tank exploded at a sea food processing plant Thursday and injured about 30 persons.

A spokesman at Mercy Hospital said none was injured critically and most suffered effects from ammonia fumes.

Officials at the Sea Side Refrigerated Warehouse Co. said the cause of the explosion was not learned immediately.

The tank was in the machine room of the one-story building. The building itself was not damaged.

No exact count had been made of the injured, the hospital said.

Anglo-Israeli Defense Chiefs End Secret Talks

LONDON (AP)—British and Israeli defense chiefs ended secret talks here on reported plans for Britain to sell arms to Israel.

A Foreign Office announcement said the talks with Simon Peres, director general of the Israeli Ministry of Defense, were friendly and satisfactory.

Diplomatic sources in London said earlier this week that Britain was ready to help Israel's navy, worried by the buildup of the submarine power of President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

Faubus Defers Signing School Shutdown Bills

Ark. Governor Declines Comment On Court Action

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Gov. Orval Faubus held poised Thursday night the personal power to close Little Rock's Central High school if the U.S. Supreme Court rules it must admit Negroes.

The governor did not sign the bills into law immediately and when news of the Supreme Court delay of its ruling until Sept. 11 reached the Capitol, Faubus hedged on just when he would sign them.

"No Comment" From Faubus

A hasty press conference was held in his office after the high court announcement. Faubus had "no comment" on the delay.

The governor has said previously that he hopes he never has to use his school closing power, but there was little question he would do so if the federal government brings out troops again to force entry of seven Negro students back into Central.

The legislature was making plans to stay technically in special session until January. If it does, Faubus can delay signing the school closing bill indefinitely.

Negro Leader Disappointed

Another measure passed Thursday set back the scheduled opening of Central until Sept. 15, but it also was yet to be made law. Faubus said that until it was, Central's opening was in the hands of the school board which had set it for Sept. 8.

Little Rock received word of the Supreme Court delay with a general feeling of renewed hope mixed with deflation. Tension had built up during the day and the townsfolk were set for a forthright ruling.

L. C. Bates, spokesman for the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, would say only, "I'm disappointed."

Dewey Assails International Law Violators

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey said Thursday that "some of the major nations of the world prefer to rely on force," rather than international law, to settle disputes.

The nations have established the International Court of Justice and the United Nations General Assembly brings the force of world opinion to bear to induce peaceful settlement, he said, "yet violations of international law still occur, as in the invasion of Hungary in 1956."

The former New York governor and onetime Republican presidential candidate reported to the American Bar Assn. House of Delegates, as chairman of its Committee on International Law Planning.

"The major nations have not been willing to accept wholeheartedly the jurisdiction of the international courts which they themselves created," he said.

None of 19 nations which have accepted jurisdiction of the international court without reservations can be considered a major power, Dewey said.

Navy Successfully Launches Regulus II

POINT MUGU, Calif. (UPI) — The Navy announced Thursday a successful launching had been made of a Regulus II guided missile into the inland portion of the Pacific missile range.

Navy spokesmen said the missile was fired from the naval air missile test center here and recovered at Antelope Dry Lake near Tonapah, Nev.

Fire Spreads Gas Through Polish Mine, Killing 56

BERLIN (AP)—Fire broke out in a Polish coal mine Thursday night and spread gas that killed at least 56 miners, the official East German news agency ADN reported from Warsaw.

The pit is in the Makoszowy mine in Upper Silesia, Poland's industrial area near Germany. Rescue operations from neighboring mines began at once.

ADN said 52 miners were hospitalized for treatment of gas poisoning.

Saboteurs Strike

PARIS (AP) — Four gasoline storage tanks went up in flames at Rouen today in another raid by Algerian saboteurs.

Answers Furnished Him, Big Winner On "21" Says

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said Thursday that his office was investigating the complaint of a contestant who had appeared on the television quiz show "Twenty-One", but the National Broadcasting Co. said it had looked into the same charges a year ago and found them "baseless."

The complaint was made by Herbert Stempel, who won more than $50,000 on the show in 1956 before he was defeated by big money winner Charles Van Doren, who went on to win $129,000 on the program.

Jack Barry and Dan Enright, co-producers of "Twenty - One", also denied Stempel's allegations.

Stempel was questioned for about three hours by Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph Stone, who later said, "a lot of important people are involved here."

He refused to identify any of the people, but said all would be given a chance to tell their story to the district attorney.

Stempel told the New York World-Telegram and Sun that he had been given the answers in advance by the show's management until it was decided that a new champion should be crowned. He said he deliberately fluffed a question in a match with Van Doren to lose.

NBC said in a statement that Stempel's charges first came to the attention of the network more than a year ago.

"At that time, we made an investigation and found them to be utterly baseless and untrue," NBC said. "We are completely convinced of the integrity of 'Twenty-One' as a program."

Court Calls For Further Arguments

Historic Hearing Will Be Resumed On September 11

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court held a tense, drama-packed emergency session on the Little Rock school integration crisis Thursday and then put off a ruling for at least two weeks.

The justices listened closely, and fired volleys of questions, as opposing lawyers argued that, depending on what the court decides, either the Little Rock school system or democratic government and the rights of Negro children will be destroyed.

After hearing arguments the court called for an hour's recess, ran it on an extra half hour, then returned to the bench to announce a call for more arguments Sept. 11.

In making the announcement, Chief Justice Earl Warren said the court had been advised that Little Rock's Central High School—the one involved in the present test case—will not open until Sept. 15.

The Arkansas Legislature passed a bill postponing the opening of Central High to Sept. 15 but Gov. Orval Faubus has not signed the measure and he had no immediate comment on Thursday's court session.

Overflow Crowd

As the situation stands now, unless Faubus signs the bill or unless the Little Rock School Board sets a new date, the school is scheduled to open Sept. 8. Faubus is not expected to sign the bill but the school board may postpone the opening until after the Supreme Court hands down its ruling.

The big question is whether Central High will start the new term on a segregated or integrated basis. A year ago, a few Negroes were admitted with resulting riots and violence and the calling out of troops.

An overflow crowd, including many Negroes, was on hand for Thursday's extraordinary session.

On the one side, lawyers for the government and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People contended the court's antisegregation ruling must be upheld to preserve the rule of law and to sustain human rights.

On the other side, fighting for a 2½-year delay in integration, the Little Rock School Board said an immediate start would destroy Arkansas' public schools as certainly "as if you planted bombs under each school building and lighted the fuses one by one."

The NAACP contended that to deny immediate integration would destroy the constitutional rights of Negro children and be even "more destructive of democratic government."

Justice Dept. Backs NAACP

The Justice Department, siding with the NAACP, called for the Supreme Court to hand down a definitive decision and allow no delay in integration. There was a question how this squared with President Eisenhower's suggestion Wednesday that integration should be a gradual matter. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said later Eisenhower okayed the Justice Department argument in advance.

All nine members of the Supreme Court hurried back to Washington for their emergency session—the fifth in nearly 40 years. Only matters of surpassing importance or urgency bring the justices back for special terms. Elements of both are present in the integration crisis.

Little Rock schools are scheduled to reopen Sept. 8, with the state embarked on a course of action to shut them down rather than submit to forced mingling of the races.

The Little Rock case has ramifications extending far beyond the city's borders. Virginia, too, for example, has laws which would permit closing schools. The scheduled opening date of the fall term in Virginia varies in different sections from Sept. 2 to Sept. 8.

Country's Top Tax Collector Resigns

President Eisenhower accepted the resignation of Russell C. Harrington as Internal Revenue Service commissioner, effective Sept. 30.

Harrington said personal reasons, which he did not specify, caused him to leave the post he has held for three years.

In a letter to Harrington, Eisenhower voiced "warm thanks for the devoted and distinguished service you have rendered."

Stay In Admitting Negro To Md. School Is Denied

BALTIMORE (AP)—U. S. District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen Thursday refused to grant St. Marys County a delay in his order to admit a Negro girl to all-white Great Mills High School.

Counsel for the county school board immediately moved to appeal to the 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. H. Vernon Eney, Baltimore attorney for the board, said the appeal would be formally filed Friday.

Eney, immediately after the adverse decision, conferred with Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the Circuit Court. Eney said Judge Sobeloff agreed to sit with Judge Morris A. Soper "tomorrow afternoon to give us the opportunity to present the motion for a stay. I presume we will have a hearing on it right away."

Eney also said every effort would be made to have the appeals court advance the case on its docket.

Judge Thomsen signed the formal order instructing the county to make an exception in its plan for gradual integration. He then listened to arguments for an hour on a request to stay execution of the order.

The judge refused to grant the stay.

The St. Marys school board has approved a program for integrating elementary schools and junior high schools this year and high schools next year.

However, when Joan Elaine Groves applied for admission to the white high school, Judge Thomsen said he could see no "legally sufficient justification for denying" her "constitutional right" to attend.

School opens Sept. 4.

Judge Thomsen noted Thursday, in a brief memorandum, that the Groves girl "has already lost a full year of desegregated education which will probably require her to spend additional time in school to obtain the desired diploma."

Beall Pledges Clean Campaign For Reelection

BALTIMORE (AP) — The top two Republican candidates, James P. Devereux for governor and J. Glenn Beall for U. S. Senator, came out swinging at their Democratic opponents Thursday.

Devereux promised if elected he will eliminate the "present slipshod policies" of the comptroller's office. The comptroller is J. Millard Tawes, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Beall, announcing formal start of his campaign for reelection, declared that during it he "shall have no hesitation in referring to aspects of the appalling record of my opponent which render him completely unfit to represent our great state of Maryland in the Senate of the United States."

At the same time, Beall gave assurance that his campaign will not be "dirty." He recalled that his Democratic opponent, Thomas D'Alesandro, had predicted the Republicans would conduct a "dirty" campaign.

Beall called D'Alesandro's remark "whining and wailing" in his speech at a picnic of the Republican Central Committee of Washington County near Hagerstown.

In another speech for the picnic audience, Gov. McKeldin accused House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) of helping to block legislation aimed at curbing union racketeering.

"Sam sat with all his weight on the bill to end abuses in handling of union funds and to crack down on racketeering," said McKeldin.

"He sat on it even when he knew it could not be passed in the House of Representatives without needed amendments. He sat on it until it was called to the floor under a suspension of the rules, with only 40 minutes allowed for debate and with the offering of amendments barred.

"The stunt has backfired on Sam and his colleagues in the majority leadership of the House. The people know who killed the bill. It was Sam and his boys."

Von Braun Predicts U.S. Space Man In Five Years

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Rocket expert Dr. Wernher Von Braun said Thursday he was certain America would have a man in space within five years "and most likely sooner." He said the dangers of the radiation band around the earth had been exaggerated.

Dr. Herbert York, of the Advanced Projects Research Agency, also said that if the radiation belt "were the only thing to worry about in getting to the moon, any of us here would willingly take the risk."

Other American scientists attending the ninth International Astronautical Congress here believe the Russian timetable for orbiting a man in a satellite calls for a first attempt next spring.

Von Braun, hobbling on a cane as a result of a wrenched back, and the crewcut Dr. York, chief scientist of the group which decides the feasibility of the military and civil space projects on which the United States is embarking, gave their views in a news conference.

They restricted the talk to civil space projects because, Von Bruan said, Soviet Russia is attending the Congress "and it would be poor taste to talk about intercontinental ballistic missiles."

The questions concentrated on radiation, on ideas which York's agency is studying, and American progress on "re-entry" into the earth's atmosphere — the main problem in manned flight. Puffing a pipe, York parried some questions on the American program.

"Everytime we say we are going to do something, the Russians do it," he said. "We've got too much of a record of talking about things."

"But will you send up anything larger than a mouse or small monkey in your re-entry tests," an interviewer persisted.

"We're going to do it—but not yet," York replied.

The radiation belt has figured prominently in discussions here. One paper speculated it extended from 250 to 40,000 miles and suggested lead shielding for space ships. Another speculated it was an extension of the solar atmosphere 93,000,000 miles wide.

Judge Restores License Of Man In Fatal Mishap

BALTIMORE (AP)—Judge Joseph Allen held Thursday that the Department of Motor Vehicles cannot have a hard and fast rule for revoking licenses of certain drivers involved in fatal accidents.

The judge said testimony in his City Court disclosed the department has an established policy of revoking licenses of a driver who is involved in a fatal accident and then is convicted in Traffic Court of a violation connected with the accident.

This is contrary to the constitutional guarantee of due process of law, Judge Allen held.

He therefore restored Bernard S. Cohen his driving license.

Cohen was freed of a manslaughter charge after his car struck and killed a pedestrian. However, he was later found guilty of failing to give the right of way.

The Department of Motor Vehicles revoked his license.

"It appears to me," said Judge Allen, "that the Traffic Court's finding that the petitioner was guilty of failing to give the right of way to a pedestrian was the only basis for the decision of the license reviewers."

Plastic Bond Used In Joining Broken Bones

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A South African doctor has discovered a revolutionary method of joining broken bones with a plastic bond, it was announced here Thursday.

Sydney Hospital said Dr. Bernard Bloch, who has been doing orthopedic research at the Prince of Wales division, developed the method.

He inserts a hollow polythene plug in the bone cavity and joins the broken bones about the plug. The fracture then is covered with a plastic substance and oxyline resin which, mixed with a hardener and thickener, sets in 10 to 20 minutes.

Bloch first tried the method on sheep several years ago and since has treated two human beings successfully.

Arabs Renege On Pledge, Dag Told By Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—Jordan has told Dag Hammarskjold bluntly that British troops will stay in the country until other Arab states respect their pledge to keep out of Jordan's affairs, authoritative sources reported Thursday.

The sources said Premier Samir Rifai made this clear to the United Nations secretary general in a two hour meeting after Hammarskjold arrived from New York Wednesday night.

A U.N. spokesman said that among other things, Hammarskjold will make "practical arrangements" during his tour to try to get Middle East radio stations to tone down inflammatory broadcasts.

Authoritative sources said Rifai told Hammarskjold that Jordan was not satisfied with the response to the 10-nation Arab resolution passed unanimously in the U.N. General Assembly last week.

The resolution called on member states to respect each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty and called on Arab states specifically to observe a policy of "strict non-interference in each other's internal affairs," both by word and deed.

Since then both Cairo Radio and Damascus Radio have launched a new propaganda campaign against Hussein, warning that his regime was doomed and threatening him with the same fate as his cousin, King Faisal of Iraq, who was assassinated.

AAA Appeals To Motorists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Automobile Association (AAA) appealed to the nation's drivers Thursday to use caution, courtesy and common sense over the Labor Day week end to prevent traffic deaths.

The association also reminded motorists that 445 persons were killed on U.S. highways over the Labor Day holiday last year.

"If every car owner in America resolved to drive by the three C's, we could reduce this year's fatality total by 50 per cent," an association statement said.

The association listed the following rules for Labor Day driving:

Common sense: Use your head when you are behind the wheel. It doesn't require a genius to drive safely. Keep your eyes open and observe traffic regulations.

British Vessels Will Defy Iceland's Claim

LONDON (AP)—The last of a tough little fleet of British fishing ships sailed from England Thursday, headed to a secret rendezvous at sea with royal naval gunboats and then to the battle of the 12-mile waters.

The little ships headed for Iceland waters to defy Iceland's claim to all the fish within 12 miles of its shores.

More than 50 British trawlers under the protecting guns of Royal Naval escorts will move into the 12-mile waters by midnight on Sunday when Iceland's new rule will go into effect. Iceland's present limit is four miles.

BOARD CONVENES

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The board of directors of the West Virginia Cancer Society convened here Thursday. A spokesman said the one-day session handled only routine business of the organization.

AAA Appeals To Motorists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Automobile Association (AAA) appealed to the nation's drivers Thursday to use caution, courtesy and common sense over the Labor Day week end to prevent traffic deaths.

The association also reminded motorists that 445 persons were killed on U.S. highways over the Labor Day holiday last year.

"If every car owner in America resolved to drive by the three C's, we could reduce this year's fatality total by 50 per cent," an association statement said.

The association listed the following rules for Labor Day driving:

Common sense: Use your head when you are behind the wheel. It doesn't require a genius to drive safely. Keep your eyes open and observe traffic regulations.

British Vessels Will Defy Iceland's Claim

LONDON (AP)—The last of a tough little fleet of British fishing ships sailed from England Thursday, headed to a secret rendezvous at sea with royal naval gunboats and then to the battle of the 12-mile waters.

The little ships headed for Iceland waters to defy Iceland's claim to all the fish within 12 miles of its shores.

More than 50 British trawlers under the protecting guns of Royal Naval escorts will move into the 12-mile waters by midnight on Sunday when Iceland's new rule will go into effect. Iceland's present limit is four miles.

BOARD CONVENES

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The board of directors of the West Virginia Cancer Society convened here Thursday. A spokesman said the one-day session handled only routine business of the organization.

Tide Of Cold War Believed Running Against Western Alliance Led By U.S.

By DON WHITEHEAD

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—From Manila to Athens the tide of the cold war is running steadily against the Western alliance led by the United States.

It simply cannot be sugarcoated by wishful thinking. At this stage of the game, we are losing.

And this fact is true despite the 70 billions of dollars the United States has poured into foreign aid programs during the last 10 years.

This judgment was formed after five months of travel into 11 countries strung from Japan to the Mediterranean. But it's not merely a personal assessment.

It represents the majority views of many Americans and their foreign friends who are in the front line of the battle. The Communists have the initiative and they are exploiting it at every opportunity. Not once on this trip have I heard anyone say the West is winning.

If there is one single reason for this state of affairs, I would say it is this: The United States government has not yet aroused the leaders of independent countries to fight communism with the same intensity with which the Communists fight — and the picture of America as a symbol of freedom has been allowed to grow dim in men's minds.

Without doubt, the lords of the Moscow - Peking axis have pulled the plug this year in a pressure drive to shatter the Western military alliance and to weaken American influence and prestige wherever and however they can, to embarrass Americans singly and collectively and to promote the use of force when it is profitable.

The harrassment of Americans has not only been in the bombing of U.S. Information Service libraries, the attacks on Vice President and Mrs. Nixon, and the form of slashed tires on American-owned cars, fights with service men deliberately provoked in bars, and petty annoyances such as anonymous telephone calls, designed to upset the Americans and their families and to make a quick return home look attractive.

The basic American line is to fight communism with dollar aid, alliances and truth. But I found many Americans of sober judgment who think we are making a grave mistake in not meeting the Communists on their own grounds where there are no holds barred. In short, that we should use the Communists' own tactics.

"This is a bare-knuckle fight," one American told me, "but we must be gentlemen. Hell, I'm tired of being a gentleman when I see the back-alley tactics they're using against us."

Over and over I've heard one theme repeated among groups discussing America's foreign policy. It went like this: There must be a reassessment of foreign policy, a new look at the handling of foreign aid, and a fresh tactical approach to the cold war.

The argument was: "We are losing with the tactics we've been employing—therefore something is wrong. We have the argument of freedom, government by law, and respect for the dignity of the individual weighted heavily on our side, but it hasn't been enough. So let's stand back, take a fresh look and try to be more realistic. If we don't we're going to be in greater trouble than we are."

Greece is a shocking example. Ten years ago the Truman Doctrine saved Greece from being drawn behind the Iron Curtain. Greece heralded the Marshall Plan, which bolstered Europe against the Communists.

In the last election, May 11, the Communist-line Union of the Democratic Left rolled up 24 per cent of the popular vote. About half the vote in Athens was on the side of Communist candidates.

How did the Communists do it? Informed sources in Greece say they did it by stealing a leaf from the American textbook on political organization—the kind of organization built up by the Pendergast machine in Kansas City, the Crump machine in Memphis, and the old Tammany machine in New York City.

The Communists have headquarters in every ward in the cities and towns. They work at the job of influencing voters. If someone needs a small loan, or help in getting a job, there always is a sympathetic hearing at headquarters. If someone in the family is ill, a party worker drops around to see if he can be of help. They work at their job of drawing Greece into the Communist sphere of influence.

In the field of foreign aid, I found grave doubts that it is being handled in a way to give the recipient country and the United States the maximum value. This doubt was found even among men who are helping to dispense the aid, men who believe strongly in the principle involved. One major complaint was that the U.S. government is giving millions in aid without proper controls on its use—while the Russians are getting more mileage per dollar.

One embittered American gave this example:

"Recently we agreed to finance a dam in A-----. So what happened? We took bids among private construction companies. The low bidder brought in a few engineers. All the other help was hired locally. Several millions of dollars were spent, the dam was built, and the workers spent a great deal of money that helped the local economy. Then the Americans pulled up and went home. Very few people ever knew what Uncle Sam had done.

I remember, too, the slightly tipsy general in an Asian country who suddenly decided to tell a group of Americans why the United States didn't have more respect in his country.

"You have given us many millions," he said, "and I am one of those who appreciates it. But I don't respect you for it. You don't know how to spend your money. You let it get into the wrong hands and you have no real control over the money that's spent. You would get more respect if you were tougher and demanded more from us."

These were not isolated incicidents. They were typical of many conversations along the way that led from Japan through Hong Kong to the Philippines, Viet Nam, Malaya, Indonesia, Thailand, Turkey, Greece, Italy and Spain.

Disc Jockey THE MOST In Entertainment World

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

In his pink sports car, blue suede shoes and black horn rimmed glasses, the disc jockey —variously known as the deejay, tune twirler, waxsmith and platter spinner — has become The Most in the entertainment world.

Teen-agers really dig him and he in turn digs the sponsors, a double dig that is credited with keeping radio alive and prosperous despite mounting competition from television.

Unlike the lillies of the field, the disc jockey both spins and reaps, making anywhere from $10,000 to $500,000 a year for his frothy fission of jabber and jive.

Record companies burden his mailman with an average 200 new releases a week and follow up with a steady barrage of postcards, letters and telegram commending such tunes as "Splish Splash," "Chicken Pickin' Hawk," and "No Chemise Please."

Singing stars, song pluggers, band leaders and a host of musical camp followers make it a point to drop in on his broadcasts for a spate of idle chatter they hope will result in his playing more of their platters.

As a hit maker, the deejay is without parallel. The purchasing power of his teen-aged audience accounts for nearly 90 per cent of all single record sales.

Rock 'n' roll chanter Tommy Sands recently forgot about a scheduled telephone interview with Cincinnati disc jockey Bob Braun. When a second interview was arranged, Sands neglected to take into account a time zone difference and called an hour after the program. Braun refrained from playing any Sands numbers or even mentioning his name.

To make amends, Sands hastened to Cincinnati to make a personal appearance on the Braun show.

Not all entertainers feel beholden to the deejay.

Comic Danny Kaye failed to hit it off in an interview with San Francisco's Don Sherwood, an irrepressible prankster who bills himself as "the world's greatest disc jockey."

When Sherwood asked where he would like to be most of all, Kaye snapped: "In my hotel room, right now," and stalked out.

Even the conservative disc jockeys who soft pedal rock 'n' roll and ego-polishing pranks in favor of soothing music and pleasant patter exert a tremendous influence. Milwaukee's Bob "Coffeehead" Larson, nicknamed for his early morning show, got himself elected county surveyor when a friend added his name to the ballot as a gag.

Because of his combined audience and sales pull, the disc jockey finds himself a controversial figure, damned on one hand as a pied piper of rebellious youth and heavily in demand on the other as a civic do-gooder.

He has been accused of corrupting the nation's musical tastes and in some cases, like Alan Freed's recent Boston musical massacre, of inciting teen-agers to riot and rowdyism.

But in almost the same breath his accusers call on him to head the local Boy Scout or Kiddie Camp campaign, praise him for conducting "record hops" that keep teen-agers off the streets and enlist his participation in civic drivers against litterbugs, jaywalkers, uncurbed dogs and other municipal malefactors.

Thse conflicting appraisals point up a gradual revolution that has taken place among the nation's 3,000 disc jockeys. Rock 'n' roll has been joined by respectability and responsibility.

"It helps in business to be seen doing good things and helping out where I can," explains Detroit's Robin Seymour, who in 10 years went from $40 a week to $40,000 a year.

Similar selective programming has won endorsements for Boston's Bob Clayton from both public and parochial school officials. Sister Angeline, principal of North Cambridge Catholic High, calls Clayton's tasteful, tuneful show "one of the nicest things to happen to our youngsters in a long time."

Another Boston disc jockey, Norm Prescott, has a set of "teen commandments" to guide his youthful followers. Sample: "Don't let your parents down; they brought you up."

The nation's highest paid deejay at $500,000 a year, pleasant, personable Dick Clark successfully invaded television and proved to parents that rock 'n' roll, properly chaperoned, can be no more demoralizing than the Charleston or the Black Bottom, the only slightly less musical. His nationally televised American Bandstand, a 90-minue show originating from Philadelphia, features a bevy of limp limbed teen-agers gyrating about a juke box, presided over by Clark.

With the rise of the independent station, however, many disc jockeys are switching their program emphasis away from teenagers to the neglected adult audience.

As Mitch Miller, bearded boss of pops music for Columbia Records, told the turntable fraternity at its Kansas City convention: "Youth must be served, but what about some music for the rest of us?"

For the first time since the advent of TV, the rock is getting a solid knocking in many radio quarters. Many deejays now play Guy Lombardo as often as Guy Mitchel. Some actually have sworn off the two-beat bedlam altogether.

A Denver station makes its identification break with the announcement: "This KDEN, stamping out rock 'n' roll." KWK in St. Louis recently played, then smashed every last roc 'n' roll record in its library because it had "alienated too many listeners."

In the race for adult listnership, a whole new breed of deejays has entered the lists. Some, calling themselves "classical commentators," air only serious music and use the "soft sell" commercial. Others specialize in light classical music, show tunes, movie sound tracks and offerings from the hi-fi catalogues.

In Hudson, N. Y., old-time songwriter Gerald Griffin goes after an audience of oldsters by playing the scratchy, hollow-sounding recordings of such bygone stars as Henry Burr and Frank Munn. Houston's KCOH, with a staff of Negro disc jockeys, puts heavy emphasis of hymns, spirituals and religious music.

PRODUCTION RESUMED

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Coke & Chemical Co. announced that full production has been resumed at the reconstructed No. 2 battery of 35 coke ovens at its Neville Island plant. The battery was rebuilt at a cost of about 3 million dollars.

POP FOR PACIFIST — Mrs. Ramona Erickson, Cheyenne, Wyo., housewife angry at pacifist demonstrator Erika Enzer, 32, one of several pickets at the Atlas missile construction site, angrily pours soda pop down blouse of Miss Enzer. Mrs. Erickson first berated Miss Enzer, then tried to force her to take drink of pop. When Chicago woman refused, the Cheyenne housewife held her and poured it down her blouse. (AP Photofax)

Recession Not Reflected In Nation's Eating Habits

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—When it comes to chow, people cut down very little during the recession.

This was pointed up by the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia recently when it reported on a survey of the nation's dietary habits and spending patterns over the last 20 years. The findings are published in the August issue of the bank's trade journal, Business Review.

Despite a decline in personal income, the Review said, retail food sales have been on the upgrade since the start of the slump. Rising prices are responsible for some, but by no means all of the increases.

To get a clearer idea of what's behind price increases, the bank said, people should understand that food has a split personality—nourishment and marketing services.

In the World War II years, the demand for food as nourishment soared, thus causing hefty price increases. Afterward, however, a demand for services became the chief price inflator.

As the bank's review puts it, the postwar housewife became dollar-rich and minute-poor. Not much time, even in the far suburbs, for taking it easy.

Then the food industry came up with built-in services, taking over steps in preparation and cooking formerly performed in the home. The postwar consumer has been found willing and able to pay for these time-saving services.

The bank related that other factors are affecting the demand for food and its cost. Despite record birth rates, households or cooking units are smaller now. This raises the per person cost of food since it is more efficient to shop and cook for larger numbers.

The bill has been boosted also by home entertaining on a scale greater than ever before; by the growing popularity of outdoor cooking, which usually means that steak and other more expensive foods are served; by greater interest in gourmet or exotic foods, and by the spread of the nibbling habit and the coffee break.

The survey said that Americans are eating more red meat, poultry and dairy products, and fewer cereals, potatoes and other starchy foods.

"Based on preliminary data just received," the survey said, "about 20 cents out of every dollar the consumer spends goes for food.

"This figure is somewhat higher than it was in the depths of the depression—an unexpected development. It was thought that in bad times people would spend more on food, less on other things."

HEAT HITS GREECE

ATHENS (UPI) — The worst heat wave in 98 years has hit Greece. Temperatures as high as 114 degrees were recorded in some places Thursday. Forest fires became "increasingly dangerous" in the north. The Army helped vacate inhabitants from some fire-menaced villages.

WORKERS RECALLED

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (UPI)—General Electric Co. said it is recalling 525 workers at Appliance Park, Louisville, because of an upturn in major appliance sales.

Disc Jockey THE MOST In Entertainment World

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

In his pink sports car, blue suede shoes and black horn rimmed glasses, the disc jockey —variously known as the deejay, tune twirler, waxsmith and platter spinner — has become The Most in the entertainment world.

Teen-agers really dig him and he in turn digs the sponsors, a double dig that is credited with keeping radio alive and prosperous despite mounting competition from television.

Unlike the lillies of the field, the disc jockey both spins and reaps, making anywhere from $10,000 to $500,000 a year for his frothy fission of jabber and jive.

Record companies burden his mailman with an average 200 new releases a week and follow up with a steady barrage of postcards, letters and telegram commending such tunes as "Splish Splash," "Chicken Pickin' Hawk," and "No Chemise Please."

Singing stars, song pluggers, band leaders and a host of musical camp followers make it a point to drop in on his broadcasts for a spate of idle chatter they hope will result in his playing more of their platters.

As a hit maker, the deejay is without parallel. The purchasing power of his teen-aged audience accounts for nearly 90 per cent of all single record sales.

Rock 'n' roll chanter Tommy Sands recently forgot about a scheduled telephone interview with Cincinnati disc jockey Bob Braun. When a second interview was arranged, Sands neglected to take into account a time zone difference and called an hour after the program. Braun refrained from playing any Sands numbers or even mentioning his name.

To make amends, Sands hastened to Cincinnati to make a personal appearance on the Braun show.

Not all entertainers feel beholden to the deejay.

Comic Danny Kaye failed to hit it off in an interview with San Francisco's Don Sherwood, an irrepressible prankster who bills himself as "the world's greatest disc jockey."

When Sherwood asked where he would like to be most of all, Kaye snapped: "In my hotel room, right now," and stalked out.

Even the conservative disc jockeys who soft pedal rock 'n' roll and ego-polishing pranks in favor of soothing music and pleasant patter exert a tremendous influence. Milwaukee's Bob "Coffeehead" Larson, nicknamed for his early morning show, got himself elected county surveyor when a friend added his name to the ballot as a gag.

Because of his combined audience and sales pull, the disc jockey finds himself a controversial figure, damned on one hand as a pied piper of rebellious youth and heavily in demand on the other as a civic do-gooder.

He has been accused of corrupting the nation's musical tastes and in some cases, like Alan Freed's recent Boston musical massacre, of inciting teen-agers to riot and rowdyism.

But in almost the same breath his accusers call on him to head the local Boy Scout or Kiddie Camp campaign, praise him for conducting "record hops" that keep teen-agers off the streets and enlist his participation in civic drivers against litterbugs, jaywalkers, uncurbed dogs and other municipal malefactors.

Thse conflicting appraisals point up a gradual revolution that has taken place among the nation's 3,000 disc jockeys. Rock 'n' roll has been joined by respectability and responsibility.

"It helps in business to be seen doing good things and helping out where I can," explains Detroit's Robin Seymour, who in 10 years went from $40 a week to $40,000 a year.

Similar selective programming has won endorsements for Boston's Bob Clayton from both public and parochial school officials. Sister Angeline, principal of North Cambridge Catholic High, calls Clayton's tasteful, tuneful show "one of the nicest things to happen to our youngsters in a long time."

Another Boston disc jockey, Norm Prescott, has a set of "teen commandments" to guide his youthful followers. Sample: "Don't let your parents down; they brought you up."

The nation's highest paid deejay at $500,000 a year, pleasant, personable Dick Clark successfully invaded television and proved to parents that rock 'n' roll, properly chaperoned, can be no more demoralizing than the Charleston or the Black Bottom, the only slightly less musical. His nationally televised American Bandstand, a 90-minue show originating from Philadelphia, features a bevy of limp limbed teen-agers gyrating about a juke box, presided over by Clark.

With the rise of the independent station, however, many disc jockeys are switching their program emphasis away from teenagers to the neglected adult audience.

As Mitch Miller, bearded boss of pops music for Columbia Records, told the turntable fraternity at its Kansas City convention: "Youth must be served, but what about some music for the rest of us?"

For the first time since the advent of TV, the rock is getting a solid knocking in many radio quarters. Many deejays now play Guy Lombardo as often as Guy Mitchel. Some actually have sworn off the two-beat bedlam altogether.

A Denver station makes its identification break with the announcement: "This KDEN, stamping out rock 'n' roll." KWK in St. Louis recently played, then smashed every last roc 'n' roll record in its library because it had "alienated too many listeners."

In the race for adult listnership, a whole new breed of deejays has entered the lists. Some, calling themselves "classical commentators," air only serious music and use the "soft sell" commercial. Others specialize in light classical music, show tunes, movie sound tracks and offerings from the hi-fi catalogues.

In Hudson, N. Y., old-time songwriter Gerald Griffin goes after an audience of oldsters by playing the scratchy, hollow-sounding recordings of such bygone stars as Henry Burr and Frank Munn. Houston's KCOH, with a staff of Negro disc jockeys, puts heavy emphasis of hymns, spirituals and religious music.

PRODUCTION RESUMED

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Coke & Chemical Co. announced that full production has been resumed at the reconstructed No. 2 battery of 35 coke ovens at its Neville Island plant. The battery was rebuilt at a cost of about 3 million dollars.

POP FOR PACIFIST — Mrs. Ramona Erickson, Cheyenne, Wyo., housewife angry at pacifist demonstrator Erika Enzer, 32, one of several pickets at the Atlas missile construction site, angrily pours soda pop down blouse of Miss Enzer. Mrs. Erickson first berated Miss Enzer, then tried to force her to take drink of pop. When Chicago woman refused, the Cheyenne housewife held her and poured it down her blouse. (AP Photofax)

Recession Not Reflected In Nation's Eating Habits

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—When it comes to chow, people cut down very little during the recession.

This was pointed up by the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia recently when it reported on a survey of the nation's dietary habits and spending patterns over the last 20 years. The findings are published in the August issue of the bank's trade journal, Business Review.

Despite a decline in personal income, the Review said, retail food sales have been on the upgrade since the start of the slump. Rising prices are responsible for some, but by no means all of the increases.

To get a clearer idea of what's behind price increases, the bank said, people should understand that food has a split personality—nourishment and marketing services.

In the World War II years, the demand for food as nourishment soared, thus causing hefty price increases. Afterward, however, a demand for services became the chief price inflator.

As the bank's review puts it, the postwar housewife became dollar-rich and minute-poor. Not much time, even in the far suburbs, for taking it easy.

Then the food industry came up with built-in services, taking over steps in preparation and cooking formerly performed in the home. The postwar consumer has been found willing and able to pay for these time-saving services.

The bank related that other factors are affecting the demand for food and its cost. Despite record birth rates, households or cooking units are smaller now. This raises the per person cost of food since it is more efficient to shop and cook for larger numbers.

The bill has been boosted also by home entertaining on a scale greater than ever before; by the growing popularity of outdoor cooking, which usually means that steak and other more expensive foods are served; by greater interest in gourmet or exotic foods, and by the spread of the nibbling habit and the coffee break.

The survey said that Americans are eating more red meat, poultry and dairy products, and fewer cereals, potatoes and other starchy foods.

"Based on preliminary data just received," the survey said, "about 20 cents out of every dollar the consumer spends goes for food.

"This figure is somewhat higher than it was in the depths of the depression—an unexpected development. It was thought that in bad times people would spend more on food, less on other things."

HEAT HITS GREECE

ATHENS (UPI) — The worst heat wave in 98 years has hit Greece. Temperatures as high as 114 degrees were recorded in some places Thursday. Forest fires became "increasingly dangerous" in the north. The Army helped vacate inhabitants from some fire-menaced villages.

Resort Fires 25 Lifeguards Planning Strike

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Twenty-five Ocean City lifeguards lost their jobs Thursday because they planned to strike over the busy Labor Day weekend in an effort to get a pay boost.

They were fired by Mayor Daniel Trimper and the town council after a hearing.

The guards wanted a $10 a week bonus for each week worked during the summer. Robert Magdeburger, their spokesman, said they would strike unless the demands were met by Friday.

Trimper, after the hearing, said that since the guards planned to walk off their jobs Friday city officials agreed they should pick up their gear and leave Thursday.

A shortage of lifeguards for the beach is not expected. Officials said they had enough volunteers from privately owned beaches and pools to handle the usual overflow crowd on the Labor Day weekend.

A staff of 35 guards is regularly employed. They now receive $45 for a 52 hour, 7-day week, plus free lodging. Magdeburger said the guards are required to furnish their own linens and pay for laundry and meals.

Their "poverty," he said, came to light when the lifeguards were planning their annual dance. Operators of the club asked $500 for rent, and would require them to use his concessions. In past years, Magdeburger said the club was rent free and the guards supplied their own concessions.

RUSSIANS INVITED

LONDON (UPI) — The first Russians to be invited in 10 years were expected to be among the crowd viewing secrets of the British Aviation industry in its annual show next week. The Society of British Aircraft Constructors said the exhibits by 362 firms would include nine or ten guided missiles, a helicopter that rises straight up and then flies like a conventional airliner, and a naval attack aircraft never before shown in public.

Devereux Pledges End To Sales Tax Inequities

BALTIMORE (AP) — James P. S. Devereux, Republican nominee for governor, said Thursday if he's elected he'll eliminate the "present slipshod policies" of the state comptroller's office, now headed by the man he opposes for governor.

State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes is the Democratic opponent.

Devereux told the Kiwanis Club of Baltimore that in the matter of taxes "we shall move to eliminate the inequities which exist, such as the imposition of sales taxes on prices created by the imposition of the special cigarette taxes.

"We shall, in fact, eliminate by law the present slipshod policies of the office of the state comptroller which leaves to vendors in various lines the decision as to whether excise taxes should be included in the price of an article of merchandise or visibly shown as an addition to the price."

The Republican congressman said that "the present haphazard and unruly manner of collecting the sales tax, largely at the whim of storekeepers or even of individual employees cannot fail to be an upsetting factor on business.

"Even more serious," he said, "it serves as a dire indication of what could happen to our tax structure and the administration of our taxes if the man who now makes and enforces the collection rules should become head of the government."

Discussing Maryland's industrial development, Devereux said Maryland "has earned the right to become the home state of other big industries," and added:

"We propose the instituting of a thorough state-sponsored survey of potential industrial sites by an organization of experts in the field."

The results of the survey, he said would be made available to groups interested in promoting industrial development.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, Republican nominee for the Senate, took a similar tack in addressing the Kiwanians.

"The party now in power in the (national) executive branch," he said, "has fought against the encroachments of a centralized government which would rob us of our freedom." He said the basic objective has been "to return to the states powers taken over by the federal government, reversing a 20-year trend toward centralization of power in Washington."

Beall also touched upon business and industry. He said the present national administration "is interested in benefiting the business and industry of this country because, thereby, every American is benefited."

Arson Suspect Faces Virginia Murder Charge

SALISBURY (AP) — One of four persons arrested here on arson charges has been turned over to Virginia authorities to face a murder charge.

The man was identified by the FBI as Joseph Wright, 36-year-old Negro, a transient laborer recently of Cape Charles, Va., and Salisbury.

Wright and four Salisbury juveniles were arrested on arson charges Wednesday in connection with a recent $60,000 fire that destroyed Broyles Skateland on U.S. 13.

When FBI fingerprints showed Wright was wanted in Virginia, in the pruning shears stabbing of Willie C. Johnson, also Negro, a warrant was obtained charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

James J. Kelly, special agent in charge of the Baltimore FBI Office, said Wright was brought before U.S. Commissioner Lewis C. Merryman of Salisbury Thursday. The warrant was dismissed so he could be turned over to Maryland authorities.

Wright then was taken before Judge Rex A. Taylor in Wicomico County Circuit Court, where he waived extradition and was released to authorities of Cape Charles and Virginia's Northampton County.

The juveniles held in Wicomico County Jail were identified as Robert Lee Henry, James Edward Curtis and William Shoffner, all 16-year-old Salisbury Negroes.

Officers said Thursday a date had not yet been set for preliminary hearings, pending a conference with the State's Attorney's Office. Juvenile Court waived jurisdiction and all four were turned over to circuit court.

NEW ALLOY ANNOUNCED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Union Carbide Corp. announced its Haynes Stellite Co. Division has developed a silicon alloy which can resist temperatures of more than 3,000 degrees fahrenheit.

Municipal League Pushes Program

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Municipal League is pushing a bill to give all the state's political subdivisions power to take part in the federal urban renewal program.

Baltimore City now is the only local government able to participate.

Edmund C. Mester, league executive secretary, said his group's bill would be submitted next week to the Legislative Council, between-sessions study group of the General Assembly.

Mester said at least four towns —Rockville, Frederick, Hagerstown and Salisbury—want to launch urban renewal projects. The counties of Montgomery and Anne Arundel also are interested, he said.

Similar bills have passed the House three times, Mester said, only to die in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Couple Given Suspended Sentence In Death Of Their Baby Daughter

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Circuit Judge D. K. McLaughlin Thursday imposed three year suspended sentences on a Hagerstown couple convicted of manslaughter by neglect in the death of their baby daughter.

The defendants, Clyde and Hjordis Kenslow, in their 30s, were charged with failing to obtain medical aid for the seven-month old child who died last March of pneumonia.

They said they did not call a doctor because of their religious belief and instead had elders of the Church of God, of which they are members, come to the home to pray over the sick youngster.

The couple was convicted by the court last June.

NEUTRALISM GAINING

LONDON (UPI)—The London Times said in an editorial Thursday that neutralism in Latin America was becoming an increasing menace to the United States. Latin Americans, it said, "point out they have received only a fraction of the aid and attention which the United States has dispensed elsewhere," and that Communists were planting ideas in the minds of "responsible and specially nationalist" people there.

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP) — The Maryland State Fair doesn't open officially until Saturday, but 4-H Club members got off to an early start with exhibit judging Thursday.

The fair opens a 14-day stand six miles north of Baltimore on U. S. 111.

The results included:

Municipal League Pushes Program

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Municipal League is pushing a bill to give all the state's political subdivisions power to take part in the federal urban renewal program.

Baltimore City now is the only local government able to participate.

Edmund C. Mester, league executive secretary, said his group's bill would be submitted next week to the Legislative Council, between-sessions study group of the General Assembly.

Mester said at least four towns —Rockville, Frederick, Hagerstown and Salisbury—want to launch urban renewal projects. The counties of Montgomery and Anne Arundel also are interested, he said.

Similar bills have passed the House three times, Mester said, only to die in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Couple Given Suspended Sentence In Death Of Their Baby Daughter

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Circuit Judge D. K. McLaughlin Thursday imposed three year suspended sentences on a Hagerstown couple convicted of manslaughter by neglect in the death of their baby daughter.

The defendants, Clyde and Hjordis Kenslow, in their 30s, were charged with failing to obtain medical aid for the seven-month old child who died last March of pneumonia.

They said they did not call a doctor because of their religious belief and instead had elders of the Church of God, of which they are members, come to the home to pray over the sick youngster.

The couple was convicted by the court last June.

NEUTRALISM GAINING

Latin Americans, it said, "point out they have received only a fraction of the aid and attention which the United States has dispensed elsewhere," and that Communists were planting ideas in the minds of "responsible and specially nationalist" people there.

Pilot Course In Machine Shop Is Scheduled Here

The Allegany County Board of Education shop and building that formerly housed the Allegany Trades School will be used this year on a pilot basis for a vocational course.

The test year will have a group of Allegany High School students taking machine shop training.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, said Allegany High School offered only a general shop course for its senior high boys.

Three other high schools in the county offer vocational diplomas, Fort Hill, Beall and Bruce.

A course of this type, Webster explained, ties up a shop and an instructor for a half day.

At Allegany, this would have interfered with the general shop training because of the facilities available.

Qualifications for a vocational education diploma require three hours a day shop work and three hours in the classroom.

Webster said the former trades school building contains complete equipment for machine shop and auto mechanics.

He added that in the future, if the program proves successful, auto mechanics will probably be offered.

The Board of Education has obtained a small bus at a reasonable price to haul the students from the high school to the shop, located on the corner of Walnut Place and Paca Street, he said.

The building was used originally for NYA training during the pre-World War II days. During the war, it was used to train machinists and other craftsmen.

Up until last year the facilities were utilized for training World War II and Korean War veterans in auto mechanics and machine shop work.

The number of veterans fell off so much that the operation of the trades school by the Board of Education was not deemed economical.

Doctor Defends Right Of Small Fry To Be Dirty

Dr. Harvey Flack, editor of the magazine Family Doctor, said in the September issue: "Abnormally clean small boys always fill me with the greatest foreboding.

"Boys seem to know instinctively a profound dermatological truth —that an important element of skin health is the skin's own protective layer of grease. This should not be disturbed too frequently by washing."

Named To Demo Group

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Miss Anne Hearst of Morgantown, W. Va., was named Wednesday to the 25-member National Democratic Advisory Committee on Political Organizations.

Hollingsworth Is Promoted At Amcelle

Hollingsworth replaces George E. Tucker, 841 Camden Avenue, who has been granted a leave effective September 1 for graduate study at North Carolina State College.

Employed at Amcelle in April 1955, Hollingsworth later that year assumed responsibility for the industrial engineering program in the Textile Section. He held this position until his recent promotion.

A native of Johnson City, Tenn., where he attended high school, Hollingsworth completed his professional training at Georgia Institute of Technology where he received a BS degree in industrial engineering in 1948.

Hollingsworth is a veteran of World War II, having served in the Army from 1943 to 1946, and again from June 1951 to August 1953. His first period of service took him to the European theatre of operations during World War II, the second being largely spent in Japan. He held the rank of first lieutenant.

Prior to his employment at Amcelle, Hollingsworth worked for North American Rayon at Johnson City, Tenn., for approximately six years. His experience with this firm included both industrial engineering and personnel work.

Hollingsworth is married to the former Josephine Battey, and they have four sons.

Man Receives Two-Year Terms

A 55-year-old local man was sentenced to two years in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Juvenile Court.

Magistrate Fred H. Anderson sentenced the man, Louis Smith, North Mechanic Street, after finding him guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Smith was apprehended by Sheriff's Deputies E. M. Lewis and George Staup, after he had made advances to an eight-year-old girl.

Magistrate Anderson said the man had served a jail sentence in 1948 on a similar charge.

The state's case was presented by Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney, and Edwin R. Lilya, county investigator.

About seven million dollars a year is spent for sunburn remedies in the United States.

Suit Over Property Dismissed

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris yesterday filed an opinion in Allegany County Circuit Court dismissing a suit brought by three brothers against another brother.

They sought to have impressed the proceeds of the sale of property by the defendant brother, and have the funds held in trust for their mother who is a patient in a nursing home.

The action was taken by Harold M., Lester T. and Eugene T. Valentine for the use of their mother, Mrs. Minnie C. Valentine, against John Frederic and Hazel Valentine.

Judge Harris noted that John Frank and Minnie C. Valentine were the parents of the four men figuring in the case.

On May 18, 1943, a deed was recorded in the Court House in which the parents conveyed a property owned by them and located on Oldtown Road to their son, John Frederic. This deed was in the usual form, Judge Harris said, and did not impose any conditions on the grantees.

At a hearing Wednesday, August 20, in Circuit Court a statement was introduced in evidence, signed by J. Frank Valentine and Minnie C. Valentine.

It stated that they conveyed their son, J. Frederic, and his wife the Valentine home on Uhl Highway for $2,000 to be paid at the rate of $25 a month.

The agreement also provided that the parents would live in the home rent free the remainder of their lives, receive garage rent, and have whatever vegetables they were able to raise.

The son was to keep up the repairs, pay taxes and at the deaths of the parents was to pay all funeral expenses.

The pact also stated that if the $2,000 were not all paid at the time of the deaths, the property would go to John Frederic and his wife, Hazel, with the consent of the other brothers and sisters.

The opinion noted that the statement was not dated, and not signed by John Frederic or his wife, but the terms were apparently accepted by them because it was admitted that the $2,000 was paid by them.

The father lived in the house until his death in June 1943 and the mother continued to reside alone there until the spring of 1948. It was undisputed, Judge Harris said, that John Frederic paid the funeral expenses of his father.

Testimony showed the mother left the home after a dispute with Hazel Valentine, but the opinion stated that she left of her own volition and was not ejected. She went to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Twigg.

John Frederic and his wife moved into the property and spent $5,000 in repairs. The judge observed that at the time the parents sold the property to the son and daughter-in-law they were in straitened circumstances. The father had been unsuccessful in selling the property for $3,500 through a local realtor.

In 1956 the expansion of the B&O yard facilities required the acquistion of this property and John Frederic and his wife sold it for $18,000 to the railroad. They re-invested in a home on Braddock Road.

Last August the mother fell and broke her hip and is confined to a nursing home in Hancock.

Judge Harris ruled it was the intention of the father and mother to sell the property to John Frederic, subject only to the reservations.

This conclusion, he added, is strengthened by the fact that the father had offered the same proposition to one or two of his other children.

Truck Driver Hurt As Rig Hits Bridge

A Romney truck driver was hospitalized Wednesday when he lost control of his vehicle and crashed into the Bunker Hill bridge on U. S. Route 11 near Martinsburg.

Admitted to Kings Daughters Hospital, Martinsburg, was Jerry Parker, 24, whom attaches said suffered lacerations of the face and body.

West Virginia State Police said Parker apparently lost control of his vehicle as he approached the span and crashed into the northwest corner of the steel bridge. Damage to his truck, which was demolished, was estimated at $1,500, while the damage to the span has not been estimated, except that it will run "several hundred dollars."

Pilot Course In Machine Shop Is Scheduled Here

The Allegany County Board of Education shop and building that formerly housed the Allegany Trades School will be used this year on a pilot basis for a vocational course.

The test year will have a group of Allegany High School students taking machine shop training.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, said Allegany High School offered only a general shop course for its senior high boys.

Three other high schools in the county offer vocational diplomas, Fort Hill, Beall and Bruce.

A course of this type, Webster explained, ties up a shop and an instructor for a half day.

At Allegany, this would have interfered with the general shop training because of the facilities available.

Qualifications for a vocational education diploma require three hours a day shop work and three hours in the classroom.

Webster said the former trades school building contains complete equipment for machine shop and auto mechanics.

He added that in the future, if the program proves successful, auto mechanics will probably be offered.

The Board of Education has obtained a small bus at a reasonable price to haul the students from the high school to the shop, located on the corner of Walnut Place and Paca Street, he said.

The building was used originally for NYA training during the pre-World War II days. During the war, it was used to train machinists and other craftsmen.

Up until last year the facilities were utilized for training World War II and Korean War veterans in auto mechanics and machine shop work.

The number of veterans fell off so much that the operation of the trades school by the Board of Education was not deemed economical.

Doctor Defends Right Of Small Fry To Be Dirty

Dr. Harvey Flack, editor of the magazine Family Doctor, said in the September issue: "Abnormally clean small boys always fill me with the greatest foreboding.

"Boys seem to know instinctively a profound dermatological truth —that an important element of skin health is the skin's own protective layer of grease. This should not be disturbed too frequently by washing."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Miss Anne Hearst of Morgantown, W. Va., was named Wednesday to the 25-member National Democratic Advisory Committee on Political Organizations.

Hollingsworth Is Promoted At Amcelle

Hollingsworth replaces George E. Tucker, 841 Camden Avenue, who has been granted a leave effective September 1 for graduate study at North Carolina State College.

Employed at Amcelle in April 1955, Hollingsworth later that year assumed responsibility for the industrial engineering program in the Textile Section. He held this position until his recent promotion.

A native of Johnson City, Tenn., where he attended high school, Hollingsworth completed his professional training at Georgia Institute of Technology where he received a BS degree in industrial engineering in 1948.

Hollingsworth is a veteran of World War II, having served in the Army from 1943 to 1946, and again from June 1951 to August 1953. His first period of service took him to the European theatre of operations during World War II, the second being largely spent in Japan. He held the rank of first lieutenant.

Prior to his employment at Amcelle, Hollingsworth worked for North American Rayon at Johnson City, Tenn., for approximately six years. His experience with this firm included both industrial engineering and personnel work.

Hollingsworth is married to the former Josephine Battey, and they have four sons.

Man Receives Two-Year Terms

A 55-year-old local man was sentenced to two years in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Juvenile Court.

Magistrate Fred H. Anderson sentenced the man, Louis Smith, North Mechanic Street, after finding him guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Smith was apprehended by Sheriff's Deputies E. M. Lewis and George Staup, after he had made advances to an eight-year-old girl.

Magistrate Anderson said the man had served a jail sentence in 1948 on a similar charge.

The state's case was presented by Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney, and Edwin R. Lilya, county investigator.

About seven million dollars a year is spent for sunburn remedies in the United States.

Suit Over Property Dismissed

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris yesterday filed an opinion in Allegany County Circuit Court dismissing a suit brought by three brothers against another brother.

They sought to have impressed the proceeds of the sale of property by the defendant brother, and have the funds held in trust for their mother who is a patient in a nursing home.

The action was taken by Harold M., Lester T. and Eugene T. Valentine for the use of their mother, Mrs. Minnie C. Valentine, against John Frederic and Hazel Valentine.

Judge Harris noted that John Frank and Minnie C. Valentine were the parents of the four men figuring in the case.

On May 18, 1943, a deed was recorded in the Court House in which the parents conveyed a property owned by them and located on Oldtown Road to their son, John Frederic. This deed was in the usual form, Judge Harris said, and did not impose any conditions on the grantees.

At a hearing Wednesday, August 20, in Circuit Court a statement was introduced in evidence, signed by J. Frank Valentine and Minnie C. Valentine.

It stated that they conveyed their son, J. Frederic, and his wife the Valentine home on Uhl Highway for $2,000 to be paid at the rate of $25 a month.

The agreement also provided that the parents would live in the home rent free the remainder of their lives, receive garage rent, and have whatever vegetables they were able to raise.

The son was to keep up the repairs, pay taxes and at the deaths of the parents was to pay all funeral expenses.

The pact also stated that if the $2,000 were not all paid at the time of the deaths, the property would go to John Frederic and his wife, Hazel, with the consent of the other brothers and sisters.

The opinion noted that the statement was not dated, and not signed by John Frederic or his wife, but the terms were apparently accepted by them because it was admitted that the $2,000 was paid by them.

The father lived in the house until his death in June 1943 and the mother continued to reside alone there until the spring of 1948. It was undisputed, Judge Harris said, that John Frederic paid the funeral expenses of his father.

Parking Fines May Be Upped

Parking fines may be increased in Cumberland, Philmore F. Fleming, police and fire commissioner, announced yesterday after a conference with top Police Department officers.

The meeting Wednesday was called to find some way of retaining some of the 11 school crossing guards in the Police Department budget.

While no announcement was made, it is anticipated that the increased parking revenues would provide funds for the guards during the coming fiscal year.

It is understood the Mayor and Council has agreed to support Fleming in this move.

As soon as William R. Carscaden, city attorney, can draft the necessary amendment to the parking ordinances, the fines will go from a dollar to two dollars if approved by the Mayor and Council.

That will be for violations for red line, yellow line, and overtime on meters.

Fleming said the step is being taken as a means to increase traffic movement, prevent persistent and planned violations, and allow more people to use the metered zones.

He pointed out that the use of the 25-cent courtesy meter has been abused and it will be eliminated. Too many times, he declared, the violator takes up the full hour's grace period and then pays the quarter at headquarters instead of the $1 fine. The meter time has been limited for a reason, he said.

Others get parking tickets, appear at headquarters and say they have lost them. After paying their dollars and having their ticket numbers cancelled, they use the tags for free parking.

Violators of this type will face stringent enforcement. Fleming said the dates of all tags will be checked and if there is a discrepancy the cars will be towed away.

As an example of the number of violators of city parking rules, one police officer, on a test basis, issued 268 tags in two days in downtown Cumberland.

Fleming pointed out that in the past fiscal year, nearly $50,000 was turned over by the Police Department in fines and meter collections.

The meters produced approximately $31,000 while fines totaled around $18,000.

Fleming said the stricter parking enforcement will go into effect as soon as the city ordinance is amended. This will be in a week or two, he added.

The decision to increase the fines was made following a meeting Wednesday of Fleming, Police Chief R. E. Flynn, Assistant Chief B. F. Gaffney, Lt. Raymond H. Johnston; several veteran police officers who have the downtown beats, and Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

Ground Broken For New Post Office At LaVale

Ground was broken yesterday for the new post office in LaVale located on Route 40 next to the LaVale Fire Hall.

Cromwell C. Zembower, president of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company, said the fire unit's proposal with the Post Office Department was accepted and final papers for the transaction were received yesterday morning.

U. S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall announced the department has approved a 15-year lease for the one-story building that will be started next week.

Zembower emphasized the post office will be financed locally and the cost will be self-liquidating, requiring no operating funds of the fire company.

At the end of the 15-year noncancellable lease, the 95- by 86-foot building will be paid off.

The project is the culmination of negotiations that started back in 1952.

J. G. Buckley and Son, LaVale, are contractors on the structure which will be of nearly all masonry, fireproof construction.

Designer of the building, which will be of the latest Post Office Department style, was the Corinthian Engineering Company of Cumberland.

The quarters will be air conditioned. The post office is built for future expansion to handle as many as 35 postal employes.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Danger Ahead — Hunched Shoulders

Is there a fairly large mirror near you right now? Then look for a heavy object, because with the two you can prove a striking point to yourself about both beauty and safety. Actual physical safety is involved in how beautifully you stand. Achieve beautiful carriage and you minimize the risk of accident.

Pick up the heavy object with both hands. Hunch or raise your shoulders before the mirror. The object feels very heavy, and it's such a strain to hold it. Now try holding it with your shoulders relaxed and at your best posture level. The object seems to lose weight and you feel that you have a much better grip.

The hunch is just as unbecoming when you walk as when you stand, and what you carry is easier to let fall while you're walking. But there's much more to the subject of correct posture for safety reasons. Slipping, falling and bumps usually occur when the body is off balance, and bad posture throws it off balance.

Then the matter of fatigue is a big point. Standing and walking incorrectly brings on fatigue—strain from supporting body weight incorrectly is tiring, slows reactions, slackens concentration and makes hazards more difficult to avoid. Your figure can be at its loveliest only when you carry yourself beautifully. If you do, your vitality lasts longer, you continue to be alert to risks, and you make a quicker recovery when a heel skids or everything slides on a tray you might be carrying.

Secrets Of Charm

Danger Ahead — Hunched Shoulders

Is there a fairly large mirror near you right now? Then look for a heavy object, because with the two you can prove a striking point to yourself about both beauty and safety. Actual physical safety is involved in how beautifully you stand. Achieve beautiful carriage and you minimize the risk of accident.

Pick up the heavy object with both hands. Hunch or raise your shoulders before the mirror. The object feels very heavy, and it's such a strain to hold it. Now try holding it with your shoulders relaxed and at your best posture level. The object seems to lose weight and you feel that you have a much better grip.

The hunch is just as unbecoming when you walk as when you stand, and what you carry is easier to let fall while you're walking. But there's much more to the subject of correct posture for safety reasons. Slipping, falling and bumps usually occur when the body is off balance, and bad posture throws it off balance.

Then the matter of fatigue is a big point. Standing and walking incorrectly brings on fatigue—strain from supporting body weight incorrectly is tiring, slows reactions, slackens concentration and makes hazards more difficult to avoid. Your figure can be at its loveliest only when you carry yourself beautifully. If you do, your vitality lasts longer, you continue to be alert to risks, and you make a quicker recovery when a heel skids or everything slides on a tray you might be carrying.

Ground Broken For New Post Office At LaVale

Ground was broken yesterday for the new post office in LaVale located on Route 40 next to the LaVale Fire Hall.

Cromwell C. Zembower, president of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company, said the fire unit's proposal with the Post Office Department was accepted and final papers for the transaction were received yesterday morning.

U. S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall announced the department has approved a 15-year lease for the one-story building that will be started next week.

Zembower emphasized the post office will be financed locally and the cost will be self-liquidating, requiring no operating funds of the fire company.

At the end of the 15-year noncancellable lease, the 95- by 86-foot building will be paid off.

The project is the culmination of negotiations that started back in 1952.

J. G. Buckley and Son, LaVale, are contractors on the structure which will be of nearly all masonry, fireproof construction.

Designer of the building, which will be of the latest Post Office Department style, was the Corinthian Engineering Company of Cumberland.

The quarters will be air conditioned. The post office is built for future expansion to handle as many as 35 postal employes.

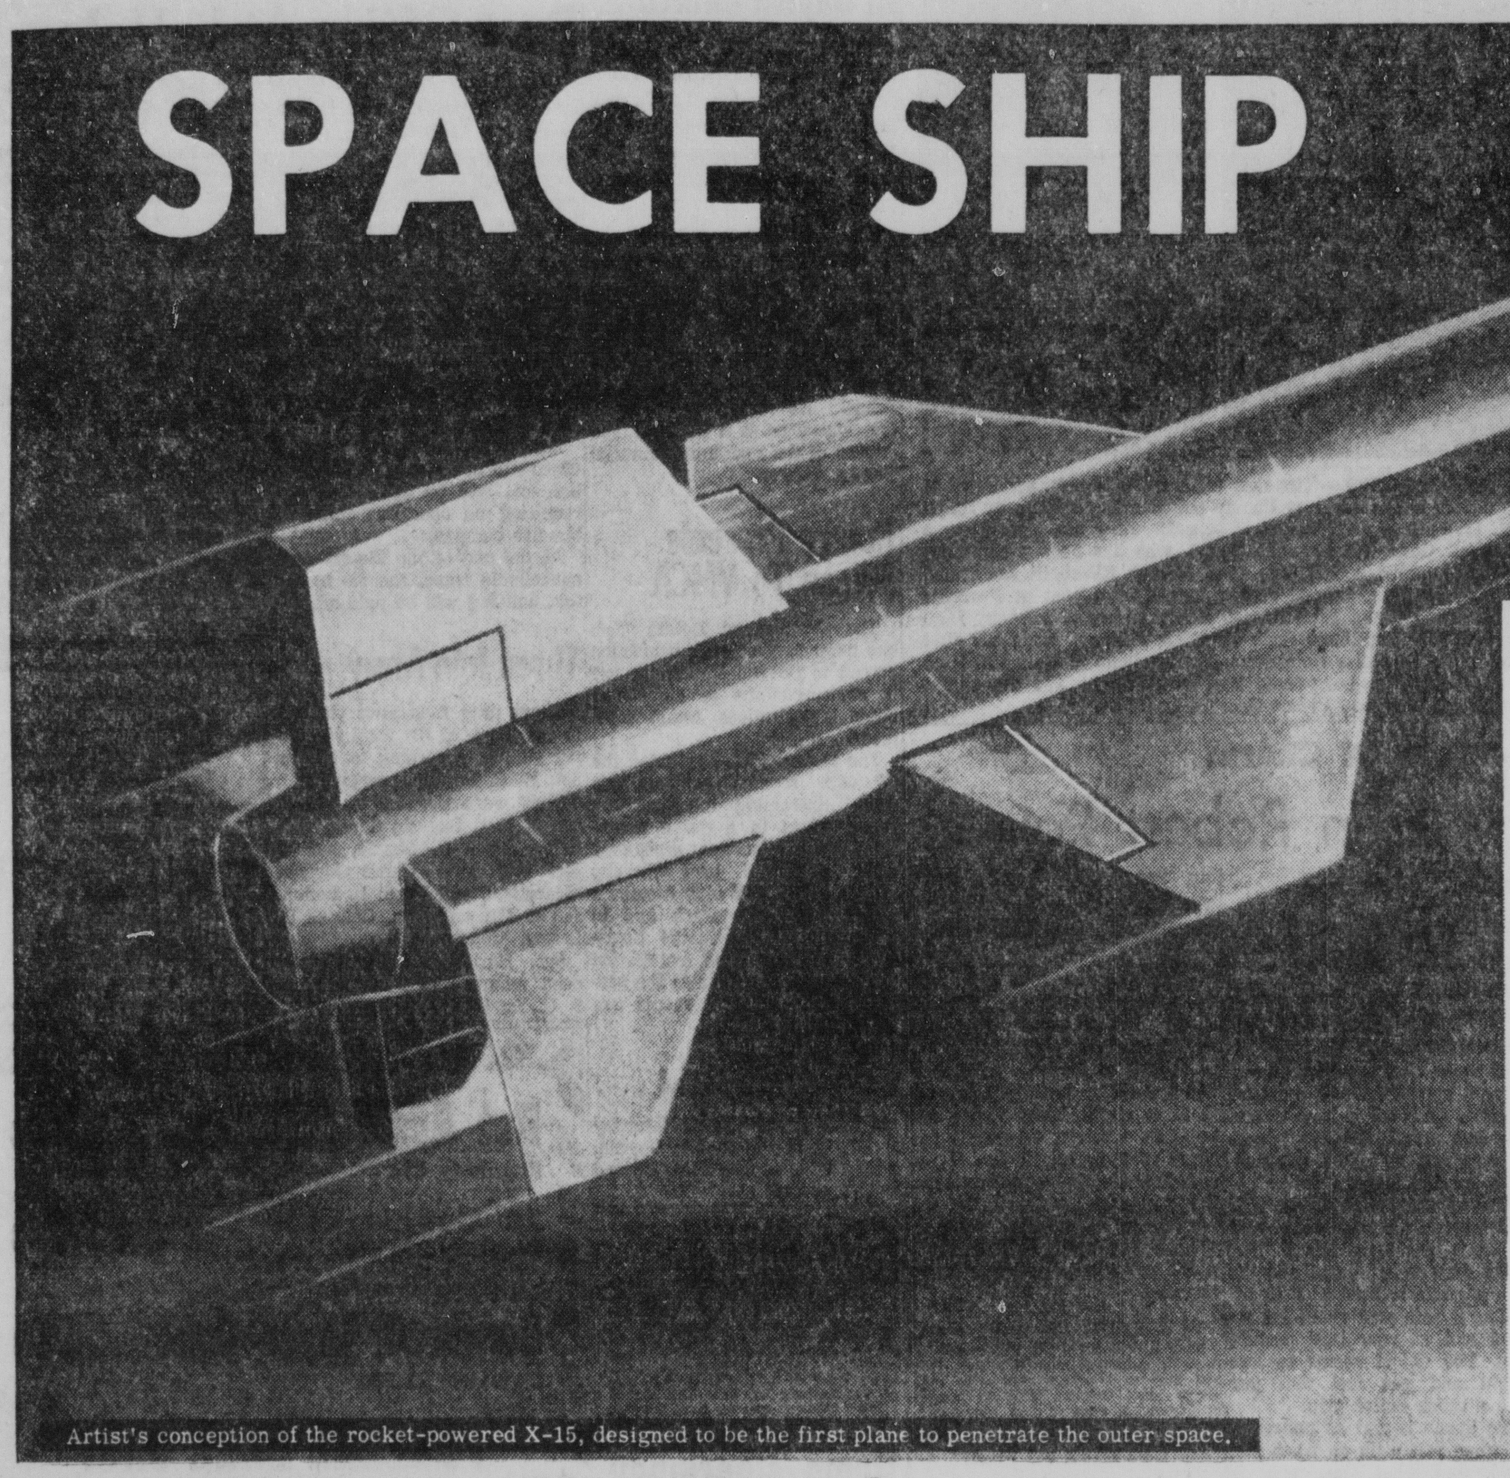
SPACE SHIP



Artist's conception of the rocket-powered X-15, designed to be the first plane to penetrate the outer space.

The X-15, half-plane, half-missile, a hybrid of the hypersonic age, designed to take man to outer space and back, is now being built for the Air Force, Navy, and National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics by North American aircraft in Los Angeles.

The pencil-thin ship with wings like cleaver blades will actually be fired by its own rocket engine like a missile, to coast in a ballistic curve like an artillery shell to reach fantastic speeds and heights.

New metal alloys, such as nickel and steel, are going into its construction. They were chosen for strength and high heat resistance.

For its baptism of fire on re-entry into the atmosphere from space, the X-15 will wear a complete external armor of nickel alloy. The heat that soaks through this resistant skin will meet titanium and stainless steel on the inside. Some aluminum is used internally where high heat and high loads are not a problem.

After initial tests, the ship will be turned over to the Air Force and the NACA to study the effects of friction heat on airplanes capable of flying thousands of miles an hour, as well as control outside the atmosphere where conventional airplane controls are useless.

As a prelude to space flight it will also be used to study the psychological and physiological effects of weightlessness on the pilot.

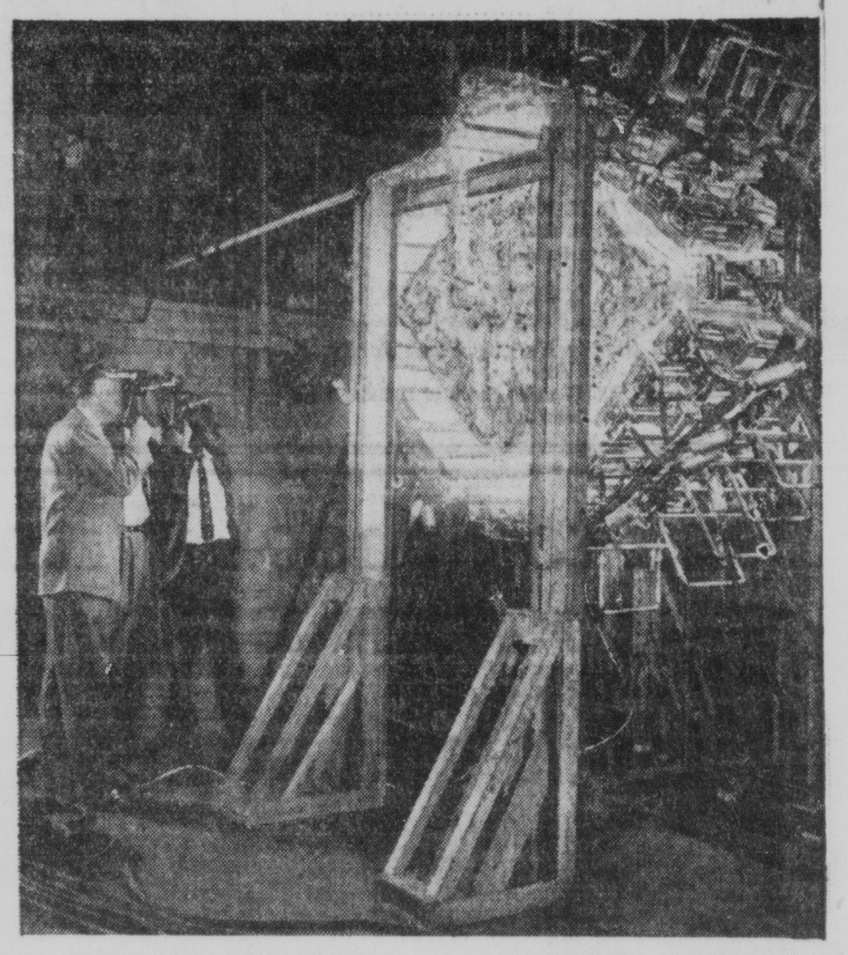
Engineers use movie camera to study simultaneous heating and cooling of metal ring representing part of the X-15 fuselage. Infra-red lamps heat outside; inside is cooled by cold air blown through aluminum rings.

Pilot Scott Crossfield models new space suit he plans to wear during first flight of the X-15. It automatically adjusts for temperature and pressure changes that will be encountered.



Engineers study heat test on metal object representing cockpit section of the X-15. The test was conducted to determine the proper insulation to protect the pilot from heats up to 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit.

High pressure lines on the X-15 are brazed instead of nut-fastened to provide tighter joints. Here, Bob Karicofe and Bob Leavitt study plans as Lee Norwood points to line position on the mock-up.

Peach Parade

The folks at the University of Maryland suggest this toasted peach dessert that will surely revive summer appetites:

Dip 12 peach halves into a mixture of one teaspoon grated orange rind, ¼ cup sugar and ¼ cup lemon juice. Now dip the peaches into ¼ cup melted butter or shortening. Again remove them and roll in two cups of crushed corn flakes. Arrange them, cut side down in a shallow pan, 7 by 11 inches. Place under the broiler for about 10 minutes, or until brown.

Here's a peach recipe that won't require much cooking but will draw rave notices from the men-folk. It's called Peach Bavarian Cream:

Soak 2 tablespoons of gelatin in ½ cup of cold water for 5 minutes. Meanwhile mash one quart of fresh, sliced peaches with one cup sugar, rub through a sieve and simmer in its own juice for 5 minutes. Remove from the fire, add the gelatin and ¼ teaspoon salt and stir until the gelatin has dissolved. Chill, and when the mixture begins to thicken fold in one pint of whipped cream. Now place in a wet mold, let stand in a cool place until firm, and turn out on a serving platter.

Good Hamburgers And Home-Made Ketchup

Ever have trouble getting the cookout hamburger exactly the right size? Well, next time, place one of those wide mouth jar cap bands flat on a plate, put a wad of hamburger in center of band and pat it flat. Then, your 'burgers will fit an averaged sized bun.

But it takes more than shape and size to make a hamburger taste just right—for that you need good ketchup. We like ours on the hot side. If you prefer yours mild, leave out the hot pepper when you use this easy recipe. If your tomatoes are red-ripe with no green spots, the ketchup will be picture pretty.

Easy to Make Tomato Ketchup

- 4 quarts (about 8 pounds) tomatoes
- 1 pod red cayenne pepper
- 1 cup chopped onion
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 tablespoons pickling spice (tied in piece of cloth)
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- 1 cup vinegar

Wash and drain tomatoes before coring and chopping. Chop pepper; discard seed. Cook tomatoes, pepper and onion until soft. Drain off juice (good to drink). Press vegetables through fine sieve to remove skins and seed. Mix all ingredients except vinegar and boil until very thick. Add vinegar and boil 5 to 10 minutes or until as thick as wanted. Taste and add more salt if wanted. Pour boiling hot ketchup to within ¼ inch of top of pint fruit jar. Put lid on jar; screw band tight.

Jelly Roll Cake

- ½ cup undiluted evaporated milk
- 1 package raspberry flavored gelatin
- ¾ cup boiling water
- ½ cup pineapple juice (drained from crushed pineapple)
- 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple
- 1 package individual jelly rolls

Place undiluted evaporated milk into freezer tray. Chill until thick and small crystals begin to form. Put gelatin into a (1½-quart) mixing bowl. Add boiling water and stir to dissolve. Drain juice from pineapple. Stir ½ cup of pineapple juice into gelatin mixture. Cool. Cut each jelly roll into 3 slices. Line bottom and sides of a lightly oiled (1½-quart) loaf pan with slices. Whip chilled evaporated milk. When gelatin mixture is thickened to about the consistency of unbeaten egg white, beat with a rotary beater until mixture is smooth. Fold in whipped evaporated milk and drained pineapple. Spoon into loaf pan over jelly roll slices. Chill until firm.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

ON THE LINE

BY BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — Here's how one integration case made out. It has nothing to do with Little Rock, Virginia or Oklahoma. It has a happy ending, which is something of a rarity these days.

A year or so ago I received a letter from a Mrs. Edith Taylor of Waltham, Mass. Her husband had flown to Okinawa some time previously to take a construction job. The plan was for the happily married woman to follow when he had things settled out there. In time he wrote astounding news. En route to Okinawa he had obtained a Mexican divorce, then had married a Japanese girl named Aiko, had made out a new will in which he would leave the majority of his little estate to the former wife if she would raise, and educate, the two little girls he had had by Aiko. He was dying of cancer.

Mrs. Taylor took a deep, good-hearted breath and sent for the children. A correspondent who witnessed their tearful departure by plane for the states wrote me of the heartbreak of the young mother (who felt it was better for the children to be raised in America) and of her threats to do away with herself. Taylor was dead by now.

The letter from Mrs. Taylor related that she knew of the anguish of the girl, years her junior, who had succeeded her as Mrs. Taylor. Could I do anything about getting her a visa to come to the U.S.? Most of what I did was to turn the matter over to the Boston Record. Crack reporter Jean Cole was assigned to the job.

The children arrived and the elder of the two Mrs. Taylors made a wonderful home for them, supporting them by working for the Raytheon Corp. Then, through many combined efforts, the younger Mrs. Taylor was admitted to the U.S. Penniless, with only a few words of English, the Japanese girl was taken in and supported cheerfully by the other Mrs Taylor.

Then a long dissolve and no news. But now Jean Cole sends me a happy interim report. The Japanese Mrs. Taylor as a child had worked briefly for the Japanese Red Cross. The American Mrs. Taylor and friends obtained work for her in Waltham Hospital. She's a nurse's aide now, her English has improved immensely, she'll become a full-fledged nurse one of these days. Aiko works the 2 p.m. to midnight shift, hires the sitter for her little girls when the American Mrs. Taylor cannot be at home. She's been taken into everybody's heart.

Maria Taylor, 7, is a beautiful child, is the smartest girl in the second grade at Banks School. Helen, 5, enters kindergarten after Labor Day. They call their Okinawa mother "mummy." They have another wonderful name for the American Mrs. Taylor. They call her "mother."

Poets and lovers from time without reckoning have put the moon to work. Now it's the sun's turn. Curtiss - Wright and New York University announced Thursday the establishment of a solar research lab at Princeton, N.J. Its Sun Court includes a solar heated house, swimming pool, furnaces, batteries, solar stills (Ed. Note: How's that again, buster?), driers, cooking equipment, radios and solar food processing equipment.

The solar boys have figured that the amount of sunshine falling on one New York City acre in a year is the equivalent of the energy from 850 tons of coal valued at $8,500. An acre-year of sunshine in Reno equals 1,300 tons of coal, or $13,000. You'd need every penny of that in Reno, you understand.

From now on it will be a race between two determined fields of science. Which will be invented first, the ghastly Sun Bomb or the equally unnerving Sunburger?

What happened to all those Alaskans who told us two weeks ago they were going to vote against statehood? Well, they didn't. And now they've shouldered all the imposing burdens they were so recently complaining about: Operation of the Alaskan railroad, care and feeding of a governor, Lt. governor, 60 - seat Legislature, dozens of courts, plus harbors, roads, Eskimo benefits, etc. It was that etc. they were especially worried about. Most folks are.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(While Louella O. Parsons is in Hawaii her column will be written by Dorothy Manners)

HOLLYWOOD — Talk about surprises — Lilli Palmer, ex-wife of Rex Harrison, who was pretty well fed up with both marriage and movies when she departed these shores five years ago, returns to costar with Clark Gable and Carroll Baker in "But Not For Me!" Producers Bill Perlberg and George Seaton contacted Lilli in Munich and she agreed to report on the Paramount lot in mid-November.

The brunette Lilli hasn't been in the U.S.A., since 1953 when she starred with Rex on Broadway in "Bell, Book and Candle."

Since their divorce and her return to European films (principally in Germany) she has married Argentine actor Carlos Thompson. Although Rex's romance with Kay Kendall was much more publicized, Lilli and Carlos beat them to wedlock.

After slaying 'em for 90 minutes of his opening performance at the Greek theatre, Jerry Lewis let loose and flayed 'em as large groups of the audience started to walk out before he was finished. Kidding at first and then angry, Jerry yelled at the shuffling shadows, "stay where you are—please do me the courtesy of staying in your seats until I leave the stage. Please do it for ANY performer!"

So here we are back at the age-old question of show business—does the price of a ticket entitle the customer to the "privilege" of walking out during a show? My grandmother used to say, "what isn't polite, can't be right". And it's certainly neither thoughtful nor polite to quit a star who's knocking his brains and heart out putting on a great show as Jerry was doing.

The truth is — they weren't walking out on you, Jerry. You were great. It's just this absurd new thing of bringing on stabs at 10 p.m., when they should be on at 8:30. The spirit of the cash customers is willing — but the posterior gets paralyzed.

Went backstage with the Norman Taurogs, Lorena Mayer, the Charlie Corrells and Sybil Brand, to see Jerry after the show. His dressing room was crowded with pals — Shirley and Pat Boone, Jack Entratter, Gertie Neissen, Sammy Davis, Jr., Ella Fitzgerald, Sy Devore, and, of course, his pretty Patti among other sympathizers. He was all calmed down.

"I'm the biggest rooter in the world and still am for Los Angeles audiences," he told me. "But I remember how hot under the collar I got when I was in the audience here at the Danny Kaye and Jose Greco shows and people walked out. I made up my mind if it happened to me I was going to have my say. It's not a matter of who's right or wrong — it just hurts you where you live." And this guy lives in his heart.

Pat Boone, one of the innocent causes of the delay in Jerry's getting on (the fans swarmed all over him at intermission and couldn't be cleared out of the aisles) was plumb flabbergasted when one of the 'teen-agers fainted at his feet!

"I've heard about the Sinarta swooners and of kids fainting getting autographs — but it's the first time it ever happened to me," Pat said in a gee-whiz voice. "It scared me, but it scared Shirley more. The unbelievable part is that the other 'teen-agers just sort of stepped over her until she got some air and came to."

I like James Mason when he's being ornery. That suave British voice can't so deadly when he's a villain. Alfred Hitchcock must agree because it is Mason who will terrorize and chase Cary Grant and Eva Marie Saint all over the granite presidential faces on Mt. Rushmore in "North by Northwest." James plays the master espionage agent.

Hollywood in shorts:

Tony Perkins' dating of the oddly-named Tuesday Weld started in New York when both were on Broadway. It's continuing on the MGM lot, where she's lunched with him every day recently.

Rock Hudson left last night for San Francisco, and he'll commute to Napa Dalley when Henry King starts shooting "This Earth Is Mine."

Those two specialists in mystery-thrillers, Joan Harrison an Eric Ambler, a dinner duo at La Rue.

The McNultys have just about taken over the spotlight at the Cocoanut Grove. Ann Blyth (McNulty) opens Sept. 3, and her brother-in-law, Dennis Day (McNulty), comes in a month later.

Minta Durfee, widow of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, started her comedy bit in "Some Like It Hot" on the day of her 50th wedding anniversary to the late comic. She told Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon she's working on a story about Fatty and their life together.

Talked to Marilyn Maxwell, who has just opened at the Moulin Rouge after a successful stint in Las Vegas. Marilyn's all on the side of the clergy and the reformers about those nude shows being banned. "I love show business—but not when I have to follow a stripper on a program," she told me. The "line" at the Moulin Rouge is just nicely decollette.

Veteran Pat O'Malley's daughter, Mrs. Jim Moloney, welcomed a son Friday, and, of course, he gets an Irish name, Sean Michael. Offers from rival hotel chains have poured in on Hernando Courtright since his resignation, after years and years, as guiding light of the Beverly Hills Hotel. But this affable gentleman tells us he's taking life easy for the time being, at least 'til after the third little Courtright arrives.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Here's a peach recipe that won't require much cooking but will draw rave notices from the men-folk. It's called Peach Bavarian Cream:

Soak 2 tablespoons of gelatin in ½ cup of cold water for 5 minutes. Meanwhile mash one quart of fresh, sliced peaches with one cup sugar, rub through a sieve and simmer in its own juice for 5 minutes. Remove from the fire, add the gelatin and ¼ teaspoon salt and stir until the gelatin has dissolved. Chill, and when the mixture begins to thicken fold in one pint of whipped cream. Now place in a wet mold, let stand in a cool place until firm, and turn out on a serving platter.

Good Hamburgers And Home-Made Ketchup

Ever have trouble getting the cookout hamburger exactly the right size? Well, next time, place one of those wide mouth jar cap bands flat on a plate, put a wad of hamburger in center of band and pat it flat. Then, your 'burgers will fit an averaged sized bun.

But it takes more than shape and size to make a hamburger taste just right—for that you need good ketchup. We like ours on the hot side. If you prefer yours mild, leave out the hot pepper when you use this easy recipe. If your tomatoes are red-ripe with no green spots, the ketchup will be picture pretty.

Easy to Make Tomato Ketchup

4 quarts (about 8 pounds) tomatoes
1 pod red cayenne pepper
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons pickling spice (tied in piece of cloth)
1 tablespoon paprika
1 cup vinegar

Wash and drain tomatoes before coring and chopping. Chop pepper; discard seed. Cook tomatoes, pepper and onion until soft. Drain off juice (good to drink). Press vegetables through fine sieve to remove skins and seed. Mix all ingredients except vinegar and boil until very thick. Add vinegar and boil 5 to 10 minutes or until as thick as wanted. Taste and add more salt if wanted. Pour boiling hot ketchup to within ¼ inch of top of pint fruit jar. Put lid on jar; screw band tight.

Jelly Roll Cake

½ cup undiluted evaporated milk
1 package raspberry flavored gelatin
¾ cup boiling water
½ cup pineapple juice (drained from crushed pineapple)
1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple
1 package individual jelly rolls

Place undiluted evaporated milk into freezer tray. Chill until thick and small crystals begin to form. Put gelatin into a (1½-quart) mixing bowl. Add boiling water and stir to dissolve. Drain juice from pineapple. Stir ½ cup of pineapple juice into gelatin mixture. Cool. Cut each jelly roll into 3 slices. Line bottom and sides of a lightly oiled (1½-quart) loaf pan with slices. Whip chilled evaporated milk. When gelatin mixture is thickened to about the consistency of unbeaten egg white, beat with a rotary beater until mixture is smooth. Fold in whipped evaporated milk and drained pineapple. Spoon into loaf pan over jelly roll slices. Chill until firm.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

ON THE LINE

BY BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — Here's how one integration case made out. It has nothing to do with Little Rock, Virginia or Oklahoma. It has a happy ending, which is something of a rarity these days.

A year or so ago I received a letter from a Mrs. Edith Taylor of Waltham, Mass. Her husband had flown to Okinawa some time previously to take a construction job. The plan was for the happily married woman to follow when he had things settled out there. In time he wrote astounding news. En route to Okinawa he had obtained a Mexican divorce, then had married a Japanese girl named Aiko, had made out a new will in which he would leave the majority of his little estate to the former wife if she would raise, and educate, the two little girls he had had by Aiko. He was dying of cancer.

Mrs. Taylor took a deep, good-hearted breath and sent for the children. A correspondent who witnessed their tearful departure by plane for the states wrote me of the heartbreak of the young mother (who felt it was better for the children to be raised in America) and of her threats to do away with herself. Taylor was dead by now.

The letter from Mrs. Taylor related that she knew of the anguish of the girl, years her junior, who had succeeded her as Mrs. Taylor. Could I do anything about getting her a visa to come to the U.S.? Most of what I did was to turn the matter over to the Boston Record. Crack reporter Jean Cole was assigned to the job.

The children arrived and the elder of the two Mrs. Taylors made a wonderful home for them, supporting them by working for the Raytheon Corp. Then, through many combined efforts, the younger Mrs. Taylor was admitted to the U.S. Penniless, with only a few words of English, the Japanese girl was taken in and supported cheerfully by the other Mrs Taylor.

Then a long dissolve and no news. But now Jean Cole sends me a happy interim report. The Japanese Mrs. Taylor as a child had worked briefly for the Japanese Red Cross. The American Mrs. Taylor and friends obtained work for her in Waltham Hospital. She's a nurse's aide now, her English has improved immensely, she'll become a full-fledged nurse one of these days. Aiko works the 2 p.m. to midnight shift, hires the sitter for her little girls when the American Mrs. Taylor cannot be at home. She's been taken into everybody's heart.

Maria Taylor, 7, is a beautiful child, is the smartest girl in the second grade at Banks School. Helen, 5, enters kindergarten after Labor Day. They call their Okinawa mother "mummy." They have another wonderful name for the American Mrs. Taylor. They call her "mother."

Poets and lovers from time without reckoning have put the moon to work. Now it's the sun's turn. Curtiss - Wright and New York University announced Thursday the establishment of a solar research lab at Princeton, N.J. Its Sun Court includes a solar heated house, swimming pool, furnaces, batteries, solar stills (Ed. Note: How's that again, buster?), driers, cooking equipment, radios and solar food processing equipment.

The solar boys have figured that the amount of sunshine falling on one New York City acre in a year is the equivalent of the energy from 850 tons of coal valued at $8,500. An acre-year of sunshine in Reno equals 1,300 tons of coal, or $13,000. You'd need every penny of that in Reno, you understand.

From now on it will be a race between two determined fields of science. Which will be invented first, the ghastly Sun Bomb or the equally unnerving Sunburger?

What happened to all those Alaskans who told us two weeks ago they were going to vote against statehood? Well, they didn't. And now they've shouldered all the imposing burdens they were so recently complaining about: Operation of the Alaskan railroad, care and feeding of a governor, Lt. governor, 60 - seat Legislature, dozens of courts, plus harbors, roads, Eskimo benefits, etc. It was that etc. they were especially worried about. Most folks are.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(While Louella O. Parsons is in Hawaii her column will be written by Dorothy Manners)

HOLLYWOOD — Talk about surprises — Lilli Palmer, ex-wife of Rex Harrison, who was pretty well fed up with both marriage and movies when she departed these shores five years ago, returns to costar with Clark Gable and Carroll Baker in "But Not For Me!" Producers Bill Perlberg and George Seaton contacted Lilli in Munich and she agreed to report on the Paramount lot in mid-November.

The brunette Lilli hasn't been in the U.S.A., since 1953 when she starred with Rex on Broadway in "Bell, Book and Candle."

Since their divorce and her return to European films (principally in Germany) she has married Argentine actor Carlos Thompson. Although Rex's romance with Kay Kendall was much more publicized, Lilli and Carlos beat them to wedlock.

After slaying 'em for 90 minutes of his opening performance at the Greek theatre, Jerry Lewis let loose and flayed 'em as large groups of the audience started to walk out before he was finished. Kidding at first and then angry, Jerry yelled at the shuffling shadows, "stay where you are—please do me the courtesy of staying in your seats until I leave the stage. Please do it for ANY performer!"

So here we are back at the age-old question of show business—does the price of a ticket entitle the customer to the "privilege" of walking out during a show? My grandmother used to say, "what isn't polite, can't be right". And it's certainly neither thoughtful nor polite to quit a star who's knocking his brains and heart out putting on a great show as Jerry was doing.

The truth is — they weren't walking out on you, Jerry. You were great. It's just this absurd new thing of bringing on stabs at 10 p.m., when they should be on at 8:30. The spirit of the cash customers is willing — but the posterior gets paralyzed.

Went backstage with the Norman Taurogs, Lorena Mayer, the Charlie Corrells and Sybil Brand, to see Jerry after the show. His dressing room was crowded with pals — Shirley and Pat Boone, Jack Entratter, Gertie Neissen, Sammy Davis, Jr., Ella Fitzgerald, Sy Devore, and, of course, his pretty Patti among other sympathizers. He was all calmed down.

"I'm the biggest rooter in the world and still am for Los Angeles audiences," he told me. "But I remember how hot under the collar I got when I was in the audience here at the Danny Kaye and Jose Greco shows and people walked out. I made up my mind if it happened to me I was going to have my say. It's not a matter of who's right or wrong — it just hurts you where you live." And this guy lives in his heart.

Pat Boone, one of the innocent causes of the delay in Jerry's getting on (the fans swarmed all over him at intermission and couldn't be cleared out of the aisles) was plumb flabbergasted when one of the 'teen-agers fainted at his feet!

"I've heard about the Sinarta swooners and of kids fainting getting autographs — but it's the first time it ever happened to me," Pat said in a gee-whiz voice. "It scared me, but it scared Shirley more. The unbelievable part is that the other 'teen-agers just sort of stepped over her until she got some air and came to."

I like James Mason when he's being ornery. That suave British voice can't so deadly when he's a villain. Alfred Hitchcock must agree because it is Mason who will terrorize and chase Cary Grant and Eva Marie Saint all over the granite presidential faces on Mt. Rushmore in "North by Northwest." James plays the master espionage agent.

Hollywood in shorts:

Tony Perkins' dating of the oddly-named Tuesday Weld started in New York when both were on Broadway. It's continuing on the MGM lot, where she's lunched with him every day recently.

Rock Hudson left last night for San Francisco, and he'll commute to Napa Dalley when Henry King starts shooting "This Earth Is Mine."

Those two specialists in mystery-thrillers, Joan Harrison an Eric Ambler, a dinner duo at La Rue.

The McNultys have just about taken over the spotlight at the Cocoanut Grove. Ann Blyth (McNulty) opens Sept. 3, and her brother-in-law, Dennis Day (McNulty), comes in a month later.

Minta Durfee, widow of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, started her comedy bit in "Some Like It Hot" on the day of her 50th wedding anniversary to the late comic. She told Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon she's vorking on a story about Fatty and their life together.

Talked to Marilyn Maxwell, who has just opened at the Moulin Rouge after a successful stint in Las Vegas. Marilyn's all on the side of the clergy and the reformers about those nude shows being banned. "I love show business—but not when I have to follow a stripper on a program," she told me. The "line" at the Moulin Rouge is just nicely decollette.

Veteran Pat O'Malley's daughter, Mrs. Jim Moloney, welcomed a son Friday, and, of course, he gets an Irish name, Sean Michael. Offers from rival hotel chains have poured in on Hernando Courtright since his resignation, after years and years, as guiding light of the Beverly Hills Hotel. But this affable gentleman tells us he's taking life easy for the time being, at least 'til after the third little Courtright arrives.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The bidding:

1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Heart 10.

Today's hand possesses great charm for those addicted to finessing in that it offers the opportunity for a finesse in each of declarer's three suits. But to the cautious declarer an interesting problem is presented—which finesse to choose and which to abandon.

South conducted the bidding with considerable vigor. He insisted on reaching game by his jump shift rebid and then gave a delayed club raise over partner's three no trump sign off. North now returned to four spades feeling sure that his partner could not play him for more than two trumps inasmuch as he failed to give a preference earlier. Hoping that the club suit would take care of his side losers, South leaped to six spades.

The opening heart lead was covered by the jack and queen and ruffed. Declarer was faced with the choice of finessing for the queen of spades or the queen of spades on a finesse would in itself, not solve declarer's problems for he would still have numerous minor suit losers to be concerned with.

But if the jack of clubs could be finessed, assuming that suit broke reasonably, most of declarer's troubles would be over for his diamond losers could be disposed of on dummy's club suit and he could now afford to lose a trump trick.

Declarer decided to play the ace of spades and then the king. Remember that while with eight cards the finesse is superior to the play for the drop, nevertheless the chance of dropping a doubleton queen is not very remote. Furthermore if spades are finessed, declarer will be unable to finesse clubs without blocking the suit.

When the queen of spades did not fall, declarer led a low club to the jack. When this held he gave West his trump trick and was able to shed his losing diamonds on dummy's fourth and fifth clubs.

Chiffon Pie Is Perfect Treat For Any Occasion

This luscious lemon pie in a chocolate cooky crumb crust is perfect for entertaining, as the no-cook, no-fail filling is made in minutes with lemon chiffon pie filling mix. The tangy fruit flavor, the fluffy chiffon-like texture and rich yellow color make it a cool-looking, cool-tasting treat for this time of year.

Lemon Chiffon Pie

1 package chiffon pie filling
½ cup boiling water
½ cup very cold water
⅓ cup sugar
1 cooled baked 8-or-9-inch chocolate cooky crumb crust

Place mix in a large deep mixing bowl. Add boiling water and mix thoroughly. Add very cold water and beat vigorously with rotary beater or at highest speed of electric mixer until mixture is very foamy — takes about 1 minute. Add sugar and beat until filling stands in peaks — takes 1 to 3 minutes. Pour into pie shell. Chill until set, about 2 hours. Serve plain or garnish with a sprinkle of cooky crumbs or whipped cream, if desired.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Heart 10.

Today's hand possesses great charm for those addicted to finessing in that it offers the opportunity for a finesse in each of declarer's three suits. But to the cautious declarer an interesting problem is presented—which finesse to choose and which to abandon.

South conducted the bidding with considerable vigor. He insisted on reaching game by his jump shift rebid and then gave a delayed club raise over partner's three no trump sign off. North now returned to four spades feeling sure that his partner could not play him for more than two trumps inasmuch as he failed to give a preference earlier. Hoping that the club suit would take care of his side losers, South leaped to six spades.

The opening heart lead was covered by the jack and queen and ruffed. Declarer was faced with the choice of finessing for the queen of spades or the queen of spades on a finesse would in itself, not solve declarer's problems for he would still have numerous minor suit losers to be concerned with.

But if the jack of clubs could be finessed, assuming that suit broke reasonably, most of declarer's troubles would be over for his diamond losers could be disposed of on dummy's club suit and he could now afford to lose a trump trick.

Declarer decided to play the ace of spades and then the king. Remember that while with eight cards the finesse is superior to the play for the drop, nevertheless the chance of dropping a doubleton queen is not very remote. Furthermore if spades are finessed, declarer will be unable to finesse clubs without blocking the suit.

When the queen of spades did not fall, declarer led a low club to the jack. When this held he gave West his trump trick and was able to shed his losing diamonds on dummy's fourth and fifth clubs.

Stock Market Declines On Reduced Turnover

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks turned lower on sharply reduced turnover — the result of normal holiday caution and increased concern over Far East tensions as the Communists threatened a landing on Quemoy.

The Formosa difficulties, however, were seen as more an excuse than a reason for selling. Biggest declines appeared in those issues which paced the advance that all but lifted the list to new highs on Wednesday.

Metals were hit as the copper price softened. Steels, oils, chemicals all had declines running to a point or more. Rails were easier and utilities had several soft spots.

Volume lightened to 2,540,000 shares for the session from 3,250,000 on Wednesday.

Curtis Publishing, up sharply on Wednesday as Saturday Evening Post announced it will accept liquor advertising, added another fraction on the day's heaviest turnover. Loew's, up ⅞ point, and Union Oil of California, 1¼ higher, followed in the active list.

There were other upside features. Westinghouse Electric ran up over a point in late activity. Artloom Carpet, Pet Milk, George Roper, Addressograph, Republic Aviation, Nopco Chemical rose around a point to 2 points.

Chicago Grains

Wheat closed up 1 to 1⅜ cents; corn (old) up 1½ to 2⅜ cents; (new) up 1½ to 1¾ cents; oats off ⅛ to up ¼ cent; rye up 1 to 2⅝ cents; soy beans up 2 to 2⅝ cents.

The primary influencing factor in Thursday's upturn was the Far East situation and reports that Washington has taken steps to strengthen the 7th Fleet which is in Formosan waters.

There was some commercial buying in wheat early in the day and also some commission house demand. Selling followed the advance but prices were not affected. Prices advanced again around mid-day.

A considerable amount of short covering in corn was attributed to the Far East situation. There was fair cash demand for the December contract and cash houses bought September while commission houses sold. The weather was mostly favorable but the corn crop of northern Iowa which is behind schedule caused some concern.

The early advance in oats gave way in mixed trade and declined on selling by local longs. Cash houses bought the September contract.

In soybeans, commission houses bought due to the Far East tension and some active local traders purchased considerable amounts of November beans. The soybean oil market was higher.

Eggplant Espagnol

For a savory casserole dish, combine diced eggplant with tomatoes, onions and herbs, the Spanish way. First pour 2 tablespoons of Spanish olive oil in the casserole, tipping the baking dish so that the oil spreads all over the surface. Then add 1 medium eggplant, diced (not peeled), 3 or 4 tomatoes, peeled then chopped, 1 large onion, sliced, 1 garlic clove, crushed, 1 green pepper, diced, and ¾ teaspoon salt. Mix well together, add ¼ cup Spanish olive oil, and top with seasoned cracker or bread crumbs. The generous amount of olive oil gives the eggplant richer, meatier flavor. Bake uncovered at 350° for half an hour.

Stock Market Declines On Reduced Turnover

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks turned lower on sharply reduced turnover — the result of normal holiday caution and increased concern over Far East tensions as the Communists threatened a landing on Quemoy.

The Formosa difficulties, however, were seen as more an excuse than a reason for selling. Biggest declines appeared in those issues which paced the advance that all but lifted the list to new highs on Wednesday.

Metals were hit as the copper price softened. Steels, oils, chemicals all had declines running to a point or more. Rails were easier and utilities had several soft spots.

Volume lightened to 2,540,000 shares for the session from 3,250,000 on Wednesday.

Curtis Publishing, up sharply on Wednesday as Saturday Evening Post announced it will accept liquor advertising, added another fraction on the day's heaviest turnover. Loew's, up ⅞ point, and Union Oil of California, 1¼ higher, followed in the active list.

There were other upside features. Westinghouse Electric ran up over a point in late activity. Artloom Carpet, Pet Milk, George Roper, Addressograph, Republic Aviation, Nopco Chemical rose around a point to 2 points.

Chicago Grains

Wheat closed up 1 to 1⅜ cents; corn (old) up 1½ to 2⅜ cents; (new) up 1½ to 1¾ cents; oats off ⅛ to up ¼ cent; rye up 1 to 2⅜ cents; soy beans up 2 to 2⅝ cents.

The primary influencing factor in Thursday's upturn was the Far East situation and reports that Washington has taken steps to strengthen the 7th Fleet which is in Formosan waters.

There was some commercial buying in wheat early in the day and also some commission house demand. Selling followed the advance but prices were not affected. Prices advanced again around mid-day.

A considerable amount of short covering in corn was attributed to the Far East situation. There was fair cash demand for the December contract and cash houses bought September while commission houses sold. The weather was mostly favorable but the corn crop of northern Iowa which is behind schedule caused some concern.

The early advance in oats gave way in mixed trade and declined on selling by local longs. Cash houses bought the September contract.

In soybeans, commission houses bought due to the Far East tension and some active local traders purchased considerable amounts of November beans. The soybean oil market was higher.

Eggplant Espagnol

For a savory casserole dish, combine diced eggplant with tomatoes, onions and herbs, the Spanish way. First pour 2 tablespoons of Spanish olive oil in the casserole, tipping the baking dish so that the oil spreads all over the surface. Then add 1 medium eggplant, diced (not peeled), 3 or 4 tomatoes, peeled then chopped, 1 large onion, sliced, 1 garlic clove, crushed, 1 green pepper, diced, and ¾ teaspoon salt. Mix well together, add ¼ cup Spanish olive oil, and top with seasoned cracker or bread crumbs. The generous amount of olive oil gives the eggplant richer, meatier flavor. Bake uncovered at 350° for half an hour.

W.Va. Park Attendance Climbs To New Record

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A record 2,711,397 persons visited West Virginia state parks and forests during the past fiscal year, the State Conservation Commission announced Thursday.

Attendance at West Virginia's nine state forests and 20 parks climbed almost 400,000 over the 1956-57 fiscal year, Parks Chief Kermit McKeever said. The total last year included 1,969,094 at state parks and 742,303 visitors at the state forests.

Hawks Nest State Park again led all other recreation spots operated by the commission, with a total of 414,496 visitors compared with 327,805, the year before. Coopers Rock State Forest lead the forests with 399,150 visitors, an increase of more than 37,000 over 1956-57.

McKeever said recreational facilities including swimming pools at state parks and forests will remain open throughout the Labor Day weekend. Most cabins will close Oct. 30, but winterized cabins at Watoga, Cacapon, Lost River and Blackwater Falls State Parks will remain open year-round as will lodges at Cacapon, Blackwater Falls and Mont Chateau State Parks.

Cabins at Greenbrier and Cabwaylingo state forests and those at Babcock and Holly River State Parks will remain open to hunters and visitors through Nov. 1, McKeever said. Cabins at Seneca and Kumbrabow state forests and those at Droop Mountain State Park will be available through the deer season ending Dec. 6.

New Execution Date Set For Burkhamer

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—A new execution date of Oct. 28 was set Thursday for confessed killer James Lee Burkhamer although he has filed an appeal with the U. S. Supreme Court.

Harrison County Circuit Judge Arlos J. Harbert overruled objections by defense attorneys and set the new date for the electrocution at Moundsville Penitentiary following two hours of arguments.

Prosecutor Robert Ziegler maintained that Harbert was within his right to schedule the execution because the Supreme Court had not acted on the appeal.

Burkhamer originally was sentenced by Harbert to be executed last Feb. 14 for the rape - slaying on May 5, 1957, of 11-year-old Charlene Vilain. He had pleaded guilty to waylaying the child as she walked home along an alley from a grocery store.

Eugene Oldaker's Conviction Affirmed

Eugene Oldaker, this city, lost his appeal when his case was heard in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday afternoon by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris but the man won at least temporary freedom.

Magistrate Morris Baron convicted Oldaker August 20 of being an habitual drunkard and sentenced him to six months in the House of Correction. He appealed.

Yesterday Judge Harris found Oldaker guilty despite the man's not guilty plea, but suspended a six-month sentence in the House of Correction for one year provided Oldaker leaves town immediately.

Magistrate Suspends Larceny Sentence

Magistrate Morris Baron imposed and then suspended a $25 fine and 30-day jail sentence and placed Dolly on probation for six months.

The charge was preferred by city police, who said Dolly and a companion, Gerald Burkett, Elm Street, took the lanterns from a trench in Shade's Lane Wednesday night.

The magistrate dismissed the charge against Burkett.

Mr. Tucker and his wife, Dorothy C. Tucker, have sold their Camden Avenue home to Seth W. Harter and Katharine G. Harter, according to a deed filed for record yesterday in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

New 'Conservatives' And Old 'Liberals'

A new conservative pressure group called Americans for Constitutional Action has been formed. It is no coincidence that the men forming this group gave it a name that sounds quite like a liberal organization already in existence, Americans for Democratic Action.

In fact in its initial announcement the ACA termed itself a fourth force "to nullify the one-sided advantage which Americans for Democratic Action and its associated liberal groups, operating as a third force, have given parties and candidates of the left in our state and national elections."

Admiral Ben Moreell (ret.) of Pittsburgh, board chairman of Jones and Laughlin Steel Co., is board chairman of ACA. Other trustees include: Vice Chairman Henning W. Prentis Jr., board chairman of Armstrong Cork Co.; treasurer Charles Edison, former Democratic governor of New Jersey; former Rep. Ed. Gossett (D-Tex.), and Dr. Walter D. Martin, former president of the American Medical Association.

The ACA lists among its principles "adherence to government and economic concepts which will protect the principles of sound money, effective economy, taxation for revenue only and to operate our government within the framework of a balanced budget."

With almost all politics now resolving itself into "conservatism" vs. "liberalism," all that remains is for somebody to come up with a workable and understandable definition of each. We used to take it for granted. Now, more often than not, we wonder.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Harriman–Rockefeller

The 1930s produced a special breed of millionaire's son—the man not only with the social conscience but also with the guilt complex. These young people were at college during the Depression years, or were still under the influences of the exciting movements which marked that period. They wanted to do the right thing. They witnessed the poverty of those who lost their money as well as those who never had had any. Even if born Republican, they found themselves happiest in the New Deal which gave them an outlet for serving that one-third of a nation which the rich felt that their ancestors had robbed.

Averell Harriman is the son of E. H. Harriman who made an enormous fortune building Western railroads. The elder Harriman was a particularly astute person who came out of the ranks and had neither a grandfather nor a father to leave him any wealth. What he had was his because, in accordance with the ways of his day, he earned it.

Averell Harriman started life as a Republican but entered the New Deal as a liberal. Franklin D. Roosevelt was attracted to him as Theodore Roosevelt was repelled by his father. He was given a number of important posts in the Roosevelt Administration, the most important being his ambassadorship to Moscow during the Teheran and Yalta Conferences.

He is well-informed on all phases of the Russian question, although like so many New Dealers he is impelled to defend Roosevelt's errors as politically necessary, which while it may be sound politics is unsound morals.

Harriman has served as Governor of New York State for one term and is now up for re-election. His career as Governor, while not startling, was nevertheless distinguished for competence. Not a great orator, Harriman likes to get around, making an unusually large number of speeches.

Nelson Rockefeller is one of the five grandsons of John D. Rockefeller who founded the Standard Oil fortune which was, at one time, one of the largest in the world. Each of the five grandsons shows particular qualities, Nelson's being politics and public service.

Like Harriman, he joined the New Deal under Franklin D. Roosevelt and together with Dr. Stanley High, authored the "Good Neighbor Policy" for Latin America. The failures of this policy cannot be attributed to Rockefeller because as long as Roosevelt and later Truman adhered to the "Europe First" policy, Latin America had to take third place after Europe and Asia and that has proved to be most unfortunate for the United States. The "Good Neighbor Policy" might have saved this country from the costly errors which have now laid Latin America open to Soviet penetration.

Nelson Rockefeller served in the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower Administrations. He might have continued accepting appointive positions but he has chosen to risk placing himself before the people for election which is tough under any circumstances. Habituated to research and polls and stuff like that, Rockefeller must have data which incline him to believe that he has a good chance of election.

Averell Harriman and Nelson Rockefeller have had the same associations in and out of politics. They are socially of the same element. They have both been influenced in their political careers by Harry Hopkins and Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, who has been Nelson Rockefeller's political mentor. They have both devoted their enormous fortunes to public life.

The campaign will therefore be very interesting because what will they say against each other? Harriman's record as Governor has been good; Rockefeller's record as a public servant will stand scrutiny. This can be a campaign on the issues without too much personal vituperation, although there is no telling what may happen in campaigns.

It is known that the Republicans plan to make the Democratic leadership of Carmine DeSapio a major issue. It is difficult to see how they can succeed with that because Carmine DeSapio has never been associated with those Italians who are often referred to as the Mafia. Nor can it be said that Harriman has been under DeSapio's control, for Harriman brought with him to Albany many New Dealers, some of them of a leftist persuasion. Nevertheless, it will be interesting to see what the Republicans make of all this. A campaign against DeSapio would not be a campaign against Harriman.

Wealth No Longer A Hindrance To Candidates

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There was a time in American politics when a rich man found his wealth a handicap to candidacy for high office. But it isn't true today. In New York State, for example, Nelson A. Rockefeller has just won the Republican nomination for Governor and will oppose Averell Harriman, Democrat. Both come from wealthy families.

Oddly enough, the advantages of the rich man as a candidate are now pointed to as being distinctly of benefit to the electorate. This follows the reasoning of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, who once wrote a magazine article in which he said that, unless a man had accumulated an estate of $100,000—so that his income would make him independent of his salary—he would not make as successful a public servant as one who possessed that particular advantage.

The theory is that the rich man will resist temptations in the performance of his public office, because he has already accumulated enough wealth that he doesn't have to think of what he will do once he leaves office. Hence his point of view is likely to be more closely attuned to the public welfare.

Men of wealth have often entered into politics, but in recent years the men of riches in public life have been largely those who inherited wealth. There is no doubt that money-making itself has no lure for Mr. Rockefeller or for Governor Harriman. They find a greater satisfaction in endeavoring to perform a public service for their fellow men.

More interesting perhaps than the wealth of those two gubernatorial candidates is their ancestry. Governor Harriman's father, the late E. H. Harriman, was the railroad king of America and a national and international figure in finance in the 1890s and early 1900s. Although he never ran for or held public office, he was highly influential in the Republican Party during the administrations of McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt. He openly boasted that he could buy a sufficient number of Senators and Congressmen or state legislators to protect his interests, and, when necessary, could buy the judiciary.

Mr. Harriman was among those later to be denounced by President Roosevelt as "malefactors of great wealth." In 1904, even though Mr. Harriman mistrusted Mr. Roosevelt as the party nominee, the railroad magnate contributed heavily to the Republican Presidential campaign. In an effort to win Mr. Harriman's financial support, Mr. Roosevelt wrote a letter that became public in a sensation of those days. In it the President had, in effect, asked Mr. Harriman to forget the attacks of the past because, as he said to Mr. Harriman, "you and I are practical men."

The grandfather of Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller on his mother's side was the noted Senator from Rhode Island, Nelson Aldrich, longtime Republican leader and "boss" of the Senate. He was conspicuous as sponsor of monetary legisation, and headed the National Monetary Commission whose report to Congress in 1912 was embodied in modified form in a law which established the present Federal Reserve System. Senator Aldrich was one of the ablest Congressional leaders in history, roundly denounced by the "progressive" Republicans as a "tyrant" and "despot" for his tactics in getting legislation through the Senate.

On his father's side, Nelson Rockefeller's grandfather amassed through an oil monopoly later broken up under the antitrust laws—perhaps the largest fortune of those times. Nearly all of it was subsequently distributed in one form or another to charity and philanthropic foundations by Nelson's father, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The grandson of Senator Aldrich inherited a natural interest in public affairs. Only 50 years old, Mr. Rockefeller has spent most of his adult years in public service. He was co-ordinator of inter-American affairs under the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and then was appointed Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American affairs. He served under President Truman as chairman of the advisory board on the "Point Four" program. In the Eisenhower Administration, he has been Under-Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and special assistant to the President on foreign policy. He has served also on commissions to study reorganization of the government and of the Defense Department.

Governor Harriman left the Republican Party in 1928 and joined the "New Deal" in 1934 as an administrative officer of NRA. He went on to serve Presidents Roosevelt and Truman as Ambassador to Great Britain, Ambassador to the Soviet Union, Secretary of Commerce, foreign-policy adviser and foreign-aid director.

Certainly this campaign will be watched by the nation not only because New York is the country's most populous state, but because of the well known personalities who are the top contenders.

Wealth by itself will have in the future less and less bearing on the choice of candidates for public office. Integrity is all-important, irrespective of riches. People are mostly interested in the point of view of the candidates and what they will do if elected.

Worm Parasites Thrive On Poor Hygiene

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Three million Americans harbor intestinal worms. One infected persons may be a friend or neighbor but you never will know it because it is not a condition that people talk about.

The ascaris is one of the most common worms, especially in the south and along the Mississippi valley. The critter is light colored, looks like an earthworm, and is 16 to 18 inches long. The mature female may contain 27 million eggs and passes 200,000 into the intestine of the host daily. These escape to the outside and it is surprising that anybody escapes, especially in areas wnere sanitation is inadequate and poor personal hygiene abounds.

The eggs reach newcomers by means of contaminated hands, vegetables, or water. The ova are swallowed and hatch into larvae on reaching the intestine of the new host but the little fellows travel extensively before maturing. They burrow through the intestineal wall and enter veins that take them to the lungs.

Larvae that reaches the throat are re-swallowed and are now ready for matrimony and adult living in the intestines.

Worms produce a variety of symptoms such as nausea, vomiting, fever, and constipation. Colic and headache are frequent complaints. Occasionally, intestinal obstruction occurs when large numbers clump together. Some of the parasites wander far afield and are found in the gall bladder, liver, lungs, nose, ears, and even the eyes.

The condition is diagnosed by finding the eggs in the stool. Occasionally the worms are detected by X-ray, especially when barium is used to visualize the intestinal tract. The parasites swallow some of the barium and their intestines show up under X-ray in much the same way as the intestines of their host. The barium-filled worms look like pieces of white string.

Good remedies, such as piperazine, are available. The large majority of patients are cured by a single course of treatment.

TOMORROW: Help for hay fever.

A MINUS READING

V. M. writes: An overweight friend of mine has a minus 18 metabolism and her doctor is giving her thyroid tablets to nep her up and take off weight. I'm puzzled about this because I have the same reading but am slim and highstrung. Can you explain?

REPLY

A minus 18 reading does not necessarily indicate a thyroid deficiency. Most under par persons have low blood pressure, cold hands and feet, and low blood pressure and metabolism. Thyroid extract is not the answer to their problem.

SPECIALIST

H. T. writes: How many types of medical specialists are there?

REPLY

The Advisory Board for Medican Specialists lists 19, ranging from anesthetists to urologists. In addition, there are subspecialties. If this era of specialization continues, we may have physicians who will specialize in diseases of the left ear lobe or in the twinkle of an eye.

HEMORRHOIDS

L. P. writes: Do piles have to be operated on if they are causing no trouble?

REPLY

No, but surgery will solve the problem. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hemorrhoids.

GERMS ABOUT US

R. D. writes: Can disease germs of any kind live on objects such as furniture, books, or clothing for an indefinite period?

REPLY

Yes, and a few remain alive in a dormant stage for years.

HIGH PRESSURE IN CHILD

L. F. writes: What would cause hypertension in a 13 year old boy? He has terrific headaches from this disorder.

REPLY

Kidney disease is the most common cause. He may have so-called malignant hypertension, a hereditary disorder affecting the vascular system.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

James Thurber is forever remembering wonderful stories about the late Harold Ross, founder and editor of the "New Yorker." Thurber recalls the day Dorothy Parker labelled Ross "a professional lunatic." Russell Maloney noted that "Ross considered perfection his personal property, like his hat or his watch." One editor complained to Ross, "Every week you holler that the new issue doesn't contain a single laugh." Snarled Ross, "This week there are fewer than ever!"

Editor Ross once worried that the name of plump, ubiquitous Alexander Woollcott was appearing too frequently in the "New Yorker." "I don't want to see that name in our pages again for six months at least," he thundered. The very next week however, a Woollcott anecdote was turned in that was just too good to kill. "I've got it," exulted Ross. "We'll misspell him!" One "l" was duly omitted from Woollcott's name, with a resultant cry of protest from Mr. W that made Ross happy for days.

Sen. Morse Kept Supreme Court From Being Rebuffed By Congress

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, now meeting in emergency session, probably doesn't know that it was the threat of a filibuster which saved the nine Justices from being rebuffed by Congress. The public also does not know how filibusters are born.

When Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon appeared on the Senate floor on Saturday night just before adjournment, he wore a red rose. His colleagues knew that this was the signal that he was ready to talk various bills to death.

Noting the rose, lanky Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, leaned over and asked Morse what was up.

"Lyndon," warned the Oregon liberal who has one of the longest talkathon records in history, "you're not going to get out of here until Wednesday. I have no intention of letting this Congress adjourn with its last acts an expression of lack of confidence in the Supreme Court."

Morse was referring to the Mallory Bill aimed at overruling a Court of Appeals decision — affirmed by the Supreme Court — requiring police to arraign prisoners without delay. Morse also referred to a passport bill urged by John Foster Dulles, restoring State Department power, previously removed by the courts, to ban passports to any American.

Earlier in the day two backstage incidents had occurred which didn't leak out to the papers. William B. Macomber, assistant to Dulles, had called on Morse and asked him to remove his earlier objection to the passport bill.

"You've got a lot of guts," replied the fiery Oregonian. "Go back to Secretary Dulles and tell him that Wayne Morse will be talking against that bill until Wednesday. I feel awfully good. I've been out on the farm and I'm in good shape. I'm a little hoarse, but I'll be able to talk until Wednesday."

Morse was not kidding. He had spent part of the week putting his Red Devon cattle and prize roosters in the Gaithersburg Fair, where he won top honors. Macomber took one look at Morse's wiry physique and reported back to Dulles that the passport bill was as good as dead.

Carroll's Irish

About the same time, Sen. John Carroll of Colorado conferred with Morse. He and his fellow Democrat, Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, had gone into conference with the House of Representatives to iron out differences regarding the Mallory Bill. O'Mahoney held the proxies of Illinois' Dirksen and Mississippi's Eastland in his pocket. Result: The House wrote new wording into the bill hamstringing the Supreme Court's ruling. Sen. Carroll refused to sign. Disappointed at the way O'Mahoney had surrendered, he came to Morse and they agreed to filibuster.

Later Carroll came back to Morse, reported that the "soft-core" Senate liberals urged him not to fight.

"I happen to have been here fourteen years," chided the Oregonian. "I'm used to such appeasement. When you talk to Church (Idaho) or Clark (Penna.) that's what you get. But I can tell you that the only thing the Senate leaders understand is brute force — the brute force of time. We have to whip 'em with time. You've been softsoaped by the phony liberals who don't want to fight. Don't try to sell me their kind of malarkey. Are you going to fight or not?"

Carroll is a good fighter anyway, but this got his Irish up. He agreed to give two speeches, alternating with Morse, to keep the Senate in session for at least two days. Sen. Tom Hennings of Missouri, another Democrat, also agreed to give a speech, while Javits, Republican, former Attorney General of New York, came up with an important legal gimmick.

"Wayne," he said, "we can object to this House wordage under Rule 27, which forbids the introduction of new evidence in a conference report. We can make a point of order."

Carroll agreed to make the point of order, and the leaders were notified that objection would be made.

By this time it was 1:50 a. m. The Senate was grinding slowly, sleepily, toward the 4:11 a. m. hour when it finally adjourned. Senators had been listening to the pros and cons of Chicago's sewage system and its need for more Lake Michigan water. Sen. Proxmire of Wisconsin was determined that no more water leave the harbors of Milwaukee, Green Bay, and Sheboygan. The opposition still had the votes to pass the Mallory Bill, but a quorum was dwindling. Many Senators, up for re-election, were leaving town.

Harassed Lyndon Johnson came over to Morse and Carroll. "We're going to accept your point of order," he said, "you've won. We couldn't get a quorum here at 10 a. m."

That's how filibusters are staged — and sometimes prevented. And that was how the Supreme Court finally survived the attacks of the 85th Congress.

Mail Bag

H. A. B., St. Paul — The speech in which Senator Thye of Minnesota extolled Secretary of Agriculture Benson as a supporter of 100 per cent parity prices was delivered January 21, 1953, on Page 485 of the Congressional Record as follows: "I am confident that Mr. Benson will work for an agricultural program that will provide 100 per cent parity for the farmer. . . . I am confident that Mr. Benson's general philosophy and fairness are such that he will endeavor to establish for the producers of our land 100 per cent of parity in terms of their income and their share in the national economy. . . . In listening to the interrogation of Mr. Benson at the Committee on Agriculture, I was satisfied that he came out not only as an able student of agriculture but also as one who has integrity and sincerity, and as one who will endeavor with all his might — which is very great — to develop and carry on a farm program which will provide for 100 per cent parity rather than 90 per cent parity." This is the speech which Senator Thye claims is unfair to have Congressman McCarthy dig up and quote in his re-election campaign.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

It is possible to understand teen-agers if you know the words. A few years ago, I learned that all references to me were accompanied by a nod in my direction and the word "Square." Sometimes it was accomplished silently by holding the fingers of both hands together to form a hollow rectangle. Now I have a glossary.

Good Housekeeping has published a little article in the current issue called "Hot Rod Terms for Teen-age Girls." I'm hardly a teen-age girl, but I read it anyway and it is beautiful. After this, when Gayle comes in with her friends and raids the refrigerator and sits munching cookies with them, I can listen without having a dread feeling that I am lost in Mau-Mau country.

A hot rod, of course, is a stripped-down car. It is also called, I learn, a bomb, a draggin' wagon and a screamer. A convertible is a rag top. A sleeper is an innocent-looking souped-up car. Chopping is what you do to the windshield posts to lower the roof. Ironically, it is also what daddy does to you when he finds out.

Tires are called skids or hides. White walls are called snowballs. Hub caps are spinners and flippers. A continental kit is a spare tire. Chrome ornaments are goodies. Too much chrome is referred to as spaghetti. The engine is called The Mill. A carburetor is called a pot and the next time your crate stalls on main street I hope that daddyo remembers to tell the policeman "I think there is something wrong with my pot."

A four-cylinder car is a banger. A V-8 engine is a Bent Eight. Chrome exhausts are called stacks, pipes, duals or Hollywoods. A double ignition system is known as a flame thrower.

The car's grille is a fireplace. One with long tail exhausts is a trumpet. If the pimple-headed driver races his engine and tries to impress the local girls with squealing brakes, he is known as a squirrel. If something goes wrong, and the driver doesn't know what, he merely says "The Johnson Rod broke," and then everyone in the car knows that he doesn't know. You might try reading this again, slowly.

I'm going to.

When you drive somewhere without knowing where you are going — which, I would say, is most of the time — then you are spooking. This is close to the archaic word "sparking," which is what we used to call it.

One of the terms missing from the Good Housekeeping glossary is the one my daughter uses to describe our white Caddy. It is known as a Moo Canoe. Others too are missing. An ambulance that passes a hot rod is a meat grinder. A party is a blast, or jive-time. A young man caught walking or riding a bicycle is a juvenile.

White bucks are fruit boots. A drive-in movie is a snake pit. Pancakes are collision mats. When a girl declines a boy's invitation, she says: "Later for you, Jake." One who is a profound thinker has static in the attic. A boy is a cool cat. A slick chick is a girl. A wart is a boy who tries to steal his best friend's girl. A girl who is permanently dizzy is a mixed chick.

I sat up in bed last night studying this list. It isn't easy for me to remember the new words, or even what they mean. However, by 2 a. m. I was off to sleep, saying my night prayers in jive. I'm not worried. God understands everything.

This afternoon, the kids trooped in and fell with exhaustion on the good chairs. Each of the girls gave me the respectful and mechanical smile and went winging on an oratorical jam session about a beauty contest recently staged in town. According to the youngsters, the judges need new bifocals. One of the winners, they insisted, takes ugly pills.

On my way out, I said as casually as possible: "I'm taking the rag top to town to get some snowballs." Gayle looked at me. So did Petra Welch and Valerie Will and Charlotte Rose.

"You're going to what the what?" my child said. I repeated the message. Gayle looked worried. She studied the others and asked innocently: "Do you know what he's talking about?" They shook their heads no.

Gayle shrugged. "I love him but he's real shook," she said.

More interesting perhaps than the wealth of those two gubernatorial candidates is their ancestry. Governor Harriman's father, the late E. H. Harriman, was the railroad king of America and a national and international figure in finance in the 1890s and early 1900s. Although he never ran for or held public office, he was highly influential in the Republican Party during the administrations of McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt. He openly boasted that he could buy a sufficient number of Senators and Congressmen or state legislators to protect his interests, and, when necessary, could buy the judiciary.

Mr. Harriman was among those later to be denounced by President Roosevelt as "malefactors of great wealth." In 1904, even though Mr. Harriman mistrusted Mr. Roosevelt as the party nominee, the railroad magnate contributed heavily to the Republican Presidential campaign. In an effort to win Mr. Harriman's financial support, Mr. Roosevelt wrote a letter that became public in a sensation of those days. In it the President had, in effect, asked Mr. Harriman to forget the attacks of the past because, as he said to Mr. Harriman, "you and I are practical men."

The grandfather of Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller on his mother's side was the noted Senator from Rhode Island, Nelson Aldrich, longtime Republican leader and "boss" of the Senate. He was conspicuous as sponsor of monetary legisation, and headed the National Monetary Commission whose report to Congress in 1912 was embodied in modified form in a law which established the present Federal Reserve System. Senator Aldrich was one of the ablest Congressional leaders in history, roundly denounced by the "progressive" Republicans as a "tyrant" and "despot" for his tactics in getting legislation through the Senate.

On his father's side, Nelson Rockefeller's grandfather amassed through an oil monopoly later broken up under the antitrust laws—perhaps the largest fortune of those times. Nearly all of it was subsequently distributed in one form or another to charity and philanthropic foundations by Nelson's father, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The grandson of Senator Aldrich inherited a natural interest in public affairs. Only 50 years old, Mr. Rockefeller has spent most of his adult years in public service. He was co-ordinator of inter-American affairs under the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and then was appointed Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American affairs. He served under President Truman as chairman of the advisory board on the "Point Four" program. In the Eisenhower Administration, he has been Under-Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and special assistant to the President on foreign policy. He has served also on commissions to study reorganization of the government and of the Defense Department.

Governor Harriman left the Republican Party in 1928 and joined the "New Deal" in 1934 as an administrative officer of NRA. He went on to serve Presidents Roosevelt and Truman as Ambassador to Great Britain, Ambassador to the Soviet Union, Secretary of Commerce, foreign-policy adviser and foreign-aid director.

Certainly this campaign will be watched by the nation not only because New York is the country's most populous state, but because of the well known personalities who are the top contenders.

Wealth by itself will have in the future less and less bearing on the choice of candidates for public office. Integrity is all-important, irrespective of riches. People are mostly interested in the point of view of the candidates and what they will do if elected.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

A crisis is the spot where you have to fish, chop bait or go ashore.

But we don't remember any time in the last 50 years when we haven't been lighting one from the other.

Like the chicken that hatched in the egg-beater we got used to that form of locomotion.

Your children have lived through no other cycle of corrosive progress. Dulles traveled 500,000 diplomatic miles trying to get the genie back into the portfolio.

He finally manipulated one where it had a trade-in value. Result, the UN caucus that was as unanimous as fun on a bobsled.

Worm Parasites Thrive On Poor Hygiene

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Three million Americans harbor intestinal worms. One infected persons may be a friend or neighbor but you never will know it because it is not a condition that people talk about.

The ascaris is one of the most common worms, especially in the south and along the Mississippi valley. The critter is light colored, looks like an earthworm, and is 16 to 18 inches long. The mature female may contain 27 million eggs and passes 200,000 into the intestine of the host daily. These escape to the outside and it is surprising that anybody escapes, especially in areas where sanitation is inadequate and poor personal hygiene abounds.

The eggs reach newcomers by means of contaminated hands, vegetables, or water. The ova are swallowed and hatch into larvae on reaching the intestine of the new host but the little fellows travel extensively before maturing. They burrow through the intestineal wall and enter veins that take them to the lungs.

Larvae that reaches the throat are re-swallowed and are now ready for matrimony and adult living in the intestines.

Worms produce a variety of symptoms such as nausea, vomiting, fever, and constipation. Colic and headache are frequent complaints. Occasionally, intestinal obstruction occurs when large numbers clump together. Some of the parasites wander far afield and are found in the gall bladder, liver, lungs, nose, ears, and even the eyes.

The condition is diagnosed by finding the eggs in the stool. Occasionally the worms are detected by X-ray, especially when barium is used to visualize the intestinal tract. The parasites swallow some of the barium and their intestines show up under X-ray in much the same way as the intestines of their host. The barium-filled worms look like pieces of white string.

Good remedies, such as piperazine, are available. The large majority of patients are cured by a single course of treatment.

A MINUS READING

V. M. writes: An overweight friend of mine has a minus 18 metabolism and her doctor is giving her thyroid tablets to nep her up and take off weight. I'm puzzled about this because I have the same reading but am slim and highstrung. Can you explain?

REPLY

A minus 18 reading does not necessarily indicate a thyroid deficiency. Most under par persons have low blood pressure, cold hands and feet, and low blood pressure and metabolism. Thyroid extract is not the answer to their problem.

SPECIALIST

H. T. writes: How many types of medical specialists are there?

REPLY

The Advisory Board for Medican Specialists lists 19, ranging from anesthetists to urologists. In addition, there are subspecialties. If this era of specialization continues, we may have physicians who will specialize in diseases of the left ear lobe or in the twinkle of an eye.

HEMORRHOIDS

L. P. writes: Do piles have to be operated on if they are causing no trouble?

REPLY

No, but surgery will solve the problem. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hemorrhoids.

GERMS ABOUT US

R. D. writes: Can disease germs of any kind live on objects such as furniture, books, or clothing for an indefinite period?

REPLY

Yes, and a few remain alive in a dormant stage for years.

HIGH PRESSURE IN CHILD

L. F. writes: What would cause hypertension in a 13 year old boy? He has terrific headaches from this disorder.

REPLY

Kidney disease is the most common cause. He may have so-called malignant hypertension, a hereditary disorder affecting the vascular system.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

James Thurber is forever remembering wonderful stories about the late Harold Ross, founder and editor of the "New Yorker." Thurber recalls the day Dorothy Parker labelled Ross "a professional lunatic." Russell Maloney noted that "Ross considered perfection his personal property, like his hat or his watch." One editor complained to Ross, "Every week you holler that the new issue doesn't contain a single laugh." Snarled Ross, "This week there are fewer than ever!"

Editor Ross once worried that the name of plump, ubiquitous Alexander Woollcott was appearing too frequently in the "New Yorker." "I don't want to see that name in our pages again for six months at least," he thundered. The very next week however, a Woollcott anecdote was turned in that was just too good to kill. "I've got it," exulted Ross. "We'll misspell him!" One "l" was duly omitted from Woollcott's name, with a resultant cry of protest from Mr. W that made Ross happy for days.

Sen. Morse Kept Supreme Court From Being Rebuffed By Congress

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, now meeting in emergency session, probably doesn't know that it was the threat of a filibuster which saved the nine Justices from being rebuffed by Congress. The public also does not know how filibusters are born.

When Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon appeared on the Senate floor on Saturday night just before adjournment, he wore a red rose. His colleagues knew that this was the signal that he was ready to talk various bills to death.

Noting the rose, lanky Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, leaned over and asked Morse what was up.

"Lyndon," warned the Oregon liberal who has one of the longest talkathon records in history, "you're not going to get out of here until Wednesday. I have no intention of letting this Congress adjourn with its last acts an expression of lack of confidence in the Supreme Court."

Morse was referring to the Mallory Bill aimed at overruling a Court of Appeals decision — affirmed by the Supreme Court— requiring police to arraign prisoners without delay. Morse also referred to a passport bill urged by John Foster Dulles, restoring State Department power, previously removed by the courts, to ban passports to any American.

Earlier in the day two backstage incidents had occurred which didn't leak out to the papers. William B. Macomber, assistant to Dulles, had called on Morse and asked him to remove his earlier objection to the passport bill.

"You've got a lot of guts," replied the fiery Oregonian. "Go back to Secretary Dulles and tell him that Wayne Morse will be talking against that bill until Wednesday. I feel awfully good. I've been out on the farm and I'm in good shape. I'm a little hoarse, but I'll be able to talk until Wednesday."

Morse was not kidding. He had spent part of the week putting his Red Devon cattle and prize roosters in the Gaithersburg Fair, where he won top honors. Macomber took one look at Morse's wiry physique and reported back to Dulles that the passport bill was as good as dead.

Carroll's Irish

About the same time, Sen. John Carroll of Colorado conferred with Morse. He and his fellow Democrat, Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, had gone into conference with the House of Representatives to iron out differences regarding the Mallory Bill. O'Mahoney held the proxies of Illinois' Dirksen and Mississippi's Eastland in his pocket. Result: The House wrote new wording into the bill hamstringing the Supreme Court's ruling. Sen. Carroll refused to sign. Disappointed at the way O'Mahoney had surrendered, he came to Morse and they agreed to filibuster.

Later Carroll came back to Morse, reported that the "soft-core" Senate liberals urged him not to fight.

"I happen to have been here fourteen years," chided the Oregonian. "I'm used to such appeasement. When you talk to Church (Idaho) or Clark (Penna.) that's what you get. But I can tell you that the only thing the Senate leaders understand is brute force — the brute force of time. We have to whip 'em with time. You've been softsoaped by the phony liberals who don't want to fight. Don't try to sell me their kind of malarkey. Are you going to fight or not?"

Carroll is a good fighter anyway, but this got his Irish up. He agreed to give two speeches, alternating with Morse, to keep the Senate in session for at least two days. Sen. Tom Hennings of Missouri, another Democrat, also agreed to give a speech, while Javits, Republican, former Attorney General of New York, came up with an important legal gimmick.

"Wayne," he said, "we can object to this House wordage under Rule 27, which forbids the introduction of new evidence in a conference report. We can make a point of order."

Carroll agreed to make the point of order, and the leaders were notified that objection would be made.

By this time it was 1:50 a. m. The Senate was grinding slowly, sleepily, toward the 4:11 a. m. hour when it finally adjourned. Senators had been listening to the pros and cons of Chicago's sewage system and its need for more Lake Michigan water. Sen. Proxmire of Wisconsin was determined that no more water leave the harbors of Milwaukee, Green Bay, and Sheboygan. The opposition still had the votes to pass the Mallory Bill, but a quorum was dwindling. Many Senators, up for re-election, were leaving town.

Harassed Lyndon Johnson came over to Morse and Carroll. "We're going to accept your point of order," he said, "you've won. We couldn't get a quorum here at 10 a. m."

That's how filibusters are staged — and sometimes prevented. And that was how the Supreme Court finally survived the attacks of the 85th Congress.

Mail Bag

H. A. B., St. Paul — The speech in which Senator Thye of Minnesota extolled Secretary of Agriculture Benson as a supporter of 100 per cent parity prices was delivered January 21, 1953, on Page 485 of the Congressional Record as follows: "I am confident that Mr. Benson will work for an agricultural program that will provide 100 per cent parity for the farmer. . . . I am confident that Mr. Benson's general philosophy and fairness are such that he will endeavor to establish for the producers of our land 100 per cent of parity in terms of their income and their share in the national economy. . . . In listening to the interrogation of Mr. Benson at the Committee on Agriculture, I was satisfied that he came out not only as an able student of agriculture but also as one who has integrity and sincerity, and as one who will endeavor with all his might — which is very great — to develop and carry on a farm program which will provide for 100 per cent parity rather than 90 per cent parity." This is the speech which Senator Thye claims is unfair to have Congressman McCarthy dig up and quote in his re-election campaign.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

It is possible to understand teen-agers if you know the words. A few years ago, I learned that all references to me were accompanied by a nod in my direction and the word "Square." Sometimes it was accomplished silently by holding the fingers of both hands together to form a hollow rectangle. Now I have a glossary.

Good Housekeeping has published a little article in the current issue called "Hot Rod Terms for Teen-age Girls." I'm hardly a teen-age girl, but I read it anyway and it is beautiful. After this, when Gayle comes in with her friends and raids the refrigerator and sits munching cookies with them, I can listen without having a dread feeling that I am lost in Mau-Mau country.

A hot rod, of course, is a stripped-down car. It is also called, I learn, a bomb, a draggin' wagon and a screamer. A convertible is a rag top. A sleeper is an innocent-looking souped-up car. Chopping is what you do to the windshield posts to lower the roof. Ironically, it is also what daddy does to you when he finds out.

Tires are called skids or hides. White walls are called snowballs. Hub caps are spinners and flippers. A continental kit is a spare tire. Chrome ornaments are goodies. Too much chrome is referred to as spaghetti. The engine is called The Mill. A carburetor is called a pot and the next time your crate stalls on main street I hope that daddyo remembers to tell the policeman "I think there is something wrong with my pot."

A four-cylinder car is a banger. A V-8 engine is a Bent Eight. Chrome exhausts are called stacks, pipes, duals or Hollywoods. A double ignition system is known as a flame thrower.

The car's grille is a fireplace. One with long tail exhausts is a trumpet. If the pimple-headed driver races his engine and tries to impress the local girls with squealing brakes, he is known as a squirrel. If something goes wrong, and the driver doesn't know what, he merely says "The Johnson Rod broke," and then everyone in the car knows that he doesn't know. You might try reading this again, slowly.

I'm going to.

When you drive somewhere without knowing where you are going — which, I would say, is most of the time — then you are spooking. This is close to the archaic word "sparking," which is what we used to call it.

One of the terms missing from the Good Housekeeping glossary is the one my daughter uses to describe our white Caddy. It is known as a Moo Canoe. Others too are missing. An ambulance that passes a hot rod is a meat grinder. A party is a blast, or jive-time. A young man caught walking or riding a bicycle is a juvenile.

White bucks are fruit boots. A drive-in movie is a snake pit. Pancakes are collision mats. When a girl declines a boy's invitation, she says: "Later for you, Jake." One who is a profound thinker has static in the attic. A boy is a cool cat. A slick chick is a girl. A wart is a boy who tries to steal his best friend's girl. A girl who is permanently dizzy is a mixed chick.

I sat up in bed last night studying this list. It isn't easy for me to remember the new words, or even what they mean. However, by 2 a. m. I was off to sleep, saying my night prayers in jive. I'm not worried. God understands everything.

This afternoon, the kids trooped in and fell with exhaustion on the good chairs. Each of the girls gave me the respectful and mechanical smile and went winging on an oratorical jam session about a beauty contest recently staged in town. According to the youngsters, the judges need new bifocals. One of the winners, they insisted, takes ugly pills.

On my way out, I said as casually as possible: "I'm taking the rag top to town to get some snowballs." Gayle looked at me. So did Petra Welch and Valerie Will and Charlotte Rose.

"You're going to what the what?" my child said. I repeated the message. Gayle looked worried. She studied the others and asked innocently: "Do you know what he's talking about?" They shook their heads no.

Gayle shrugged. "I love him but he's real shook," she said.

Cigaret Urge Causes Crash

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va. (UPI) — The truck drivers urge for a cigaret was cited as the cause of a Thursday accident on W. Va. 2 here, seriously injuring two construction workers.

City Police said tractor - trailer driver Cecil Nelson, 36, employed by Daniels Transfer Co., Franklin, Pa., told them he looked down on the seat of his cab for a cigaret and when he looked back at the road he realized he was on the wrong side of the highway.

Nelson said he attempted to cut back, but his truck collided with an automobile driven by William N. Phillips. Phillips and passenger Norman Moore each suffered broken legs and body lacerations in the mishap.

Dial Center Job Progresses In Frostburg

Conversion Planned On November 30

He said seven men from this area and the Oakland and Hagerstown offices have converted about 35 per cent of the stations served by the office to dial operation.

This consists of replacing the instruments or putting dials on existing sets.

Meanwhile, Western Electric Company crews have been moving equipment into the new center and have started mounting and connecting the equipment.

The dial conversion project was estimated to cost $640,000 when planned. Estimates of cost have increased to the $673,000 mark.

The conversion ceremony, scheduled November 30, will mark the completion of the program to convert all Allegany and Garrett telephone service from manual to dial operation.

Dial Center Job Progresses In Frostburg

Conversion Planned On November 30

He said seven men from this area and the Oakland and Hagerstown offices have converted about 35 per cent of the stations served by the office to dial operation.

This consists of replacing the instruments or putting dials on existing sets.

Meanwhile, Western Electric Company crews have been moving equipment into the new center and have started mounting and connecting the equipment.

The dial conversion project was estimated to cost $640,000 when planned. Estimates of cost have increased to the $673,000 mark.

The conversion ceremony, scheduled November 30, will mark the completion of the program to convert all Allegany and Garrett telephone service from manual to dial operation.

All telephones in the two counties will be numbered on the 2-5 system, which is the nationwide dialing plan.

Cigaret Urge Causes Crash

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va. (UPI) — The truck drivers urge for a cigaret was cited as the cause of a Thursday accident on W. Va. 2 here, seriously injuring two construction workers.

City Police said tractor - trailer driver Cecil Nelson, 36, employed by Daniels Transfer Co., Franklin, Pa., told them he looked down on the seat of his cab for a cigaret and when he looked back at the road he realized he was on the wrong side of the highway.

Nelson said he attempted to cut back, but his truck collided with an automobile driven by William N. Phillips. Phillips and passenger Norman Moore each suffered broken legs and body lacerations in the mishap.

Westernport Water Supply Clearing Up

WESTERNPORT — Since the employment of Tracey Greenlund of the Tracey Engineering Firm of Harrisburg, Pa., the discoloration of the town's water supply is clearing up, town officials report.

After an inspection of the water system he recommended several processes which have resulted in the water clearing up, according to Mayor Ray L. Wilt.

Lee Haines, a member of the Tracey firm, was formerly employed with the engineering firm of Glace and Glace of Harrisburg, Pa., who supervised the building of the Westernport filtration plant.

Three For The Price Of One

Here's one way of holding down automobile expenses. You and your friends can park three cars in one parking space — that is, if you have the kind of cars pictured on a Muscatine, Iowa, street. There's one catch, though. Police Officer Wendall Hildebrandt isn't sure whether he should ticket one car or all three when and if the meter reads "violation" while the cars are parked there.

West Virginia Schools Expect 462,000 Pupils

Would Be 8,000 Above Last Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The number of children who will enroll in West Virginia's public schools at the beginning of the 1958-59 school year was estimated Thursday at 462,000.

That would be 8,000 higher than the 1957-58 enrollment for elementary and high school classes. Elementary enrollment is expected to be about 295,000 while the number of high school students is forecast at 167,000.

The enrollment estimates were made by William K. Hamilton, supervisor of the State Board of School Finance.

He said a preliminary survey shows that 17,165 teachers will be employed on opening day, an increase of 219 over the total at the beginning of the school term a year ago. He said this number may go even higher, as much as 30 to 50, by the end of the school year.

Hamilton said enrollment would probably increase to 472,000 by the end of the ninth month of the term next spring.

The anticipated increase indicates that West Virginia is "off the stationary plateau on which it has stood during the past three years when there was no appreciable increase in enrollment," he said.

Most of the gain will probably show up in industrial areas along the Ohio, Kanawha and Potomac Rivers, Hamilton said.

This is the last weekend of the summer vacation in most counties. Schools will open next Tuesday, Sept. 2, in a majority of places.

However, Roane County wants to be ready to begin classroom work by then and will register students on Friday. Conversely, Mercer County schools are not scheduled to open until the following Friday, Sept. 5.

Last year there was a decline in students in certain border areas where families moved out of the state. But some school officials predict many former students will be back this fall as their parents return to West Virginia after losing out-of-state jobs as a result of the recession.

Hyndman Area Schools Ready For 1958-59 Terms

HYNDMAN — The Hyndman-Londonderry joint schools will open Tuesday, September 2, according to L. G. Keller, supervising principal.

High school classes will start each day at 8:30 a.m., Mr. Keller said, while elementary classes will begin 15 minutes later. The school bus schedule will run 15 minutes earlier than in previous years, he noted.

The advance in the bus schedule has become a necessity because of the addition of extra courses in the high school demanded by the State Board of Education. Keller explained that general science has been added to the seventh and eighth grade courses, as have some extra courses in basic English.

The new primary school building will not be ready for occupancy in time for the opening of school, and students of the first three grades are to report to the old building. Pupils in the next three grades in Hyndman will travel by bus to the Londonderry building, Keller said.

Faculty members for the various buildings are:

Hyndman Primary—Miss Mary L. Myers, principal and first grade; Miss Jean Miller, first grade; Mrs. Anna Maclay and Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, second grade, and Miss Alta Diehl and Mrs. Genevieve Porter, third grade.

Londonderry Intermediate — H. M. Carpenter, principal; Miss Carole Troutman and Mrs. Dorothy Miller, fourth grade; Mrs. Mary Johannesen and Mrs. Blanche Wise, fifth grade, and Mrs. Gertrude Shaffer and Mrs. Myra Smith, sixth grade.

Hyndman-Londonderry High — Charles Smith, junior high social studies, mathematics and faculty manager of athletics; Mrs. Doris Benoit, junior high English, girl's physical education and girl's basketball coach; Harry McKinley, mathematics, boy's physical education and boy's basketball and baseball coach.

Mrs. Ruth S. Loughney, junior high English and senior high Spanish; Mrs. Miriam Kipp, biology and mathematics; Fred Porter, geography and driver education; Mrs. Verona L. Harclerode, senior high English and librarian.

Administrative aides include Wade H. Kipp, high school principal and guidance counselor; Mrs. Betty Holler, school clerk, and Miss Charlotte Costello, school nurse.

The school calendar, besides the start of classes, includes Teacher's Institute, November 11; Thanksgiving holiday, November 27-28 and December 1; Christmas vacation, December 19 to January 5; Easter vacation, March 27-30, and end of term, June 2.

More W.Va. Workers Have Jobs

Rises 300 Above Level Of June

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— An encouraging rise in employment within non-agricultural occupations in West Virginia was noted Thursday by the State Department of Employment Security.

A monthly report said the increase was only 300 above the June level, but the department said it was the second straight month an increase had occurred at a time when non-farm employment usually shows a drop.

A rise of 900 in manufacturing employment, pushing the total to 116,900, offset a drop of 600 in non-manufacuring job holders. That total stood at 34,800.

The report said earnings of factory production workers in the state stood at $2.27 an hour. The hourly pay scale represented a 5-cent increase over mid-June and shoved to $88.30 the average weekly pay check for such workers.

A general wage increase in the steel industry boosted hourly earnings in primary metals 15 cents and more orders required a step-up of 2.7 hours in the work week. Chemicals reported a substantial amount of premium pay in July and some scattered wage increase which lifted hourly earnings 4 cents above the previous month.

The department said the vacation shutdown of the coal industry over the July 4th holiday resulted in inconclusive data for computing average hours and earnings.

Durable goods industries, with a gain of 600 for the month, were still 8,600 employes short of their year-ago level. Seasonal trends were noted in non - manufacturing industries, with bituminous coal mining still 16,500 below the 77,500 employed a year ago.

The government employe category recovered 1,000 of its May-June loss in expansion of road construction and maintenance crews, state park facilities and municipal recreation programs.

Westernport Water Supply Clearing Up

WESTERNPORT — Since the employment of Tracey Greenlund of the Tracey Engineering Firm of Harrisburg, Pa., the discoloration of the town's water supply is clearing up, town officials report.

After an inspection of the water system he recommended several processes which have resulted in the water clearing up, according to Mayor Ray L. Wilt.

Lee Haines, a member of the Tracey firm, was formerly employed with the engineering firm of Glace and Glace of Harrisburg, Pa., who supervised the building of the Westernport filtration plant.

Three For The Price Of One

Here's one way of holding down automobile expenses. You and your friends can park three cars in one parking space — that is, if you have the kind of cars pictured on a Muscatine, Iowa, street. There's one catch, though. Police Officer Wendall Hildebrandt isn't sure whether he should ticket one car or all three when and if the meter reads "violation" while the cars are parked there.

West Virginia Schools Expect 462,000 Pupils

Would Be 8,000 Above Last Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The number of children who will enroll in West Virginia's public schools at the beginning of the 1958-59 school year was estimated Thursday at 462,000.

That would be 8,000 higher than the 1957-58 enrollment for elementary and high school classes. Elementary enrollment is expected to be about 295,000 while the number of high school students is forecast at 167,000.

The enrollment estimates were made by William K. Hamilton, supervisor of the State Board of School Finance.

He said a preliminary survey shows that 17,165 teachers will be employed on opening day, an increase of 219 over the total at the beginning of the school term a year ago. He said this number may go even higher, as much as 30 to 50, by the end of the school year.

Hamilton said enrollment would probably increase to 472,000 by the end of the ninth month of the term next spring.

The anticipated increase indicates that West Virginia is "off the stationary plateau on which it has stood during the past three years when there was no appreciable increase in enrollment," he said.

Most of the gain will probably show up in industrial areas along the Ohio, Kanawha and Potomac Rivers, Hamilton said.

This is the last weekend of the summer vacation in most counties. Schools will open next Tuesday, Sept. 2, in a majority of places.

However, Roane County wants to be ready to begin classroom work by then and will register students on Friday. Conversely, Mercer County schools are not scheduled to open until the following Friday, Sept. 5.

Last year there was a decline in students in certain border areas where families moved out of the state. But some school officials predict many former students will be back this fall as their parents return to West Virginia after losing out-of-state jobs as a result of the recession.

Hyndman Area Schools Ready For 1958-59 Terms

HYNDMAN — The Hyndman-Londonderry joint schools will open Tuesday, September 2, according to L. G. Keller, supervising principal.

High school classes will start each day at 8:30 a.m., Mr. Keller said, while elementary classes will begin 15 minutes later. The school bus schedule will run 15 minutes earlier than in previous years, he noted.

The advance in the bus schedule has become a necessity because of the addition of extra courses in the high school demanded by the State Board of Education. Keller explained that general science has been added to the seventh and eighth grade courses, as have some extra courses in basic English.

The new primary school building will not be ready for occupancy in time for the opening of school, and students of the first three grades are to report to the old building. Pupils in the next three grades in Hyndman will travel by bus to the Londonderry building, Keller said.

Faculty members for the various buildings are:

Hyndman Primary—Miss Mary L. Myers, principal and first grade; Miss Jean Miller, first grade; Mrs. Anna Maclay and Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, second grade, and Miss Alta Diehl and Mrs. Genevieve Porter, third grade.

Londonderry Intermediate — H. M. Carpenter, principal; Miss Carole Troutman and Mrs. Dorothy Miller, fourth grade; Mrs. Mary Johannesen and Mrs. Blanche Wise, fifth grade, and Mrs. Gertrude Shaffer and Mrs. Myra Smith, sixth grade.

Hyndman-Londonderry High — Charles Smith, junior high social studies, mathematics and faculty manager of athletics; Mrs. Doris Benoit, junior high English, girl's physical education and girl's basketball coach; Harry McKinley, mathematics, boy's physical education and boy's basketball and baseball coach.

Mrs. Ruth S. Loughney, junior high English and senior high Spanish; Mrs. Miriam Kipp, biology and mathematics; Fred Porter, geography and driver education; Mrs. Verona L. Harclerode, senior high English and librarian.

Administrative aides include Wade H. Kipp, high school principal and guidance counselor; Mrs. Betty Holler, school clerk, and Miss Charlotte Costello, school nurse.

The school calendar, besides the start of classes, includes Teacher's Institute, November 11; Thanksgiving holiday, November 27-28 and December 1; Christmas vacation, December 19 to January 5; Easter vacation, March 27-30, and end of term, June 2.

More W.Va. Workers Have Jobs

Rises 300 Above Level Of June

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— An encouraging rise in employment within non-agricultural occupations in West Virginia was noted Thursday by the State Department of Employment Security.

A monthly report said the increase was only 300 above the June level, but the department said it was the second straight month an increase had occurred at a time when non-farm employment usually shows a drop.

A rise of 900 in manufacturing employment, pushing the total to 116,900, offset a drop of 600 in non-manufacuring job holders. That total stood at 34,800.

The report said earnings of factory production workers in the state stood at $2.27 an hour. The hourly pay scale represented a 5-cent increase over mid-June and shoved to $88.30 the average weekly pay check for such workers.

A general wage increase in the steel industry boosted hourly earnings in primary metals 15 cents and more orders required a step-up of 2.7 hours in the work week. Chemicals reported a substantial amount of premium pay in July and some scattered wage increase which lifted hourly earnings 4 cents above the previous month.

The department said the vacation shutdown of the coal industry over the July 4th holiday resulted in inconclusive data for computing average hours and earnings.

Durable goods industries, with a gain of 600 for the month, were still 8,600 employes short of their year-ago level. Seasonal trends were noted in non - manufacturing industries, with bituminous coal mining still 16,500 below the 77,500 employed a year ago.

The government employe category recovered 1,000 of its May-June loss in expansion of road construction and maintenance crews, state park facilities and municipal recreation programs.

Herbert Elliott Shatters World 1,500 Meters Record

Aussie Beats Jungwirth In Sweden Race

Australian's Time Is 3:36, Equivalent Of Mile In 3:53

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Herb Elliott of Australia Thursday night shattered the world record for 1,500 meters with a time of 3:36.0.

This is the equivalent of the mile in 3:53. On Aug. 6 Elliott at Dublin ran the fastest mile ever, 3:54.5.

The listed world record for 1,500 meters is 3:38.1 which was approved at the recent meeting in Stockholm of the International Amateur Athletic Federation. It is held by Stanislav Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia.

Elliott Thursday thus stamped himself as the world's greatest both at the mile and the metric equivalent of 1,500 meters, which is 1,640 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches, as against 1,760 yards for the mile.

Elliott's fractional times were phenomenal. He ran the first 400 meters in :56.0, the 800 meters (almost exactly the half mile) in 1:57.5, and the 1,200 meters in 2:55.0.

Beats Jungwirth

He lay back for the first half of the race, and then moved from third into the lead at the 800 meters, and burned up the last 300 meters in :40.5. He finished 20 meters ahead of Jungwirth, the current record holder.

Because Swedish tracks are models of engineering and meets here are run off under standard conditions, there was every expectation that Elliott's new 1,500-meter record would be accepted by the IAAF.

Jungwirth finished second clocked in 3:39.0 followed by Murray Halberg, New Zealand, 3:40.9. Thus all five ran the equivalent of better than four minutes for the mile.

Other Results

Other results: 6. Stefan Lewandowski, Poland, 3:41.1; 7. Ulf Bertil Lund, Norway, 2:42.1; 8. Ingvar Ericssonn Sweden, 3:47.3; 9. Derek Ibbottson, Britain, 3:50.8; and 10. Alb. Thomas, Australia 3:55.1.

Elliott, a lanky 20-year-old from down under who was not good enough to run in the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, first established himself as a great runner when he broke the four minute barrier for the mile on Jan. 24 of this year with a time of 3:59.4 in Melbourne.

In less than one year he has been under four minutes on eight occasions.

Western Maryland Beats McIntyre's In Opener, 16-12

Western Maryland Railway packed its scoring punch into three innings and won a wild Men's Rec Softball League playoff series game from Don McIntyre's yesterday at Post Field by the score of 16-12.

A total of 17 bases on balls were issued and eleven of the passes were dealt out by McIntyre's pitchers.

Western Maryland racked up 11 hits and the leading hitter was Rev. Bruce Price who had a perfect day in three trips. Bobby Russell, Carl Phillips and Gene Scaletta collected two safeties each.

McIntyre's garnered nine hits including three by McCune and three-base wallops by Don and Dale Fuller.

Paul Flynn, shortstop, and Gerald Lambert, second baseman, were Western Maryland's fielding stars.

The second game of the best-of-three series will be played next week. Local 26 reached the finals by eliminating Keech's Drug Stores from the playoffs. Score:

Western Maryland 300 760 x—16 11 7
B. Fair, Chisholm (5) and B. Lawler. Slonaker, Knippenberg (5) and Phillips. WP—Slonaker. LP—B. Fair.

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—First baseman Dale Long has had a most varied career in his 15 years in baseball. He has had moments of brilliance and those that were heart breaking.

But there's no question how he stands with the Chicago Cubs. After long ball hitting Ernie Banks and the rejuvenated Lee Walls comes Long. No longer are the Cubs platooning at first base. Long has filled the bill and in the Cubs' battle for a first division berth in the National League he has been valuable.

In his first 115 games this season he showed a .268 average with 14 home runs and 60 runs batted in, putting him among the league's top 10 in producing runs.

A year ago the 210-pound 6-foot-4 hitter of the long ball was a question mark when he first suited up in a Cub uniform. He and Walls came to Chicago in May of 1957 in the trade with Pittsburgh for Gene Baker and Dee Fondy.

DALE LONG

Long, from North Adams, Mass., hit a puny .182 in seven games for the Pirates last year. But he settled down under Manager Bob Scheffing and his .298 for the season topped the Cubs' averages. He hit .305 as a Cub.

Dale, who broke into organized ball under Casey Stengel when he was leading the old Milwaukee Brewers in 1944, looks back with mixed emotions on a shining 1956 stretch that lasted from May 19 to May 28.

He hit home runs in eight successive games for a new major league record.

The pitchers he faced were Jim Davis, Ray Crone, Warren Spahn, Herm Wehmeier, Lindy McDaniel, Curt Simmons, Ben Flowers and Carl Erskine. He got the biggest four-bagger of all off Erskine.

Life turned sad in the ensuing weeks. Pittsburgh fans demanded more homers, but Long simply couldn't supply the demand. Sadly enough, the cheers turned to boos.

Long wound up with 27 homers, but his hitting fell off to .263. He got off to a slow start in 1957 but then found himself when shifted to Chicago.

The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UPI)—Ham Richardson of Arlington, Va. the only American with a chance to win, set his sights today on the U. S. tennis singles championship starting Friday.

"I've been building up to this all summer," said the ex-Rhodes scholar who rates as about the only U. S. hope of repelling the strong Australian challenge. "After that, we'll see what happens about the Davis Cup."

If he wins, or even comes close, it probably means Ham will "be persuaded" to join the U. S. cup team for the trip to Australia.

"I wouldn't want to go if I'm not in good enough shape to win in singles," he said.

Thus, the 10-day grind for the U. S. crown starting this weekend will tell the tale on whether the Yanks will have even a faint hope of recapturing the trophy from Australia.

Would Have Chance

With Ham on the squad, the U. S. would have a fighting chance. Without him, it's a question whether the American team even can lick the Italy-Philippines winner to get the crack at Australia in the challenge round.

So far this season, Richardson has lost only one major match on the grass. He bowed to Australia's Mal Anderson, the long shot who won the U. S. crown a year ago, in a five set final at Orange, N. J.

"I didn't think I was ready for five sets that early in the season," Richardson admitted as if pleased with his comeback after laying off most of last year to concentrate on his job as research assistant to Louisiana Senator Russell B. Long.

Out of the whole draw, however, the best the U. S. apparently can hope for is placing one man in the semi-finals—probably Richardson or Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio.

The draw is well-stacked against the Yanks and most favorable to the foreigners, particularly Australians.

Battle For Slot

Most of the leading American players of the moment are crowded into the same fourth quarter of the draw where Richardson, MacKay, Sammy Giammalva of Houston, Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., John Cranston of San Marino, Calif., and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis will have to battle for one slot in the semi-finals. Also in that quarter are Ulf Schmidt of Sweden and Kosei Kamo of Japan.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, unseeded though he's America's ranking player, opens against Kurt Nielsen of Denmark and if he gets by that one he'll run eventually into Wimbledon champ Ashley Cooper of Australia before he can claim a spot in the semi-finals.

Neale Fraser, seeded fourth behind Richardson, has only Alex Olmedo of Peru to worry about en route to the semis while Anderson, if he keeps alive, probably will be troubled only by Dick Savitt of South Orange, N. J., a "weekend player" who prefers making dollars to service aces.

The 1958 title chase is a sharp contrast to a year ago when it was one of those "anybody can win it" things and an outsider—unseeded Anderson — came through.

This year, it looks like a cinch for an Aussie but Ham has hopes.

Joey Giardello And Holly Mims Launch Tourney

Elimination Bouts Planned For Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Matchmaker Benny Ford, with the blessing of the California Athletic Commissiong, Thursday proposed a middleweight elimination boxing tournament to find either a challenger for Ray Robinson or a champion to replace him.

Ford said he signed No. 3 contender Joey Giardello and Holly Mims, ranked No. 6, for the kickoff California 10-rounder Sept. 25.

Another fight in the elimination, Ford said, would be the Sept. 11 Utah fight between ex-champion Gene Fullmer, the No. 2 National Boxing Assn. contender, and No. 7 ranked Spider Webb.

Harry Falk Jr., an NBA vice president as well as a state commission member, said he would propose to the NBA at its Sept. 7 meeting in Las Vegas, Nev. that the tournament be sanctioned.

He explained the NBA has a policy of requiring champions to defend their title and "Robinson's time is approximately up." The champ won his crown—for the fifth time—in March from Carmen Basilio.

"There should be some activity in that division," Falk said. "It's a crime to permit a man to defend once a year against a man of his choice. Some of these other boys should be given a chance."

"We cannot say where the tournament should be held," Falk said. But he quickly added that "everybody seems to draw better out here."

Ford, in a swipe at the non-NBA New York commission, said it put on a welterweight elimination tournament when Basilio retired, and "if Chairman Julius Helfand can do it why can't we."

"We're drawing more money than any place in the nation," Ford said, "and that's what the fighters are looking for."

He compared his middleweight fight between Giardello and Rory Calhoun which grossed $60,000 with a television fight between Welter Champ Virgil Akins and Charley (Tombstone) Smith which took in $1,100 in Chicago last week.

Ford said none of his fights would be televised because he can draw more money without it.

Share Top Billing

The TRA Board of Selection will have no easy time of choosing the American Champion to judge by the opinion of one member. Atlantic City's racing secretary, James P. Ross, has named Gallant Man and Round Table the top horses of the country, if not the world, in assigning each 130 pounds for the United Nations Handicap, an invitation race worth $100,000 to be run on September 13. Ross assigned weights to 89 invitees including horses from Australia, Argentina, England, France, Norway, Germany, Japan and Panama.

Athlete, Struck By Javelin, Dies

Eyewitnesses said Bo Larsson, 22, was hit in the breast when walking across the field at the Johanneshov Stadium without noticing that a javelin competition was going on. He was on his way to the start of an 80-meter race when hit by the javelin.

Alien Victory

TUSCON, Ariz. (AP) — President Chuck Hollinger of the Arizona-Mexico Baseball League said there was a good reason Mexicali swept a recent series from Juraez.

The Juarez team was unable to field three top players—pitcher Lino Dinoso, infielder Barney Serrell and outfielder Silvio Mesa.

"In Mexico, if you're an alien you need a special permit to work or play baseball," Hollinger explained, "and Dinoso and Mesa are Cubans and Serrell an American. They had no permits and Mexicali officials wouldn't even let them suit up."

Herbert Elliott Shatters World 1,500 Meters Record

Aussie Beats Jungwirth In Sweden Race

Australian's Time Is 3:36, Equivalent Of Mile In 3:53

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Herb Elliott of Australia Thursday night shattered the world record for 1,500 meters with a time of 3:36.0.

This is the equivalent of the mile in 3:53. On Aug. 6 Elliott at Dublin ran the fastest mile ever, 3:54.5.

The listed world record for 1,500 meters is 3:38.1 which was approved at the recent meeting in Stockholm of the International Amateur Athletic Federation. It is held by Stanislav Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia.

Elliott Thursday thus stamped himself as the world's greatest both at the mile and the metric equivalent of 1,500 meters, which is 1,640 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches, as against 1,760 yards for the mile.

Elliott's fractional times were phenomenal. He ran the first 400 meters in :56.0, the 800 meters (almost exactly the half mile) in 1:57.5, and the 1,200 meters in 2:55.0.

Beats Jungwirth

He lay back for the first half of the race, and then moved from third into the lead at the 800 meters, and burned up the last 300 meters in :40.5. He finished 20 meters ahead of Jungwirth, the current record holder.

Because Swedish tracks are models of engineering and meets here are run off under standard conditions, there was every expectation that Elliott's new 1,500-meter record would be accepted by the IAAF.

Jungwirth finished second clocked in 3:39.0 followed by Murray Halberg, New Zealand, 3:40.9. Thus all five ran the equivalent of better than four minutes for the mile.

Other Results

Other results: 6. Stefan Lewandowski, Poland, 3:41.1; 7. Ulf Bertil Lund, Norway, 2:42.1; 8. Ingvar Ericssonn Sweden, 3:47.3; 9. Derek Ibbottson, Britain, 3:50.8; and 10. Alb. Thomas, Australia 3:55.1.

Elliott, a lanky 20-year-old from down under who was not good enough to run in the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, first established himself as a great runner when he broke the four minute barrier for the mile on Jan. 24 of this year with a time of 3:59.4 in Melbourne.

In less than one year he has been under four minutes on eight occasions.

Western Maryland Beats McIntyre's In Opener, 16-12

Western Maryland Railway packed its scoring punch into three innings and won a wild Men's Rec Softball League playoff series game from Don McIntyre's yesterday at Post Field by the score of 16-12.

A total of 17 bases on balls were issued and eleven of the passes were dealt out by McIntyre's pitchers.

Western Maryland racked up 11 hits and the leading hitter was Rev. Bruce Price who had a perfect day in three trips. Bobby Russell, Carl Phillips and Gene Scaletta collected two safeties each.

McIntyre's garnered nine hits including three by McCune and three-base wallops by Don and Dale Fuller.

Paul Flynn, shortstop, and Gerald Lambert, second baseman, were Western Maryland's fielding stars.

The second game of the best-of-three series will be played next week. Local 26 reached the finals by eliminating Keech's Drug Stores from the playoffs. Score:

B. Fair, Chisholm (5) and B. Lawler. Slonaker, Knippenberg (5) and Phillips. WP—Slonaker. LP—B. Fair.

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—First baseman Dale Long has had a most varied career in his 15 years in baseball. He has had moments of brilliance and those that were heart breaking.

But there's no question how he stands with the Chicago Cubs. After long ball hitting Ernie Banks and the rejuvenated Lee Walls comes Long. No longer are the Cubs platooning at first base. Long has filled the bill and in the Cubs' battle for a first division berth in the National League he has been valuable.

In his first 115 games this season he showed a .268 average with 14 home runs and 60 runs batted in, putting him among the league's top 10 in producing runs.

A year ago the 210-pound 6-foot-4 hitter of the long ball was a question mark when he first suited up in a Cub uniform. He and Walls came to Chicago in May of 1957 in the trade with Pittsburgh for Gene Baker and Dee Fondy.

DALE LONG

Long, from North Adams, Mass., hit a puny .182 in seven games for the Pirates last year. But he settled down under Manager Bob Scheffing and his .298 for the season topped the Cubs' averages. He hit .305 as a Cub.

Dale, who broke into organized ball under Casey Stengel when he was leading the old Milwaukee Brewers in 1944, looks back with mixed emotions on a shining 1956 stretch that lasted from May 19 to May 28.

He hit home runs in eight successive games for a new major league record.

The pitchers he faced were Jim Davis, Ray Crone, Warren Spahn, Herm Wehmeier, Lindy McDaniel, Curt Simmons, Ben Flowers and Carl Erskine. He got the biggest four-bagger of all off Erskine.

Life turned sad in the ensuing weeks. Pittsburgh fans demanded more homers, but Long simply couldn't supply the demand. Sadly enough, the cheers turned to boos.

Long wound up with 27 homers, but his hitting fell off to .263. He got off to a slow start in 1957 but then found himself when shifted to Chicago.

The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UPI)—Ham Richardson of Arlington, Va. the only American with a chance to win, set his sights today on the U. S. tennis singles championship starting Friday.

"I've been building up to this all summer," said the ex-Rhodes scholar who rates as about the only U. S. hope of repelling the strong Australian challenge. "After that, we'll see what happens about the Davis Cup."

If he wins, or even comes close, it probably means Ham will "be persuaded" to join the U. S. cup team for the trip to Australia.

"I wouldn't want to go if I'm not in good enough shape to win in singles," he said.

Thus, the 10-day grind for the U. S. crown starting this weekend will tell the tale on whether the Yanks will have even a faint hope of recapturing the trophy from Australia.

Would Have Chance

With Ham on the squad, the U. S. would have a fighting chance. Without him, it's a question whether the American team even can lick the Italy-Philippines winner to get the crack at Australia in the challenge round.

So far this season, Richardson has lost only one major match on the grass. He bowed to Australia's Mal Anderson, the long shot who won the U. S. crown a year ago, in a five set final at Orange, N. J.

"I didn't think I was ready for five sets that early in the season," Richardson admitted as if pleased with his comeback after laying off most of last year to concentrate on his job as research assistant to Louisiana Senator Russell B. Long.

Out of the whole draw, however, the best the U. S. apparently can hope for is placing one man in the semi-finals—probably Richardson or Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio.

The draw is well-stacked against the Yanks and most favorable to the foreigners, particularly Australians.

Battle For Slot

Most of the leading American players of the moment are crowded into the same fourth quarter of the draw where Richardson, MacKay, Sammy Giammalva of Houston, Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., John Cranston of San Marino, Calif., and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis will have to battle for one slot in the semi-finals. Also in that quarter are Ulf Schmidt of Sweden and Kosei Kamo of Japan.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, unseeded though he's America's ranking player, opens against Kurt Nielsen of Denmark and if he gets by that one he'll run eventually into Wimbledon champ Ashley Cooper of Australia before he can claim a spot in the semi-finals.

Neale Fraser, seeded fourth behind Richardson, has only Alex Olmedo of Peru to worry about en route to the semis while Anderson, if he keeps alive, probably will be troubled only by Dick Savitt of South Orange, N. J., a "weekend player" who prefers making dollars to service aces.

The 1958 title chase is a sharp contrast to a year ago when it was one of those "anybody can win it" things and an outsider—unseeded Anderson — came through.

This year, it looks like a cinch for an Aussie but Ham has hopes.

Joey Giardello And Holly Mims Launch Tourney

Elimination Bouts Planned For Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Matchmaker Benny Ford, with the blessing of the California Athletic Commissiong, Thursday proposed a middleweight elimination boxing tournament to find either a challenger for Ray Robinson or a champion to replace him.

Ford said he signed No. 3 contender Joey Giardello and Holly Mims, ranked No. 6, for the kickoff California 10-rounder Sept. 25.

Another fight in the elimination, Ford said, would be the Sept. 11 Utah fight between ex-champion Gene Fullmer, the No. 2 National Boxing Assn. contender, and No. 7 ranked Spider Webb.

Harry Falk Jr., an NBA vice president as well as a state commission member, said he would propose to the NBA at its Sept. 7 meeting in Las Vegas, Nev. that the tournament be sanctioned.

He explained the NBA has a policy of requiring champions to defend their title and "Robinson's time is approximately up." The champ won his crown—for the fifth time—in March from Carmen Basilio.

"There should be some activity in that division," Falk said. "It's a crime to permit a man to defend once a year against a man of his choice. Some of these other boys should be given a chance."

"We cannot say where the tournament should be held," Falk said. But he quickly added that "everybody seems to draw better out here."

Ford, in a swipe at the non-NBA New York commission, said it put on a welterweight elimination tournament when Basilio retired, and "if Chairman Julius Helfand can do it why can't we."

"We're drawing more money than any place in the nation," Ford said, "and that's what the fighters are looking for."

He compared his middleweight fight between Giardello and Rory Calhoun which grossed $60,000 with a television fight between Welter Champ Virgil Akins and Charley (Tombstone) Smith which took in $1,100 in Chicago last week.

Ford said none of his fights would be televised because he can draw more money without it.

Athlete, Struck By Javelin, Dies

Eyewitnesses said Bo Larsson, 22, was hit in the breast when walking across the field at the Johanneshov Stadium without noticing that a javelin competition was going on. He was on his way to the start of an 80-meter race when hit by the javelin.

Share Top Billing

The TRA Board of Selection will have no easy time of choosing the American Champion to judge by the opinion of one member. Atlantic City's racing secretary, James P. Ross, has named Gallant Man and Round Table the top horses of the country, if not the world, in assigning each 130 pounds for the United Nations Handicap, an invitation race worth $100,000 to be run on September 13. Ross assigned weights to 89 invitees including horses from Australia, Argentina, England, France, Norway, Germany, Japan and Panama.

Alien Victory

TUSCON, Ariz. (AP) — President Chuck Hollinger of the Arizona-Mexico Baseball League said there was a good reason Mexicali swept a recent series from Juraez.

The Juarez team was unable to field three top players—pitcher Lino Dinoso, infielder Barney Serrell and outfielder Silvio Mesa.

"In Mexico, if you're an alien you need a special permit to work or play baseball," Hollinger explained, "and Dinoso and Mesa are Cubans and Serrell an American. They had no permits and Mexicali officials wouldn't even let them suit up."

Milwaukee's Bob Rush Blanks San Francisco, 3-0

Schoendienst Obtains Four Of Six Blows

Johnny Antonelli Is Victim; Braves Lead 7½ Games

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Del Crandall and Red Schoendienst made life miserable for Johnny Antonelli Thursday while helping Milwaukee's Bob Rush blank the San Francisco Giants, 3-0.

Crandall scored the first Milwaukee run off his former roommate in the fifth inning when he walked, stole second and then raced all the way home on the same play as catcher Bob Schmidt and centerfielder Willie Mays committed an error apiece.

The Braves' catcher next worked Antonelli for a bases-loaded walk in the eighth to force across Milwaukee's third run.

Schoendienst got four hits in five trips off the Giants southpaw and doubled home the Braves' other run in the sixth.

In the meantime, big Rush posted his seventh win of the season after losing three straight. It also was his second shutout of the year, although the Giants tagged him for 10 hits and got men on board in every inning. A total of 11 Giants were left stranded.

The victory gave the Braves a 4-1 edge over San Francisco in what had started out to be a "crucial" series and moved them 7½ games ahead of the idle Pittsburgh Pirates.

Crandall came across with Milwaukee's first run after Antonelli passed him in the fifth and he got a big jump on the southpaw to steal second. Schmidt threw the ball wildly into left field which let Crandall steam into third base and he kept on going to score when Mays fumbled the ball in left center while trying to make a barehanded pickup.

The Braves now have beaten San Francisco nine times in their last 10 meetings.

Washington Directors Vote Today

May Shift Club To Minneapolis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The on-again move to transfer the Washington baseball Senators to Minneapolis is due to get a couple of new pushes Friday.

The Senators' board of directors, dominated by President Calvin Griffith and his family, will meet at 10 a.m. and is expected to vote on giving him official authority to go shopping again.

Also Friday, Minneapolis officials are expected to approve a bond plan to enlarge the municipal stadium to a 41,000 seat capacity fitting for major league baseball.

Mayor P. Kenneth Peterson of Minneapolis told the Minneapolis Tribune he understood that approval of the bonds and a Griffith decision to come to Minneapolis are "to be as simultaneous as possible."

Last year, Griffith rejected a Minneapolis bid for his American League franchise. Now he says the club probably would ask permission to move, given satisfactory terms as to stadium facilities, rent and concessions.

Last month Griffith asked the league's permission to move, if the club deemed it advisable. At that time, fellow club owners repulsed the idea. For one thing, they were disturbed by his timing since Congress then was considering antitrust legislation affecting baseball. Now Congress is in adjournment.

The Senators' board of directors, now down to four members, includes Griffith, his sister and brother-in-law, Thelma and Joe Haynes, and one non-family member, Eugene V. Young.

Attendance at the Senators' games this year has been light, in keeping with their playing performance. They are in the cellar and Wednesday they took their ninth loss in their last 11 games, going down 2-1 to Chicago. In seven of the last 11 games they have been held to one run or none.

Frank Thomas Is Candidate For MVP Award

Banks And Musial Also In Running

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Baseball's Most Valuable Player awards are wide-open races this season, with several stars of also - ran clubs rated an even chance of preventing Mickey Mantle and Hank Aaron from repeating.

Mantle and Aaron once again are high among the candidates for this year's honors, but supporters of Jackie Jensen of the Red Sox, Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers and Bob Cerv of the Athletics in the American League, and Ernie Banks of the Cubs, Frank Thomas of the Pirates and that "old pro," Stan Musial of the Cards, in the National all can make a good case for their heroes.

Then, too, there are the major leagues' two top winning pitchers, Bob Turley (19-6) of the Yankees and Warren Spahn (17-9) of the Braves. Both are in line not only for the MVP but also for the Cy Young Award that goes to the major league's outstanding pitcher. Spahn won it last year.

It all depends on what happens during the last month of the pennant races. By custom, the higher the player's team finishes in the standings, the better are his chances of winning an award.

Duren Top Candidate

As for rookie-of-the-year honors, the American League's top candidate appears to be reliefer Ryne Duren of the Yankees, with first baseman Orlando Cepeda of the Giants and pitchers Ray Semproch of the Phils and Carlton Willey of the Braves heading the National League list. Duren barely qualifies as a rookie under new standards established last winter.

Oddly, Mantle and Aaron each had a slow start this season, but have come along strongly since the All-Star game break. Both were hitting below .300 for at least half the season. Through Wednesday's games, however, Aaron had a .335 batting average with 28 homers and 82 runs batted in; Mantle sported a .301 average with 37 home runs and 83 RBIs.

Jensen presently owns a .312 batting mark with 33 homers and 110 RBIs. Kuenn leads the league in batting with .328. Cerv has a .326 average with 29 homers and 86 RBIs.

Banks Going Good

Banks, with 42 homers, 110 RBIs and a .314 average, is having a marvelous season. What might hurt his chances is the Cubs' last - place standing. Only once has the National League's MVP Award gone to a second division player. That was Hank Sauer of the Cubs in 1952.

Thomas, though batting a few points below .300, has hit 34 home runs and driven in 104 runs; Musial, seeking his eighth N.L. batting title, currently leads both leagues in hitting with .343.

When it comes to rookies, the National League has far more candidates than the American. Cepeda, with a .305 average and 23 homers; Semproch, with a 13-8 pitching record, and Willey, who joined the Braves in June and contributed an 8-4 record to the team's pennant drive, appear the best N.L. bets. Others are George Witt (7-2) and Curt Raydon (7-3) of the Pirates.

Duren, with a 5-3 record and numerous "saves" in relief, is the likely A.L. rookie-of-the-year. Just about the only other first-year man around the league able to hold a job with any regularity has been outfielder Albie Pearson of the Senators, and his batting average is not too impressive.

Both teams completed their regular schedules with 8-12 records.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies announced Thursday the signing of the first Alaska-born player in organized baseball. Henry (Pip) Pratt, a right-handed pitcher and graduate of North East (Md.) High School, has been assigned to the Brunswick, Ga., team. NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The 1958 Yale football squad, which opens its pre-season practice in New Haven Sept. 1, will have a strong home-state flavor.

Eleven of the eight-some candidates reporting to Coach Jordon Olivar are residents of Connecticut. Standout among the Nutmeggers is little Herbie Hallas, the speedster from Windsor who scored seven touchdowns as a regular halfback last fall.

IN FRONT AGAIN—That little riding man from the west coast, Willie Shoemaker, is out in front in the national jockey race again. He currently is riding on the Chicago circuit.

Discovery Is Put To Death At Age Of 27

Mercy Killing Takes Place At Sagamore

BALTIMORE (AP)—Discovery, grandfather of such great racing thoroughbreds as Native Dancer and Bold Ruler, was put to death Thursday at the age of 27 after a long illness.

The mercy killing took place at Sagamore Farm, the breeding establishment of Alfred G. Vanderbilt. Discovery was Vanderbilt's first purchase when his mother turned over the farm and racing stable to him on his 21st birthday in 1933.

Discovery won $190,000 for Vanderbilt, not much nowadays but a lot then when the most from one victory was $11,675.

Discovery set world records for one mile and an eighth and mile and sixteenth. But close observers of the sport admired him more for his ability to carry weight.

In his last two years of racing, his average handicap was 131 pounds. He won with as much as 139 and raced with 143. A handicap of 130 pounds draws frowns from many owners today.

Retired at the age of six to Sagamore, Discovery sired more than 200 winners of over $5,000,000. His daughters became treasured as producers.

Howard Hitting .328 But Is Not Among Leaders

Can't Qualify For Swat Title

By JOHN GRIFFIN

NEW YOR K(UPI) — Elston Howard isn't losing any sleep over the fact that his "bid" for the American League batting championship will be wrecked by the rule book.

Ellie, whose catching talents have turned Yogi Berra into a right fielder, is sporting a .328 batting average, but you won't find his name among the American League batting leaders. He hasn't been to bat enough times.

What's more, time is running out fast and it's impossible for Howard to get in enough licks. To get the required total of 477 at-bats (including walks) to be eligible for the title, Howard would have to go to the plate an average of 5.4 times per game for the Yankees' remaining 27 games.

Doesn't Worry

Maybe he could do it by living a double life or developing a split personality, one wag suggested.

"I sure can't do that," said Howard with a flash of his Gold-toothed grin. "So I just don't worry about it any. I never even think of it."

If Howard can't win the batting crown, there is one title that he owns outright, that of "most overlooked Yankee star."

Many American Leaguers call the sturdy Negro the best catcher in the American League. At any rate, he has been good enough to take over as the Yankees' regular receiver while Berra, three - time winner of the Most Valuable Player award, is struggling through his second slump year at bat.

Howard Consistent

There's been no official announcement by Casey Stengel that Howard is the No. 1 receiver. But, on days when both are uninjured and available for duty, Howard is behind the plate and Berra is in the outfield. It used to be the other way around.

Moreover, Howard has been the most consistent Yankee hitter through the month of August, which has seen the runaway league-leaders slump to a 14-14 won-lost record so far. Mickey Mantle has been socking the home runs but Howard has been weighing in with his steady one, two, and three hits per game.

Lary Owns 15-5 Record Against New York Yanks

Early Wynn Is 29-48, Billy Pierce 19-30, Lefty Grove 34-26

The 27-year-old Yankee tamer, counting his 6-1 mark against them this season, owns a 4-year lifetime record of 15 victories and five defeats against the perennial American League champions. This is only his fourth season with the Tigers.

Lary is only one of five active pitchers who have beaten the Yankees more times than they've lost to them. The others are Boston's Dave Sisler (7-4), Detroit's Jim Bunning (5-4) and George Susce (3-0), and Cleveland's Herb Score (3-1). Boston's Willard Nixon (12-12), Chicago's Dick Donovan (8-8) and Cleveland's Ray Narleski (5-5) are even with the Yankees.

Only three pitchers have won more games from the Yankees than Lary. Chicago's Early Wynn has 29, Billy Pierce 19 and Virgil Trucks, now with the Yankees, 18. Wynn, however, has dropped 48 decisions to Casey Stengel's crew, Pierce 30 and Trucks 23.

During the past 20 years, only 10 pitchers have been able to get the upper hand against the Yankees. Schoolboy Rowe, Detroit's great right-hander, had the most success, next to Lary. He had a 20-12 mark. Still another member of the Tigers, Steve Gromek, ranks third with 19-14. Ellis Kinder, St. Louis and Boston right-hander, was 14-9.

Lefty Grove, the majors' last 300-game winner, is fifth with a 34-26 mark. Hal Newhouser, the superb Tiger southpaw, was 33-31. Denny Galehouse who pitched for four American League clubs, compiled a 10-18 record against New York.

Kennell's Mill Blasts Exports Out Of Playoffs

Vern Lowery Blanks Corriganville, 9-0

Kennell's Mill eliminated the Corriganville Old Exports from the County Softball League playoffs yesterday by scoring its second straight win of the best-of-three series at Kennell's Mill by the score of 9-0.

Vern Lowery limited the pennant winners to two hits, singles by "Boots" Raygor and Carl Grabowski and scored his second win of the series. Lowery won the first game by the score of 7-3.

Carlton Stair sparked the Kennell's Mill attack with a double and two singles while Vern and Jack Lowery, Irvin Hosselrode and Don Kreigline garnered two hits each. Vern Lowery blasted a homer and triple.

Art Raygor, who pitched Corriganville to the season title by winning 22 games and losing five, is in Florida and failed to participate in the playoffs. Joe Raygor was the loser in both games.

Kennell's Mill will play the winner of the Stringtown-Maple Inn series in the finals. Yesterday's score:

Milwaukee's Bob Rush Blanks San Francisco, 3-0

Schoendienst Obtains Four Of Six Blows

Johnny Antonelli Is Victim; Braves Lead 7½ Games

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Del Crandall and Red Schoendienst made life miserable for Johnny Antonelli Thursday while helping Milwaukee's Bob Rush blank the San Francisco Giants, 3-0.

Crandall scored the first Milwaukee run off his former roommate in the fifth inning when he walked, stole second and then raced all the way home on the same play as catcher Bob Schmidt and centerfielder Willie Mays committed an error apiece.

In the meantime, big Rush posted his seventh win of the season after losing three straight. It also was his second shutout of the year, although the Giants tagged him for 10 hits and got men on board in every inning. A total of 11 Giants were left stranded.

The victory gave the Braves a 4-1 edge over San Francisco in what had started out to be a "crucial" series and moved them 7½ games ahead of the idle Pittsburgh Pirates.

Crandall came across with Milwaukee's first run after Antonelli passed him in the fifth and he got a big jump on the southpaw to steal second. Schmidt threw the ball wildly into left field which let Crandall steam into third base and he kept on going to score when Mays fumbled the ball in left center while trying to make a barehanded pickup.

Frank Thomas Is Candidate For MVP Award

Banks And Musial Also In Running

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Baseball's Most Valuable Player awards are wide-open races this season, with several stars of also-ran clubs rated an even chance of preventing Mickey Mantle and Hank Aaron from repeating.

Mantle and Aaron once again are high among the candidates for this year's honors, but supporters of Jackie Jensen of the Red Sox, Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers and Bob Cerv of the Athletics in the American League, and Ernie Banks of the Cubs, Frank Thomas of the Pirates and that "old pro," Stan Musial of the Cards, in the National all can make a good case for their heroes.

Then, too, there are the major leagues' two top winning pitchers, Bob Turley (19-6) of the Yankees and Warren Spahn (17-9) of the Braves. Both are in line not only for the MVP but also for the Cy Young Award that goes to the major league's outstanding pitcher. Spahn won it last year.

It all depends on what happens during the last month of the pennant races. By custom, the higher the player's team finishes in the standings, the better are his chances of winning an award.

Duren Top Candidate

As for rookie-of-the-year honors, the American League's top candidate appears to be reliefer Ryne Duren of the Yankees, with first baseman Orlando Cepeda of the Giants and pitchers Ray Semproch of the Phils and Carlton Willey of the Braves heading the National League list. Duren barely qualifies as a rookie under new standards established last winter.

Oddly, Mantle and Aaron each had a slow start this season, but have come along strongly since the All-Star game break. Both were hitting below .300 for at least half the season. Through Wednesday's games, however, Aaron had a .335 batting average with 28 homers and 82 runs batted in; Mantle sported a .301 average with 37 home runs and 83 RBIs.

Jensen presently owns a .312 batting mark with 33 homers and 110 RBIs. Kuenn leads the league in batting with .328. Cerv has a .326 average with 29 homers and 86 RBIs.

Banks Going Good

Banks, with 42 homers, 110 RBIs and a .314 average, is having a marvelous season. What might hurt his chances is the Cubs' last-place standing. Only once has the National League's MVP Award gone to a second division player. That was Hank Sauer of the Cubs in 1952.

Thomas, though batting a few points below .300, has hit 34 home runs and driven in 104 runs; Musial, seeking his eighth N.L. batting title, currently leads both leagues in hitting with .343.

When it comes to rookies, the National League has far more candidates than the American. Cepeda, with a .305 average and 23 homers; Semproch, with a 13-8 pitching record, and Willey, who joined the Braves in June and contributed an 8-4 record to the team's pennant drive, appear the best N.L. bets. Others are George Witt (7-2) and Curt Raydon (7-3) of the Pirates.

Duren, with a 5-3 record and numerous "saves" in relief, is the likely A.L. rookie-of-the-year. Just about the only other first-year man around the league able to hold a job with any regularity has been outfielder Albie Pearson of the Senators, and his batting average is not too impressive.

Pittsburgh Plate Evens RC Playoffs

"Bud" Law Scores Over Caseys, 10-2

Pittsburgh Plate Glass squared its Rocking Chair Softball League playoff series with the Knights of Columbus at one-all yesterday by winning at Stitcher Field by the score of 10-2.

The "rubber" game of the playoff semi-finals is billed for today at 6 p. m., at Stitcher Field. The winner advances to the playoff finals with the V.F.W., who ushered out the Elks in two straight Appearing on the mound for the Glassmen for the first time since July 29, Leo "Bud" Law scattered six hits to decision Al Sheetz. The win was theh sixth of the season for Law.

Manager Clay Ingram's swatsmiths nicked Sheetz for eight hits, six of which were shared by George Stevenson, Bob Koelker and Sam Brady. One of Brady's hits was a triple.

Chaney's, Hermans Play For 4th Place

Chaney's Transportation and the Hermans will meet in a playoff game for fourth place in the City Softball League today at 6:15 p.m., at Penn Avenue Field.

The team that loses will be crowded out of the playoffs in the five-team circuit.

Discovery Is Put To Death At Age Of 27

Mercy Killing Takes Place At Sagamore

BALTIMORE (AP)—Discovery, grandfather of such great racing thoroughbreds as Native Dancer and Bold Ruler, was put to death Thursday at the age of 27 after a long illness.

The mercy killing took place at Sagamore Farm, the breeding establishment of Alfred G. Vanderbilt. Discovery was Vanderbilt's first purchase when his mother turned over the farm and racing stable to him on his 21st birthday in 1933.

Discovery won $190,000 for Vanderbilt, not much nowadays but a lot then when the most from one victory was $11,675.

Discovery set world records for one mile and an eighth and mile and sixteenth. But close observers of the sport admired him more for his ability to carry weight.

In his last two years of racing, his average handicap was 131 pounds. He won with as much as 139 and raced with 143. A handicap of 130 pounds draws frowns from many owners today.

Retired at the age of six to Sagamore, Discovery sired more than 200 winners of over $5,000,000. His daughters became treasured as producers.

Washington Directors Vote Today

May Shift Club To Minneapolis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The on-again move to transfer the Washington baseball Senators to Minneapolis is due to get a couple of new pushes Friday.

The Senators' board of directors, dominated by President Calvin Griffith and his family, will meet at 10 a.m. and is expected to vote on giving him official authority to go shopping again.

Also Friday, Minneapolis officials are expected to approve a bond plan to enlarge the municipal stadium to a 41,000 seat capacity fitting for major league baseball.

Mayor P. Kenneth Peterson of Minneapolis told the Minneapolis Tribune he understood that approval of the bonds and a Griffith decision to come to Minneapolis are "to be as simultaneous as possible."

Last year, Griffith rejected a Minneapolis bid for his American League franchise. Now he says the club probably would ask permission to move, given satisfactory terms as to stadium facilities, rent and concessions.

Last month Griffith asked the league's permission to move, if the club deemed it advisable. At that time, fellow club owners repulsed the idea. For one thing, they were disturbed by his timing since Congress then was considering antitrust legislation affecting baseball. Now Congress is in adjournment.

The Senators' board of directors, now down to four members, includes Griffith, his sister and brother-in-law, Thelma and Joe Haynes, and one non-family member, Eugene V. Young.

Attendance at the Senators' games this year has been light, in keeping with their playing performance. They are in the cellar and Wednesday they took their ninth loss in their last 11 games, going down 2-1 to Chicago. In seven of the last 11 games they have been held to one run or none.

Mal Anderson Opens Defense Of Net Crown

U.S. Championship Event Opens Today

By STEVE SNIDER
United Press International

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UPI) — Top-seeded Mal Anderson, a slugging cowboy from Australia, opens defense of his U.S. tennis championship Friday against big Bob Perry of Los Angeles with high hopes of retaining the crown he won last year as an unseeded outsider.

America's three leading players —Ham Richardson of Arlington, Va., Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, and Dick Savitt of South Orange, N.J. — also were scheduled for action as the first half of the 192 men and women stars from 15 nations start the 10-day grind.

Richardson, seeded third and going all out for the title after a layoff of nearly a year, drew tough little Tony Vincent of New York for his first rounder. Fifth-seeded MacKay meets Jim Shakespeare of Hollywood, Fla., and Savitt tackles Lorne Main of Canada.

Aussies Make Debut

Wimbledon champ Ashley Cooper and fourth-seeded Neale Fraser, two other Aussie threats, make their tournament debuts Saturday along with women's champion Althea Gibson of New York, Alex Olmedo of Peru, Kurt Nielsen of Denmark and veteran Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, America's ranking player though unseeded in this test.

The luck of the draw set up a flock of sizzling first rounders for Friday.

While Anderson, Richardson, MacKay and Savitt take their turn at battling on the center court, the No. 1 court outside the big stadium will be the scene of the tightest tussles.

Out there, U.S. clay courts champ Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of Dallas meets Kosei Kamo of Japan, British Davis cupper Billy Knight tackles Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., and John Cranston of San Marino, Calif., Cooper's conqueror in an earlier tournament on grass, plays hard-hitting U.S. junior champ Earl Buchholz of St. Louis

Have Easy Rounds

Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., No. 2 in the natonal rankings, Bill Quillian of Seattle, Ulf Schmidt of Sweden, Enrique Morea of Argentina, and Sammy Giammalva of Houston had comparatively easy first rounders coming up against young Yank players.

Four of the eight seeded women, including second-ranked Dorothy Head Knode of Forest Hills, were on the opening schedule.

ELLIOTT BREAKS ANOTHER RECORD — Herbert Elliott of Australia crosses finish line to win 1,500 meters run at Goteborg, Sweden, yesterday, in 3:36.0 and shatters world record for the distance. This is the equivalent of the mile in 3:53. On August 6, Elliott in Dublin, Ireland, ran the fastest mile ever, 3:54.5. (AP Photofax via radio from Stockholm).

"Bud" Nelson Scores Hole-In-One On 18th At Fort Cumberland

Don Jordan Made 8-5 Favorite In Bout With Godih

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Jordan, a lanky lightweight contender from Los Angeles, makes his New York debut Friday night as an 8-5 favorite over France's Lahouari Godish at Madison Square Garden.

The guitar - playing Californian invades the East with 3 straight victories and 9 wins in his last 10 outings. His only loss in 13 months was a disputed 10-round decision to British champion Dave Charnley in London, Jan. 28.

Since then Jordan has beaten Karl Guder, knocked out Kid Centella and outpointed Isaac Logart, the Cuban welterweight contender. The last one was on a split decision that stirred up a rhubarb on July 2 in Los Angeles.

Jordan, a pro five years, has a 38-11 record, including 14 knockouts. He hasn't been stopped.

Godih is virtually a newcomer, here, too. The Algerian - born Frenchman had won 20 straight fights overseas and had been unbeaten since 1954 when he came here in the spring. He easily outpointed Larry Baker in April but was soundly beaten by Johnny Busso on May 23.

Godih beat Damasco Collazo at the Garden in his last start July 30. His record is 47-4-2, including 12 knockouts. He has been stopped once.

Garden Curtails Sports Telecasts

NEW YORK (AP)—There will be no televising of any sports events other than boxing from Madison Square Garden during the coming 1958-1959 season, Ned Irish, executive vice president of the Eighth Avenue areana, announced Thursday.

Irish said exceptions would be the professional hockey and basketball games of the week, which will be telecast nationally.

Until last year, the Garden televised practically all of its college and professional basketball games, all Rangers' hockey games and several track meets, besides it's Wednesday and Friday nights.

Nelson Recovering

DALLAS (AP)—Attendants said Thursday that golf master Byron Nelson is recovering nicely from an operation, to remove a ruptured disc in his spine.

The operation was performed Tuesday. Mrs. Nelson said her husband should be able to play golf again in several weeks. They live on a farm near Oanoke, Tex.

Belmont Park Meet To Open

15 To Go Postward In Feature Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thoroughbred racing returns to the metropolitan New York area Friday with a crowd of 30,000 expected at Belmont Park for the initial day of the 45-day meeting.

Fifteen horses were entered in the $25,000 fall highweight handicap with Woodley Lane Farm's Reneged high weight in the bulky field under 136 pounds. Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man had been assigned 140 pounds for the six-furlong sprint, but trainer Johnny Nerud did not enter the English-bred claimant for "Horse of the Year" honors.

Reneged, winner of the American Legion Handicap the last time out, loomed as favorite. He will be ridden by Bobby Ussery and spot his rivals from 9 to 25 pounds.

One Foal, One Winner

Dark Vintage, unbeaten in her first six starts, including the Arlington Lassie, Miss Chicago, Joliet and Pollyanna Stakes, is the only registered foal in her sire, Wine List's 1956 crop. The 2-year-old filly was upset in her seventh attempt, the Princess Pat Stakes finishing second to Battle Heart, the extreme 46 to 1 outsider in the field.

Du Quoin To Host Trotting Classic Four More Years

DU QUOIN, Ill. (UPI)—Directors of the Hambletonian Society Thursday awarded the classic stake race for 3-year-old trotters to the Du Quoin State Fair for three more years, for 1960 through 1962.

The 1959 Hambletonian previously was awarded to Du Quoin.

Sixteen directors of the society, with five absent, voted 9-7 in favor of continuing the event at the southern Illinois track where it was held last year and this year.

Bids were received and considered by the directors from three other tracks — Suffolk Downs, Mass., Vernon Downs, N.Y., and Yonkers Raceway, N.Y.

Bout Postponed

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Welterweight Champion Virgil Akins has postponed indefinitely a scheduled bout with Del Flanagan Sept. 16 in St. Paul.

Akins manager, Eddie Yawitz, said Akins suffered deep cuts in a non-title fight a week ago with Tombstone Smith. Yawitz said several stitches were taken in one of the cuts and time of Akins' next bout depends on how soon the cut heals.

Double Payoff Of $1,062 Follows Disqualification

Susan W's Number Comes Down, Route Step Returns $79

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP) — The largest daily double of the meeting, $1,062.20 was paid off at Atlantic City this afternoon but there was an unfortunate twist to the official return. It began in the first race when Moonwatch upset Jockey Walter Blum shortly after the break of the six furlong dash. Susan W., with Bill Hartack aboard, actually finished first but after long deliberation the stewards took that number down giving the win honors to Route Step who posted a $79.60 return.

After examination at the track first aid station where it was reported he was suffering from brush burns and bruises, Blum was sent to Atlantic City for X-rays.

It was ironic that Blum would have misfortune on his first mount of the day as he had just returned from Arlington Park this morning where he rode Flying Josie to victory yesterday in the Miss Illinois Stakes.

There is the possibility that Hartack could be suspended for today's mishap which could prolong his endeavor to reach the 2,000 winner mark. The three-time national champion has now scored on 1996 occasions.

There were 100 holders of $2 daily double tickets and 8 who had the courage and foresight to invest $10 on the winning combination.

Belmont Park Meet To Open

15 To Go Postward In Feature Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thoroughbred racing returns to the metropolitan New York area Friday with a crowd of 30,000 expected at Belmont Park for the initial day of the 45-day meeting.

Fifteen horses were entered in the $25,000 fall highweight handicap with Woodley Lane Farm's Reneged high weight in the bulky field under 136 pounds. Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man had been assigned 140 pounds for the six-furlong sprint, but trainer Johnny Nerud did not enter the English-bred claimant for "Horse of the Year" honors.

Reneged, winner of the American Legion Handicap the last time out, loomed as favorite. He will be ridden by Bobby Ussery and spot his rivals from 9 to 25 pounds.

One Foal, One Winner

Dark Vintage, unbeaten in her first six starts, including the Arlington Lassie, Miss Chicago, Joliet and Pollyanna Stakes, is the only registered foal in her sire, Wine List's 1956 crop. The 2-year-old filly was upset in her seventh attempt, the Princess Pat Stakes finishing second to Battle Heart, the extreme 46 to 1 outsider in the field.

Du Quoin To Host Trotting Classic Four More Years

DU QUOIN, Ill. (UPI)—Directors of the Hambletonian Society Thursday awarded the classic stake race for 3-year-old trotters to the Du Quoin State Fair for three more years, for 1960 through 1962.

The 1959 Hambletonian previously was awarded to Du Quoin.

Sixteen directors of the society, with five absent, voted 9-7 in favor of continuing the event at the southern Illinois track where it was held last year and this year.

Bids were received and considered by the directors from three other tracks — Suffolk Downs, Mass., Vernon Downs, N.Y., and Yonkers Raceway, N.Y.

Bout Postponed

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Welterweight Champion Virgil Akins has postponed indefinitely a scheduled bout with Del Flanagan Sept. 16 in St. Paul.

Akins manager, Eddie Yawitz, said Akins suffered deep cuts in a non-title fight a week ago with Tombstone Smith. Yawitz said several stitches were taken in one of the cuts and time of Akins' next bout depends on how soon the cut heals.

Double Payoff Of $1,062 Follows Disqualification

Susan W's Number Comes Down, Route Step Returns $79

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP) — The largest daily double of the meeting, $1,062.20 was paid off at Atlantic City this afternoon but there was an unfortunate twist to the official return. It began in the first race when Moonwatch upset Jockey Walter Blum shortly after the break of the six furlong dash. Susan W., with Bill Hartack aboard, actually finished first but after long deliberation the stewards took that number down giving the win honors to Route Step who posted a $79.60 return.

Dorothy's Best won the second race under Arthur Chambers returning $14.60 and completing the "8-11" daily double.

The stewards explained after viewing the films of the first race that it was a chain reaction which caused Blum to go down.

After examination at the track first aid station where it was reported he was suffering from brush burns and bruises, Blum was sent to Atlantic City for X-rays.

It was ironic that Blum would have misfortune on his first mount of the day as he had just returned from Arlington Park this morning where he rode Flying Josie to victory yesterday in the Miss Illinois Stakes.

There is the possibility that Hartack could be suspended for today's mishap which could prolong his endeavor to reach the 2,000 winner mark. The three-time national champion has now scored on 1996 occasions.

There were 100 holders of $2 daily double tickets and 8 who had the courage and foresight to invest $10 on the winning combination.

Plans For October Land Week Are Begun Here

The Allegany County district soil supervisors met yesterday at the office of Joseph M. Steger, county farm agent, to hear a report on the soil program.

It was decided to have a meeting of cooperators of the soil program during Maryland Land Week at LaVale Fire Hall. The event will be held during the program October 5 to October 11.

Martin Gordon, soil conservation aide, reported that 45 cooperators are taking part in the program and visits to each of their farms were made during July. Various plans and surveys were discussed depending on the part the cooperator is taking in the soil conservation program.

Gordon said the Midland Sportsmen's Club has asked for a survey for a fish pond. Surveys were made on a farm owned by Jonathan Eckhart at Eckhart and the Harry J. Barton farm at Pinto for livestock ponds.

A 1,700 foot open ditch was constructed on the farm of Chelsie Liller on McMullen Highway. William McLaughlin, who has a farm on Lower Town Creek, became a cooperator during the month. He is asking for a general soil conservation plan for his 230-acre farm.

Attending the meeting were Floyd Buser, Warrior Mountain, chairman; Wilbert Paul, Mt. Savage; Charles Harvey, Frostburg; Ernest Slider, Town Creek, and D. T. Puffinberger, Little Orleans, soil supervisors. Joseph M. Steger, secretary of the group, and Gordon were also at the session.

Harbor Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Thursday signed a bill providing for stricter enforcement of regulations against dumping wastes in harbor waters of Virginia and Maryland.

Some School Buses Found Defective

Results of the pre-school inspection of buses used to transport children to Allegany County public schools were not so good as anticipated.

Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of transportation for the Board of Education, said defects found in vehicles must be corrected before the vehicles can be put into operation.

Monday through Wednesday Ramey and Wallace Chapman, mechanic, inspected all of the 102 buses and nine passenger cars used in the transportation of 7,000 of the 16,000 enrollment in county schools.

Sixty-one of the buses and six of the cars were found to be mechanically perfect.

Inspection sheets with various faults marked were sent on Wednesday to the owners. Correction must be made in ten days and the sheets returned to the Board of Education office, Ramey said.

Behind The News In Business

by Leslie Gould

NEW YORK — Business is turning up, after hitting a bottom for the recession in the spring.

The test is ahead — the weeks following the return of vacationers after Labor Day.

How vigorous or how slow a recovery will depend on a number of things — chief of which is public acceptance of the new model motor cars.

New homes, now at annual rate of 1,160,000 starts, the best in more than 2½ years — since January, 1956.

Recall of workers by a number of industries, the most significant being the return to six-day operations by a major copper company.

The drop in food prices to the lowest level in six months.

More basic than these are the underlying factors. This is a consumer economy. Consumption is what counts. Production means nothing unless several "someones" buy the output of the factories.

This year 1.4 million to 1.5 million couples will marry, creating that many new families. Next year 1.6 million couples are expected to take their vows and by the 1960s, two million or more each year.

The baby "crop" this year will be around four million and estimates for next year are 4.2 million to 4.3 million.

The number of babies being born is twice the number 25 years ago. And families are getting larger. The birthrate per thousand population is 50 per cent higher than it was 25 years ago.

The number of families this year will reach 44½ million and next year should see as a minimum 45½ million families.

New families and new babies mean more consumption. More new homes, which mean everything from a new motor car or a second one to all the plumbing and appliances and furnishings.

Another factor in the expanding American economy is greater leisure time. The business boom that topped out last year was in a large measure stimulated by the greater leisure time.

More than 40 million Americans enjoy paid vacations, and with the shorter work week, and two-week and longer vacations, Americans are travelling more and more and farther and farther. This year, Americans will spend a record $18 billion on travel and recreation, compared to $17 billion last year. The figure could reach $19 billion in '59.

So, there should be no doubts or questions where this country is heading.

Youths To Face Juvenile Court Hearing Today

Case Stems From Wild Chase In Car

A 19-year-old local youth and three youngsters will appear in Juvenile Court at 10 a. m. today for a hearing before Magistrate Fred Anderson on delinquency charges.

One of the four to be tried this morning—Harold Wickard, 19, of 890 Sperry Terrace, where the other three also reportedly live—was admitted to Memorial Hospital after the crash, but was released on Wednesday.

Wickard is charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors. Two girls, 12 and 16, and a 16-year-old boy are charged with being delinquent minors.

After driving to the infirmary Tuesday morning, the two older occupants of the car shut the lights off and wandered around the building before going to the door and inquiring about the 17-year-old girl, who was being held there pending transfer to a correctional institution.

Police were called, and during the ensuing chase the driver of the car lost control and it crashed into the pole.

Three Injured In Auto Crash Near Bedford

Two young Pennsylvanians were hospitalized yesterday afternoon after a one-car crash at Mile Level, a little over a mile east of Bedford on State Route 30. A third person was injured.

Clair Kauffman, 17, of RD 3, Erwin, is reported in "serious" condition at Bedford County Memorial Hospital with possible internal injuries, and lacerations and abrasion of his back.

Daniel Kagarise, 18, of Everett, is reported in "satisfactory" condition at the hospital. He sustained a fractured right hip. The driver of the car, William D. Miller, 22, of RD 2, Bedford, was treated at the hospital dispensary and was released.

Pennsylvania State Police, who are continuing an investigation, said the car was traveling east on Route 30 and failed to negotiate a left curve.

The auto careened off the highway for a distance of several hundred feet, hit a dirt embankment and rammed into a pole in a parking lot of the Transit Motor Parts.

Police said the accident occurred about 2:20 p.m.

Farm Leaders Hold Session

A group of persons interested in the agricultural development of Allegany County met yesterday afternoon under a new name to approve changes in the 1959 Agricultural Conservation Program and Conservation Resources Program made necessary because of amendments required by act of Congress.

The new name for the citizens, who have been meeting each year in an advisory capacity, is the Conservation Programs Development Group.

Attending were County Agent Joseph M. Steger, B. Beeson Snyder, supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration; District Forester William H. Johnson, James H. Weimer, Joseph W. Silber and Bradye H. Dolly, all members of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee; Miss Elizabeth Hoover, manager of the County ASC office; D. T. Puffinberger, Ernest Slider and Charles S. Harvey, all members of the Board of Supervisors of the Allegany County Soil Conservation District; Martin M. Gordon of the Soil Conservation Service, and Vernon Loar, president of the County Farm Bureau.

Resident Reports Tools Are Stolen

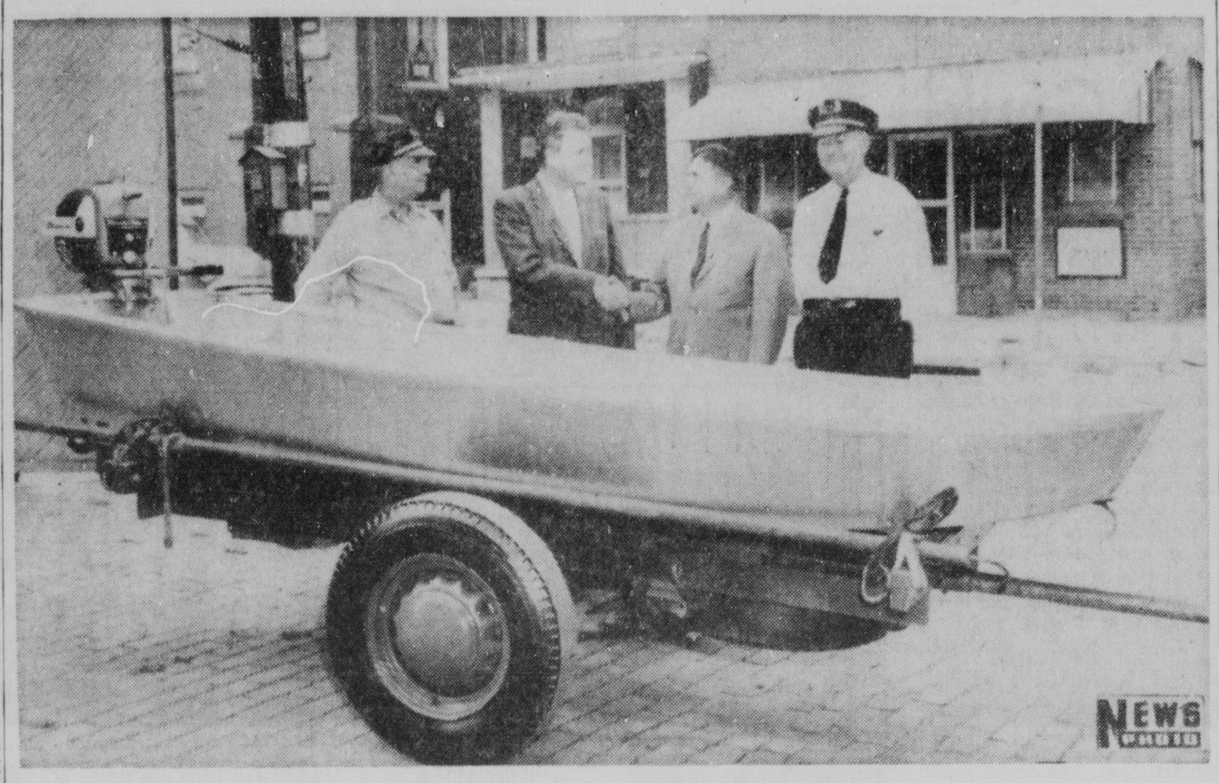
James Muir, 119 Potomac Street, said his wife was driving the family car when it "broke down" on River Avenue. She parked the car and left it overnight.

During the night someone took a metal gray box containing a socket wrench set and other tools valued at $50.



New Rescue Unit Received

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming (second from left) thanks Karl Bachman, chairman of the community betterment committee of the Cumberland Lions Club, for the shiny new boat in foreground which the Lions presented yesterday to the Auxiliary Police Force. The Auxiliary Police, who have one other boat, take part in rescue operations in streams in the Cumberland area, in addition to their other work. The new boat has an outboard motor and is equipped with life jackets. Looking on are (left) Police Sgt. John H. Newhouse, and Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn.

Three Veteran Health Workers Will Retire

They are Mrs. Mary Whitfield, Lonaconing; Mrs. Isabella Laughlin, 814 Edgewood Drive, and W. R. E. King, 450 Columbia Street, according to Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer.

Mrs. Whitfield, who will end nearly 20 years of service with the department on September 30, has been assigned to the Lonaconing district for a number of years.

She has been a public health nurse here since January 1, 1939.

Mrs. Laughlin has been a public health nurse here since November 15, 1925.

She has served in the department for 33 years and is second in service on the nursing staff only to Miss Margaret Morrissey, 803 Piedmont Avenue, who has served here as a public health nurse for 36 years.

Mr. King, who will retire November 1, lives at 450 Columbia Street.

He has served as a sanitarian for the Health Department here since September 17, 1945.

Mr. King began his Health Department career with the City Health Department, which was recently absorbed into the county system. He has been identified with the restaurant control program here for a number of years.

Tentative plans have been made for a party to honor all three veteran health department workers this fall.

Successors to the retiring staff members have not been named, officials said.

U. S. Irish Oppose British More Than Natives Do

The Irish in Ireland today are not nearly so anti-British as are the Irish Americans.

That view was expressed yesterday at the meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at Central YMCA by Dr. Robert Feddis, a new orthopedic surgeon in Cumberland who grew up in Ireland. Dr. Feddis pointed out that some 500,000 residents of Ireland served in the British Army or worked in British war plants during World War II.

Out of 56 men in the British Army who won the Victoria Cross for heroism in World War II, 11 were natives of Ireland.

Ireland, which has a population of about 4,500,000 in a land about two-thirds the size of Pennsylvania, is primarily an agricultural country.

Since Ireland gained its freedom from England in 1922, the leaders of the democratic government in Ireland have attempted ineffectively to replace English with Gaelic as the official language. Students are required to learn Gaelic in order to graduate from high school, but few of them use it after graduation.

Rec Club Plans Record Hop Tonight

The Rec Club of Central YMCA will hold its second record hop tonight from 8 to 11:30 in the community room of the YMCA.

Admission will be by renewal of Rec Club membership, except for prospective college students, who will not be required to renew. Last week, 97 members renewed for the coming year.

Beginning next Friday, September 5, several orchestras will begin playing for weekly Rec Club dances on an audition basis. Late in September the new club council will select two orchestras which will play on alternate Fridays.

Fruit Market Seeks LaVale Liquor License

An application has been filed with the Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage License Commissioners for a beer, wine and liquor license in LaVale for the Potomac Fruit Market Inc.

The application was filed by Bertha M. Wright, Edna K. Griffith and Edward E. Allen for the fruit market. It is understood the location where the market wants a package goods license is along the north side of U. S. Route 40 near its intersection with Harold Street.

Homer C. Griffith, Edna K. Griffith and Edward E. Allen now hold the Potomac Fruit Market liquor license for premises at 65 North Centre Street, opposite the City Hall.

KC Corn, Wiener Roast Is Sunday

The annual corn and wiener roast and dance, one of the most popular social events of Cumberland Council 586, Knights of Columbus, will be held Sunday evening at Mt. Calvary recreation area, Mason Road.

Committees are making final arrangements for the affair which will begin at 6 p. m. Food will be served from then until 9 p. m., with the dance following.

Bloodmobile Unit Will Visit ABL On Sept. 8

Piedmont Stop Is Scheduled

Officials of the Allegany County Chapter of the Red Cross hope some 150 pints of blood will be collected from plant employes.

The unit will be at ABL from 11 a. m. until 5 p. m., according to Mrs. Norman Taylor, county blood recruitment chairman, who said that on March 4 this year a total of 148 pints were given by the employes.

On September 9, the bloodmobile unit will be in Piedmont, at the Presbyterian Church on Ashfield Street from noon until 6 p. m. It is hoped the quota of 85 pints will be reached.

Residents of Piedmont, Westernport and Luke and immediate area will be given an opportunity to give blood.

Recruitment chairman of Piedmont is Mrs. Bernadine Appel, while Mrs. Frances Alongi is chairman of Westernport. Mrs. Paul Cueva of Luke is also active in the blood program.

The bloodmobile unit will be in Cumberland on October 6 at the Eagles home on North Mechanic Street from noon until 6 p. m. The quota is 150 pints.

On the following day it will visit Frostburg and will be stationed the same hours at the American Legion home.

Door Fractures Man's Skull

Willis Black, 50, of Mt. Savage, was injured while working at the Farmers Feed and Supply Company, Harrison and George streets.

Attaches, who said her condition is "good," reported that the woman was injured when a silk transport fell on her. She was taken to the hospital about 7 p. m. in a plant ambulance.

Gas Furnace Blast Jars LaVale Home

No One Is Hurt; Plaster Cracked

An explosion from a gas furnace of a LaVale home yesterday morning jarred the occupants and caused considerable damage to the heating equipment and parts of the house.

The explosion occurred about 10 a.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Seiler.

Mrs. Seiler said she and her husband were in the house at the time, and their two children were outside playing. The cause of the explosion has not been determined, she said.

As a result of the blast, the furnace door was damaged, the pipe leading to the chimney was knocked off, and other damage was done to the equipment.

Plaster in the kitchen, the living room, and along the landing leading to the upstairs was cracked.

The furnace was checked over this spring when the family last used it, and it was in good working condition.

The explosion attracted a number of neighbors to the Seiler home. Mrs. Seiler said the basement furnace was converted from coal to gas about three and a half years ago.

There was no fire involved, she said, and it was not necessary to call the volunteer fire company.

First Methodist Building Project To Begin Today

Is First Phase Of 10-Year Program

The L-shaped structure will cost $100,000 and will mark the first phase of a $350,000-plus building program which will stretch over the next 10 years.

Officials of the congregation now located at 131 Bedford Street, and representatives of the building committee will be present to mark the opening of the project.

The building will be located on a 327-foot lot at the intersection of Frederick Street and Bopp Avenue, where ground was broken late in May.

About five years from now, the congregation plans to erect an addition to the building which will make it U-shaped.

The permanent sanctuary, which will fill in the U, will be built in about 10 years.

Complete parking facilities and a recreation area will be provided on the lot.

State Police Preparing For Holiday Traffic

Full Patrol Of Highways Planned

Maryland State Police are bracing themselves for the heavy traffic which will clog the highways of the state over the long Labor Day weekend which begins this evening.

Every available Maryland State policeman will be on duty to help cut down on the unnecessary highway slaughter.

It was on a Labor Day weekend in 1952 that the worst highway accident in the history of Allegany County occurred—five young men from the Tri-Towns were killed and a sixth person was critically injured.

The two-car collision, which stunned residents of those communities, occurred on U.S. Route 220 near the Pinto Road intersection.

Last year 445 persons were killed in auto accidents throughout the nation. Three of those fatalities occurred in nearby Pennsylvania in the general Cumberland area.

How many will die on the highways this weekend? The National Safety Council estimates that the tabulated figures from across the nation will add up to 420 dead and countless injured, many of whom will be maimed for life.

The high mark for a Labor Day weekend was reached in 1951, when some 461 persons died as a result of highway accidents.

The National Safety Council suggests that drivers cut normal speed by at least 10 m.p.h., concentrate on a safe arrival at their destination instead of how fast they can get there; and if drinking, keep away from the wheel.

The holiday driving period, for statistical purposes, is reckoned from 6 p. m. today to midnight Monday.

Buser Named To County FHA Committee

Floyd Buser of Oldtown has been appointed as a member of the Allegany County Farmers Home Administration Committee, B. Beeson Snyder, the agency's supervisor, announced yesterday.

The two other members serving with Mr. Buser are Wilbur L. Perrin and Harry H. Delbrook. Mr. Perrin succeeds Ralph W. Ferguson, whose three-year term expired this year.

Each agricultural county in Maryland has a three-member committee to work with the county supervisor to make the best possible local use of the agency's farm credit service program. The committee determines the eligibility of applicants for all types of FHA loans and determines the suitability and reasonable values of farms to be taken as security for real estate loans. It also reviews borrowers' progress as they pay off their FHA loans by means of improved farming and turn to banks and other lenders for the credit they need.

The committee elected Mr. Perrin as its chairman at its first meeting. He resides in the Flintstone area, where he owns and operates a livestock farm. Mr. Delbrook owns and operates a dairy and grain farm near Mt. Savage, and Mr. Buser, the new member, owns a large farm near Oldtown, where he carries on general farming operations.

The Farmers Home Administration is an agency in the U.S. Department of Agriculture that supplies long-term credit to farmers to buy or improve their farms, establish suitable soil and water conservation measures, and build or repair farm houses or other essential farm buildings. It has intermediate or short-term credit for farm operations or to meet emergency needs.

The agency does not compete with other lenders in the farm credit field. As a part of its credit service, it supplies farm and home management aids and advice.

Discarded Toys Being Sought

Even though Christmas is still several months away, the Associated Charities office here is making plans to assure local deserving children a brighter Yuletide season.

Again this year they will carry on a program of repairing and repainting discarded toys which will be distributed to the children.

Last year thousands of toys were processed and the local office is now preparing to do a similar job. Anyone with discarded toys that can be repaired and given a coat of paint is asked to contact the local office by calling PA 4-3411 and they will be picked up.

Or, the toys may be dropped off at the office located on the second floor of the City Hall. In past years the repaired and repainted toys have been placed on display at a local storeroom a week or so before Christmas.

Youths To Face Juvenile Court Hearing Today

Case Stems From Wild Chase In Car

A 19-year-old local youth and three youngsters will appear in Juvenile Court at 10 a. m. today for a hearing before Magistrate Fred Anderson on delinquency charges.

The case stemmed from an alleged attempt by the four persons to free a 17-year-old girl from the Allegany County Infirmary early Tuesday morning.

James E. Parsons, 26, presumably the driver of the car, fled from the scene and is being sought by police.

One of the four to be tried this morning—Harold Wickard, 19, of 890 Sperry Terrace, where the other three also reportedly live—was admitted to Memorial Hospital after the crash, but was released on Wednesday.

Wickard is charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors. Two girls, 12 and 16, and a 16-year-old boy are charged with being delinquent minors.

After driving to the infirmary Tuesday morning, the two older occupants of the car shut the lights off and wandered around the building before going to the door and inquiring about the 17-year-old girl, who was being held there pending transfer to a correctional institution.

Police were called, and during the ensuing chase the driver of the car lost control and it crashed into the pole.

New Rescue Unit Received

Three Injured In Auto Crash Near Bedford

Two young Pennsylvanians were hospitalized yesterday afternoon after a one-car crash at Mile Level, a little over a mile east of Bedford on State Route 30. A third person was injured.

Daniel Kagarise, 18, of Everett, is reported in "satisfactory" condition at the hospital. He sustained a fractured right hip. The driver of the car, William D. Miller, 22, of RD 2, Bedford, was treated at the hospital dispensary and was released.

Pennsylvania State Police, who are continuing an investigation, said the car was traveling east on Route 30 and failed to negotiate a left curve.

The auto careened off the highway for a distance of several hundred feet, hit a dirt embankment and rammed into a pole in a parking lot of the Transit Motor Parts.

Police said the accident occurred about 2:20 p.m.

Three Veteran Health Workers Will Retire

They are Mrs. Mary Whitfield, Lonaconing; Mrs. Isabella Laughlin, 814 Edgewood Drive, and W. R. E. King, 450 Columbia Street, according to Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer.

Mrs. Whitfield, who will end nearly 20 years of service with the department on September 30, has been assigned to the Lonaconing district for a number of years.

She has been a public health nurse here since January 1, 1939.

Mrs. Laughlin has been a public health nurse here since November 15, 1925.

She has been assigned to the Flintstone-Oldtown district for many years.

She has served in the department for 33 years and is second in service on the nursing staff only to Miss Margaret Morrissey, 803 Piedmont Avenue, who has served here as a public health nurse for 36 years.

Mr. King, who will retire November 1, lives at 450 Columbia Street.

He has served as a sanitarian for the Health Department here since September 17, 1945.

Mr. King began his Health Department career with the City Health Department, which was recently absorbed into the county system. He has been identified with the restaurant control program here for a number of years.

Tentative plans have been made for a party to honor all three veteran health department workers this fall.

Successors to the retiring staff members have not been named, officials said.

U. S. Irish Oppose British More Than Natives Do

The Irish in Ireland today are not nearly so anti-British as are the Irish Americans.

That view was expressed yesterday at the meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at Central YMCA by Dr. Robert Feddis, a new orthopedic surgeon in Cumberland who grew up in Ireland. Dr. Feddis pointed out that some 500,000 residents of Ireland served in the British Army or worked in British war plants during World War II.

Out of 56 men in the British Army who won the Victoria Cross for heroism in World War II, 11 were natives of Ireland.

Ireland, which has a population of about 4,500,000 in a land about two-thirds the size of Pennsylvania, is primarily an agricultural country.

Since Ireland gained its freedom from England in 1922, the leaders of the democratic government in Ireland have attempted ineffectively to replace English with Gaelic as the official language. Students are required to learn Gaelic in order to graduate from high school, but few of them use it after graduation.

Members of the Rec Club Council will assist at tonight's record hop, as they did last week.

Beginning next Friday, September 5, several orchestras will begin playing for weekly Rec Club dances on an audition basis. Late in September the new club council will select two orchestras which will play on alternate Fridays.

Gas Furnace Blast Jars LaVale Home

No One Is Hurt; Plaster Cracked

An explosion from a gas furnace of a LaVale home yesterday morning jarred the occupants and caused considerable damage to the heating equipment and parts of the house.

No one was injured.

The explosion occurred about 10 a.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Seiler.

Mrs. Seiler said she and her husband were in the house at the time, and their two children were outside playing. The cause of the explosion has not been determined, she said.

As a result of the blast, the furnace door was damaged, the pipe leading to the chimney was knocked off, and other damage was done to the equipment.

Plaster in the kitchen, the living room, and along the landing leading to the upstairs was cracked.

The furnace was checked over this spring when the family last used it, and it was in good working condition.

The explosion attracted a number of neighbors to the Seiler home. Mrs. Seiler said the basement furnace was converted from coal to gas about three and a half years ago.

There was no fire involved, she said, and it was not necessary to call the volunteer fire company.

Corriganville Road Job Is Nearly Done

Both Sides Of Dual Opens Late Sunday

The relocation of Maryland Route 36 from its intersection with Route 40 to Corriganville will be completed next week, according to G. Bates Chaires, District 6 engineer for the State Roads Commission.

He said the commission hopes by next Wednesday to open the entire road and to accept the project by the end of the week.

The road has been built as a dual highway in the Narrows but only one lane has been opened, pending the installation of traffic signal treadles.

High - early - strength concrete was used for the traffic pad installations so that, weather permitting, both lanes of the dual section can be opened to traffic late Sunday afternoon.

By late Tuesday or Wednesday, the traffic control system will be completed and will allow the use of the new intersection with U. S. Route 40.

First Methodist Building Project To Begin Today

Is First Phase Of 10-Year Program

The L-shaped structure will cost $100,000 and will mark the first phase of a $350,000-plus building program which will stretch over the next 10 years.

Officials of the congregation now located at 131 Bedford Street, and representatives of the building committee will be present to mark the opening of the project.

The building will be located on a 327-foot lot at the intersection of Frederick Street and Bopp Avenue, where ground was broken late in May.

R. G. Robeson, Inc., McMullen Highway, will be the contractor for the building which is slated for completion next spring.

The building will be L-shaped, 90 feet long and 61 feet wide with brick walls. It will contain all Sunday school rooms, a temporary sanctuary and kitchen facilities.

Current plans call for using the temporary sanctuary for about 10 years, when it will become the assembly room of the education unit.

About five years from now, the congregation plans to erect an addition to the building which will make it U-shaped.

The permanent sanctuary, which will fill in the U, will be built in about 10 years.

Complete parking facilities and a recreation area will be provided on the lot.

Plans have been prepared by J. Alfred Hamme Associates, York, Pa.

Mr. Lilya added he will question and take statements from two passengers, Okey W. Halbritter, 35, and Alice Michael, 17, who are patients in Miners Hospital, Frostburg.

State Police Preparing For Holiday Traffic

Full Patrol Of Highways Planned

Maryland State Police are bracing themselves for the heavy traffic which will clog the highways of the state over the long Labor Day weekend which begins this evening.

Every available Maryland State policeman will be on duty to help cut down on the unnecessary highway slaughter.

It was on a Labor Day weekend in 1952 that the worst highway accident in the history of Allegany County occurred—five young men from the Tri-Towns were killed and a sixth person was critically injured.

The two-car collision, which stunned residents of those communities, occurred on U.S. Route 220 near the Pinto Road intersection.

Last year 445 persons were killed in auto accidents throughout the nation. Three of those fatalities occurred in nearby Pennsylvania in the general Cumberland area.

How many will die on the highways this weekend? The National Safety Council estimates that the tabulated figures from across the nation will add up to 420 dead and countless injured, many of whom will be maimed for life.

The high mark for a Labor Day weekend was reached in 1951, when some 461 persons died as a result of highway accidents.

The National Safety Council suggests that drivers cut normal speed by at least 10 m.p.h., concentrate on a safe arrival at their destination instead of how fast they can get there; and if drinking, keep away from the wheel.

The holiday driving period, for statistical purposes, is reckoned from 6 p. m. today to midnight Monday.

Buser Named To County FHA Committee

Floyd Buser of Oldtown has been appointed as a member of the Allegany County Farmers Home Administration Committee, B. Beeson Snyder, the agency's supervisor, announced yesterday.

The two other members serving with Mr. Buser are Wilbur L. Perrin and Harry H. Delbrook. Mr. Perrin succeeds Ralph W. Ferguson, whose three-year term expired this year.

Each agricultural county in Maryland has a three-member committee to work with the county supervisor to make the best possible local use of the agency's farm credit service program. The committee determines the eligibility of applicants for all types of FHA loans and determines the suitability and reasonable values of farms to be taken as security for real estate loans. It also reviews borrowers' progress as they pay off their FHA loans by means of improved farming and turn to banks and other lenders for the credit they need.

The committee elected Mr. Perrin as its chairman at its first meeting. He resides in the Flintstone area, where he owns and operates a livestock farm. Mr. Delbrook owns and operates a dairy and grain farm near Mt. Savage, and Mr. Buser, the new member, owns a large farm near Oldtown, where he carries on general farming operations.

The Farmers Home Administration is an agency in the U.S. Department of Agriculture that supplies long-term credit to farmers to buy or improve their farms, establish suitable soil and water conservation measures, and build or repair farm houses or other essential farm buildings. It has intermediate or short-term credit for farm operations or to meet emergency needs.

The agency does not compete with other lenders in the farm credit field. As a part of its credit service, it supplies farm and home management aids and advice.

Discarded Toys Being Sought

Even though Christmas is still several months away, the Associated Charities office here is making plans to assure local deserving children a brighter Yuletide season.

Again this year they will carry on a program of repairing and repainting discarded toys which will be distributed to the children.

Last year thousands of toys were processed and the local office is now preparing to do a similar job. Anyone with discarded toys that can be repaired and given a coat of paint is asked to contact the local office by calling PA 4-3411 and they will be picked up.

Or, the toys may be dropped off at the office located on the second floor of the City Hall. In past years the repaired and repainted toys have been placed on display at a local storeroom a week or so before Christmas.
